CUBANS LOOT U. S. CONSULATE

U. S. CONSIDERS BUILDING CITY'S SEWAGE PLANTS

Sanitary District's Rule May Be Ended.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wahington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—An extraordinary plan, whereby the federal government would build sewage plants at Chicago and operate them until the costs were repaid by Chicago taxpayers, was disclosed to THE TRIBUNE today by Secretary Ickes.

The plan is under study by government lawyers and financial experts, and is so broad in its scope as to contemplate practically the abdication of the Chicago sanitary district trustees and the undertaking by the government of a most unusual municipal project.

It would involve the application of an untried and little discussed clause of the national recovery act, which permits the government, in furtherance of its public works program, to acquire properties, build on them and then operate, sell or lease them.

May Solve Difficult Problem.

Secretary Ickes made it plain that he is not committed to the plan, but is considering it as a possible solution of a difficult problem. The proponents of the plan urge that the financial condition of the sanitary district is so bad at present as to make federal loans to it impossible, and that the only means of building the plants, under the arbitrary program laid down by the United States Supreme court, is to have the federal government take over the sanitary district bodily and to build and own and operate the plants until the federal treasury is repaid for its investment.

The plan contemplates alternative methods of financing the project. Taxes assessed against property owners in the sanitary district might be given into the federal treasury, or special sewage rental taxes may be charged against all residents of the district. Secretary Ickes, several months ago, informally suggested the levying of such a sewage tax, holding it would be so small as to be easily absorbed.

Would Pay Sewage Rentals.

Under such a proposal the city of Chicago would contract with the government to turn over the proceeds or collections on sewage rentals and in the same manner the other municipalities served by the district, such as Wilmette, Evanston, and southern and western suburbs, would contract with the government.

It has not been determined whether the government could take over the sanitary district's properties by deed or lease.

The secretary, who is President Roosevelt's administrator of the public works fund, has given such favorable consideration to the plan that, next week, he will send two of his representatives, a lawyer and a financial expert, to Chicago to study all angles of the situation.

Legislative actions authorizing the sanitary district to turn its functions over to the government, as well as to approve the contracts for the disposition of local taxes to the federal treasury, will be required if the plan is generally accepted.

Court Ordered Work Done.

When doubt was expressed as to whether the present officials of the sanitary district would accept a proposal taking the building and operation of plants out of their hands, Secretary Ickes pointed out that the Supreme court has ordered that the work be done, and if the plan is the only acceptable one to get it done it must be accepted or failure conceded.

"It all gets down to how seriously the sanitary district and the people of Chicago want to put this thing over," Mr. Ickes said.

Suggestions that delays in putting the plan into effect would run many months were met by Secretary Ickes with the reply that "We're ready to act right away," provided the plan meets approval.

Gov. Horner is preparing to call a special session, and at this session the enabling acts could be approved, Mr. Ickes pointed out. The contracts on the tax diversions might be drawn and quickly agreed upon and work begun. Engineering plans for the work are fully completed, the secretary added, so that contracts could be let by the government without delay and employment provided in accordance with the purposes of the President's program.

"We are anxious to be helpful in Chicago's unemployment problem," the

ILLINOIS TO ASK U. S. TO FINANCE 300 WORKS JOBS

Projects Will Cost 117 Million.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Horner administration today recommended more than 300 Illinois public works projects totaling $117,843,909 for federal financing and construction under the national industrial recovery act.

The extensive list of projects was submitted to the federal public works advisory board for Illinois, which will transmit to Washington the proposals it indorses. Final approval must come from public works officials in Washington.

"Approximately 160 downstate cities and districts, as well as Chicago and Cook county, are represented in the list of projects," said a statement from Gov. Horner's office.

Ask Immediate Consideration.

The federal board for Illinois was asked to give immediate consideration to the recommendations so that final approval may be obtained and construction started as soon as possible.

"All the projects were investigated and recommended to me by the governor's commission on unemployment that I appointed prior to my inauguration," the governor said.

"The commission, headed by Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, was assisted by its own engineer, a competent subcommittee, and state officials and engineers from the department of public works and buildings, the department of public health, and the state sanitary water board.

Health Projects First.

"The projects were selected on the basis of their public necessity, those dealing with the health and sanitation of communities being given preference. Some communities, I am sorry to say, failed to present projects of this type, but we could not delay any longer for them. The list, as recommended to me and aproved by me, contained in excess of 300 individual projects."

Waterworks and sewage plants predominate the list. The federal government will finance outright as much as 30 per cent of the projects it approves.

The governor estimated that his recommendations would provide 1,200,000 man-days of direct employment and an equal amount of indirect employment.

Cook County Projects.

The Chicago and Cook county projects and improvements urged included not only local but federal works.

Construction of sanitary district sewage disposal units is among the more important local items. Others are betterment of the forest preserves; building of the outer drive link bridge and approaches and breakwaters of the South Park and Lincoln park districts; construction of the south side city filtration plant; construction of the Illinois waterway terminal, the Ashland avenue bridge and approaches, and construction of the Cook County Nurses' home.

Federal projects recommended in the local area include the Calumet harbor breakwater and riprap; dredging of the Chicago river, and complete repairing of the breakwater of Chicago harbor and dredging of its entrance.

Plants for Nearby Towns.

Among the suburban communities for which waterworks systems or extensions are asked are Evanston, Elgin, Cicero, Lake Forest, Joliet, Wilmette, Hinsdale, Blue Island, Harvey, Aurora, Chicago Heights, Western Springs, and West Hammond.

In the Chicago area sewage systems or filtration plants are sought for these towns: Aurora, Chicago Heights, Flossmoor, Glen View, Highland Park, Waukegan, Elgin, Highwood, La Grange, Joliet, Kankakee, Winthrop Harbor, and Woodstock.

A new high school for Lake Forest, extension of park facilities, and a power plant at Hinsdale, a village hall addition at La Grange Park, a garbage incinerator at Aurora, and a jail and firemen's quarters at Western Springs also are included.

State Institutions.

Improvements at eight Illinois state institutions are asked, among them the Elgin State hospital. General improvements are sought there. Kitchen building and equipment are urged for

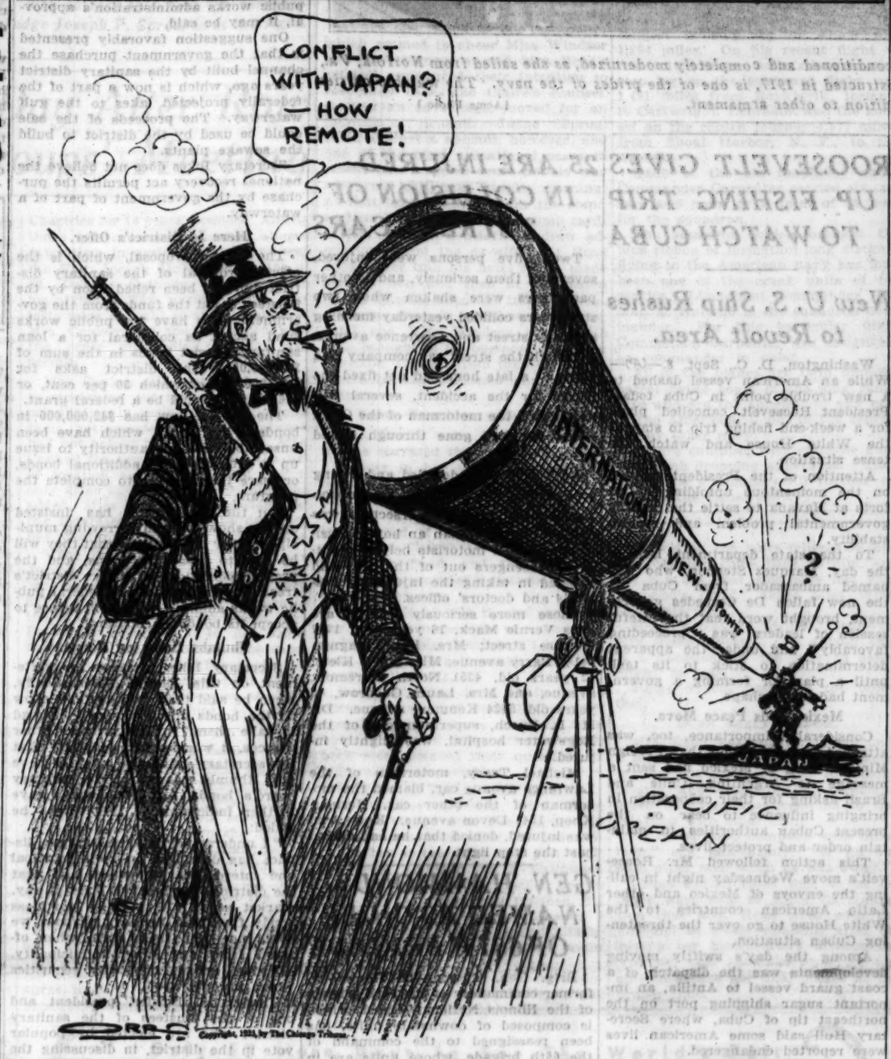
A DIFFERENCE IN VIEWPOINT



NORTH WIND DUE TO COOL CHICAGO THIS AFTERNOON

Relief from the intense heat which prevailed in Chicago and most of the middle west is promised for today in the official forecast.

Yesterday's high was 96.3 degrees at the University of Chicago observatory, just one-tenth of a degree under the record for Sept. 8, set in 1922.

Forecaster W. P. Day said that it would probably be warm this morning, but that a shift in the wind from the west and southwest to the north should bring lower temperatures in the afternoon.

A maximum of 101 degrees, setting a forty years' record for heat, was recorded yesterday at Kokomo, Ind.

Dr. Arthur Mills Corwin Is Reported Near Death

Little hope was held last night for the recovery of Dr. Arthur Mills Corwin, prominent physician and founder and first president of the Good Government league, who is ill in the West Suburban hospital, Oak Park. His illness resulted from the strain of mountain climbing. He is 69 years old, and lives at 159 East Ontario street.

Nick Muscato, '42' Gangster, Slain on 'Ride'

Nicholas Muscato, 28 years old, known to his intimates in the "42" gang as "the Little Man," paid with his life this morning for the blunders which he committed three years ago. He was taken for a ride.

The Napoleon sized gang leader was shot in the back of the head and in the left arm and thrown lifeless out of a speeding automobile at the Wood street entrance of the county hospital. This was an ironic gesture on the part of his killers, who knew that he was beyond all medical aid.

Taxi Driver Is Witness.

Only one witness to the incident was found. This man, a taxicab driver, saw a sedan containing three or four men driving up to the hospital entrance which leads into the receiving station. The car was slackened a bit and then Muscato's body was thrown upon the sidewalk. The sedan speeded away. The taxicab driver carried the victim into the hospital, where the latter was pronounced dead.

Diminutive in stature, being only five feet tall, Muscato was a gang leader, and as such he headed a select group that peddled alcohol on the less important routes of "Red" Bolton. His trusted lieutenants were Frank Petito, 17 years old, alias Gallichio, and Peter [The Ape] Nicastro.

Some of His Blunders.

In the summer of 1930 Petito bloomed out in splendor, driving a $3,500 roadster. Muscato traced the boy's sudden affluence to hijacking a Bolton alcohol truck. This, Muscato ruled, was treason to Bolton and police say he decreed Petito's death.

That was blunder No. 1, according to Capt. Norton of Maxwell street police. Muscato selected Nicastro to help him dispose of Petito. This was blunder No. 2. Together, Muscato and Nicastro murdered Petito. Here Nicastro erred. He boasted he and not Muscato had finished Petito. Muscato, hearing of these boasts, lured Nicastro for a ride one night soon afterward and shot him. He left him for dead. That was blunder No. 1. For Nicastro wasn't quite dead. Before dying he told police about the Petito murder. He then said he had been shot also by Muscato. Muscato won acquittal in court on that charge.

MIDNIGHT SKY LIGHTED UP BY AURORA BOREALIS

A brilliant display of the aurora borealis, or northern lights, was visible in Chicago shortly after midnight. It bore the appearance of a curtain of light high above the earth.

Telegraph companies reported that the electro-magnetic waves had caused an interruption of their service from the northwest, but that there was no interference to the east and the south.

The aurora borealis is in some obscure way connected with sun spots, astronomers having discovered that the prevalence of the spots accompanies great activity of the lights. The electrons thrown off by the sun collect at the earth's magnetic poles and stream out in the form of the light curtain, shimmering green and yellow.

SLEEPING BABY CAUSES THIEVES TO GIVE UP AUTO

Little Patrick Gilmore, 3 months old, is better than insurance on the automobile of his father, Raymond Gilmore, 7942 South Wabash avenue. The youngster was left sleeping in the car last night when his parents parked it in front of 5700 South Troy street. Then it was stolen. Mr. Gilmore hastened to the Chicago Lawn police station to report a kidnaping and an auto theft, but when he got back neighbors informed him that the thieves had abandoned both baby and car in front of 5600 South Troy street. The baby was still asleep.

BRAINS DYING OUT SCIENTIST SAYS; HE HAS A REMEDY

LEICESTER, England, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Dr. J. I. J. Hurst of Cambridge university told the British Association for the Advancement of Science today that brains are dying out.

Owing to the decreasing birthrate among the more intelligent families, he said, the intelligence index of population is declining so rapidly as to endanger the safety of modern civilization.

Dr. Hurst suggested a scheme of family allowances for parents of all classes whose intelligence is of a higher grade.

Peter B. Kyne Convalescent After Major Operation

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Peter B. Kyne, novelist and magazine writer, is convalescent in a hospital here after a major operation, it was learned today. His physician said he would be in the hospital a week or ten days longer.

3 Gangsters Raid Outlaw Union Offices

Three wildly shooting hoodlums, members of the fading Touhy gang, invaded the headquarters of the Chicago Teamsters' union at 639 South Ashland avenue late yesterday afternoon. But members of the union, or their allies, fired more accurately than the Touhy trio and one of the hoodlums was shot to death.

The man killed was James Tribble, 47 years old, ex-convict, mail robber and bank robber. His companions, one of whom was identified as Thomas Touhy, escaped. Roger Touhy, brother of Thomas, and three of his aids are now in jail in St. Paul, awaiting trial on an indictment charging that they kidnaped William Hamm, wealthy St. Paul brewer, for ransom.

Trio Starts Upstairs.

It was shortly after 4 p. m. when Touhy, Tribble and another man whose identity is in doubt arrived in front of the union hall. They walked into the first floor entrance and started on their way upstairs. On the second floor are the offices of a dozen unions affiliated with the outlaw Chicago Teamsters, which has long been a hotbed of trouble.

In the hallway they met Thomas J. Keegan, 68 years old, president of the big union, which is actually controlled by its business agent, John Sheridan Sr.

"They fired on me without warning," Keegan declared later. "I ran and the men went on into the offices of the Building Material Teamsters' union."

Just what happened in this office had not been learned by the investigators late last night. There had been, certainly, a stern battle. There were bullet holes in the walls, a divan lay broken, there was a blackjack on the floor, and near it a hat that was identified as Tribble's.

Carry Out Wounded Man.

At the end of the struggle Tribble, with four wounds in his abdomen and one in the back, staggered down the stairway, supported by his two companions. He was placed in an automobile at the curb and the car was then driven to the office of Dr. J. M. Houston, physician at 1614 West Roosevelt road.

The doctor's office is on the second floor, and as Tribble was carried in by the other two, West Park Policeman Anthony Turczynski followed them. He knew nothing of the shooting, but investigated to satisfy his own curiosity.

Just as he arrived in the office Dr. Houston declared Tribble was dead. One of the wounded man's friends hastened out to the door. Turczynski drew his pistol and called on the other man to halt. Instead of obeying he leaped out the window into an alley fifteen feet below, escaping bullets fired at him by the policeman.

Trace Abandoned Auto.

The man who had fled down the stairs abandoned the car in which he had ridden and also got away. Investigation disclosed that the car belonged to James McFadden of Maywood, said by the police to be a college graduate and a son of Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, one of those held with Roger Touhy for the Hamm abduction. It is believed by the police that young McFadden was the third man in the raid on the union.

Hastening to the union headquarters, Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office took possession of all records belonging to the Chicago Teamsters and the affiliated unions. They also arrested eight un-

SWANSON AVOIDS HAVANA VISIT ON WELLES' TIP

Army Officers Face Guns of Troops.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

HAVANA, Cuba., Sept. 8.—Cuba was a twisted kaleidoscope again tonight and was plunged into another governmental crisis and another army coup, with 250 army officers beleaguered in the National hotel by soldiers with machine guns.

At the time these events were taking place the United States cruiser Indianapolis, with Secretary of the Navy Swanson aboard, was steaming away after a two hours' stay in Havana harbor. During this time Swanson did not come ashore. Crowds of Cubans met the cruiser at the waterfront in a sullen, lowering mood and United States Ambassador Sumner Welles sent a sealed letter to Swanson advising him to depart without tarrying for the Panama canal and the Pacific coast. This the secretary did.

The sentiment of the crowds appeared to be not anti-American, but anti-intervention.

Officers Refuse to Go Back.

The army coup came when the army officers, who were thrown into fortress dungeons last Monday night and Tuesday when the rank and file of the army, led by top sergeants, revolted and placed the revolutionary junta of five in power, refused to be reinstated. They declared the army was a soviet army, run by privates, and that the junta was a communist government. They would have none of it.

The army officers began assembling this morning at the National hotel after listening to a radio speech by Sergt. Fulgencio Batista, who ran Monday night's revolt, in which Batista urged them to accept reinstatement. Earlier in the morning the junta promoted Batista, who is a former court stenographer, to the rank of colonel and made him chief of staff. The ceremony was conducted in the courtyard of the presidential palace.

Junta Split Over Presidency.

The junta decided that the next problem was to get the army back under officers and make an army of it. This, however, was met with the refusal of the officers to take back their commands.

While crowds were covering the waterfront watching the American warships, the movement of the officers to the National hotel grew until 250 were assembled. They practically took over the hotel, in which are about 150 American tourist guests. Its position, fronting on the Gulf of Mexico, makes it popular for tourists.

In the early afternoon soldiers in trucks appeared outside the hotel. They were deployed around the grounds. Machine guns were set among royal palms in the front yard and soldiers lined the hillside highway approach.

Welles' Apartment Invaded.

The approach of troops led the officers, most of whom were armed with service revolvers, to scatter through the hotel and seek shelter in the rooms. On one floor is Julio Sanguilly, chief of staff of the army under the ousted president, Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, and the brains of the army's revolt which drove Gen. Gerardo Machado into exile on Aug. 12. He is recovering from an operation.

One group of officers sought to take refuge in the apartment of Ambassador Welles, who is now living in the hotel. Mrs. Welles called the embassy, and soon after the cruiser Indianapolis had sped past Moro castle the ambassador came rushing home. He was recognized as he sped past the soldiers and around the machine guns. Soon afterward the troops gathered up the artillery and took trucks back to their barracks.

Meantime the junta itself, after prolonged conferences, was unable to agree upon a new form of government which might be recognized by the United States, and now appears to be split wide open. Jealousies are rife among the members of the junta. Each of the five apparently wants to be president if the revolutionary government decides to go "constitutional" by picking a rubber stamp president with revolutionary cabinet members to run the government. The conference of the junta members tonight was called off, due to quarrels, disagreements, and personal ambitions.

Officers Give Bronx Cheer.

At about 8 o'clock Dr. Domingo Ramos, member of the medical faculty at the National university of Havana, addressed the army officers. Ramos is one of the junta's "brain trustees" and one of the leaders of the professariat.

He urged the officers to go back to their commands as 100 per cent Cubans. The doctor's adjurations were met with resounding raspberries. Many officers were trained in the United States and gave Ramos the bronx cheer with the expertness of American doughboys.

The officers told the professor that they would not go back to command a communist army now without leadership. They said the army was sovietized and was picking its own officers and jailing those it did not like and that the junta had all the characteristics of bolshevism.

Call Revolt Red Plot.

The officers declared that Sergio Carbo, member of the junta, was a communist and that the army revolt on Monday, which put the rank and file of the army in charge, was communist in origin and planned by the Reds long before the overthrow of Machado.

As a final shot the officers told Ramos it was too bad the American marines had not landed and American intervention declared. They said they were unable to see how the United States can recognize a bolshevik government within 100 miles of its shores.

Tonight the officers, fearing violence at the hands of the army if they go home, have taken over one floor of the hotel and are sleeping on the floors and unmade beds, while guards are trudging about.

With dissension among the junta and an army without officers many observers conjecture the present revolutionary government seems to be on its way toward an exit.

Agitators Attack U. S.

The arrival of the cruiser Indianapolis this afternoon was the signal for an extraordinary outburst. An air of sullenness and unfriendliness spread among the crowds. Groups of wild eyed radicals, said to be communists, and student extremists raced along the promenade and beseeched the crowds to get back off the roadway. They shrieked:

"Don't welcome the American ships! They are coming to kill Cubans!"

This display was held by the supporters of the junta to be an effort on the part of some radical and extremist groups antagonistic to the revolutionary junta to provoke disorders.

The crowds which thronged the water front a fortnight ago cheered American destroyers coming in to show that the United States was supporting the government of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes after Gen. Gerardo Machado had been driven out by the revolution.

Today the attitude was not friendly, due to fears that the massing of American warships in Cuban waters may mean intervention by the United States.

Anchors at Grave of Maine.

A dazzling tropical picture was painted as the Indianapolis arrived. As soon as the warship was sighted, Morro castle ran up the usual flag denoting an incoming vessel and more crowds began tramping along the sea wall and water front, already packed with sightseers. The cruiser, the finest of its type, and one of the newest, slid by Moro castle.

On its decks were four naval planes. The officers and crew were lined up. On the bridge stood Secretary Swanson. The Indianapolis moved up the harbor and dropped anchor almost on the spot where the Maine was sunk in 1898.

Near by were the cruiser Richmond and a United States destroyer. A few fathoms off were anchored the Cuban cruiser Cuba and the training ship Patria. The water sparkled in the brilliant sunlight and the ochre tints of the buildings and the shipping and sailing vessels gave a picturesque setting.

Gets Message from Welles.

After the Indianapolis had arrived Capt. W. O. Spears, commanding officer of the Richmond and aid de camp to Rear Admiral C. S. Freeman, went aboard to visit Swanson. Capt. Spears then went ashore. He was met by United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, who took him to the embassy.

There Welles delivered a sealed envelope to Capt. Spears. The message was addressed to Secretary Swanson. The advice contained in the message was that due to the changed conditions and the critical situation existing in Cuba Welles thought it best for the secretary of the navy not to land and for the Indianapolis to proceed at once on the way to the Pacific.

Less than an hour later the Indianapolis weighed anchor and left. After it had sailed Welles issued a statement in which he said Swanson's visit had no connection with the Cuban situation.

Bitter Against Intervention.

The sentiment of the crowds today was not anti-American, but anti-intervention. Leading Cubans held that the ultra-radicals were simply blowing off steam and that they do not represent the feeling of the masses. No anti-American feeling has so far been discovered by observers, but the feeling against intervention is intense.

Cubans say there is no objection to parties of marines landing to look over Havana, so long as they do not make a parade of military strength. At the palace it was reported that the junta had issued a permit for a party of marines to land for the purpose of observation. The great aim of the junta is to demonstrate that peace and tranquillity exist in Cuba, and that it is able to hold in check any mob disturbances in the future.

30 Warships Ready for Action.

Ambassador Welles said that the thirty American warships ordered to Cuban waters are now in readiness to meet any emergency and that no more American warships would enter Havana harbor.

Destroyers, the ambassador added, have been ordered to proceed to Matanzas, Cardenas, Antilla, Cienfuegos, and Manzanilla. Two are now stationed at Santiago and one is speeding toward the Isle of Pines. The only purpose in this is to protect American life and property in case conditions justified such action, Welles said. He added that no marines have been landed anywhere in Cuba.

The feeling among diplomatic observers is that the situation is still critical, due to agitators on the island.

Communists and radical Cuban laborers now control five of the largest island sugar mills—Preston, Delicias, Chaparra and Boston in Oriente province, and Hormiguero in Santa Clara province. They have sacked the mills, raised the red flag and assumed control. The American managers were forced to flee to nearby towns.

Welles Under Fire.

Ambassador Welles is under severe criticism by former applauders among the revolutionary groups, who declare him responsible for the advices to Washington leading to the naval demonstration. Carbo tonight declared:

"Ambassador Welles insists that Cuba must have a constitutional government with a president and a cabinet. We members of the junta do not believe the United States has a right to dictate to Cuba what kind of a government it shall have so long as it maintains peace and order and fulfills the ideals of a democratic government."

Three weeks ago Welles was the center of talk, but in the present situation his name is little heard except in a censorious way from critics. They hold that after De Cespedes was made president, the American ambassador assumed too great a rôle as a power behind the throne.

3 U. S. ARMY PLANES CRASH AS FOG HIDES FIELD AT NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 8.—[Special.]—A fog that blanketed Greater New York tonight played havoc with seven army airplanes which left Dayton for Mitchel field, Long Island, today. There were three crackups and two forced landings. Two planes reached their destination.

At Island Park, Long Island, a plane, piloted by Lieut. Arthur Logan, crunched through the tops of three houses after Logan and Private Francis Whittaker jumped in parachutes at a height of 3,500 feet.

A mile from Freehold, N. J., over a farm field, Maj. F. G. Colgan and his mechanic, H. W. Martin, jumped just before their plane crashed. Colgan was commander of the formation.

Lieut. Julius K. Lacey crashed at a point near Princeton, N. J. Lacey said he and his mechanic companion, jumped, but that he had not contacted his mechanic since reaching the ground.

The plane piloted by Lieut. Harold L. Jones landed without mishap at Somerville, N. J., when Jones brought it down when he ran out of gas. He and his mechanic escaped injury.

SPANISH CABINET STEPS OUT; NEW PREMIER HUNTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Sept. 8.—Premier Manuel Azana and his cabinet resigned today when President Alcala Zamora withdrew his official confidence. An attempt to form an all-republican coalition government under Marcelino Domingo or another member of the Radical Socialist party was being made tonight.

The shadow of crisis had hung over Azana's government since last Sunday when municipal councillors were called upon to elect fifteen members to the new tribunal of constitutional guarantee and named only five candidates representing governmental parties. The ministerial defeats were due largely to members of parties represented in the cabinet squabbling among themselves, thus allowing the radicals and monarchists to score easy victories.

The veteran republican leader, Alejandro Lerroux, told the president he would take office only on condition that he be given power to dissolve parliament and call elections. The governmental parties, however, fear an election at the present moment when they are disorganized after two years of continuous parliamentary labor during which time the radicals, who represent the most important party of the republican right wing, and the monarchist have built up powerful electoral machines.

Two Postmasters Admit Misappropriation of Funds

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Leonore Waugh, postmistress at Cloverdale, and Glenn H. Perkins, postmaster at Freeport, pleaded guilty in United States District court today to charges of misappropriation of funds. They were arrested following secret indictment by the federal grand jury.

ROOSEVELT GIVES UP FISHING TRIP TO WATCH CUBA

New U. S. Ship Rushes to Revolt Area.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—(AP)—While an American vessel dashed to a new trouble point in Cuba today, President Roosevelt cancelled plans for a week-end fishing trip to stay at the White House and watch the tense situation.

Attention of the President focused on the momentous unfolding of efforts at Havana to settle the island's governmental problem and restore stability.

To the state department late in the day, Marquez Sterling, who was named ambassador from Cuba by the now fallen De Cespedes government, brought word that the fateful session of leaders was "proceeding favorably" and under the apparent determination to stick to its task until a plan for forming a government had taken shape.

Mexico Aids Peace Move.

Considerable importance, too, was attached to information that Foreign Minister Puig of Mexico had sent a message to Argentina, Chile and Brazil asking for their coöperation in bringing influence to bear on the present Cuban authorities to maintain order and protect lives.

This action followed Mr. Roosevelt's move Wednesday night in calling the envoys of Mexico and other Latin American countries to the White House to go over the threatening Cuban situation.

Among the day's swiftly moving developments was the dispatch of a coast guard vessel to Antilla, an important sugar shipping port on the northeast tip of Cuba, where Secretary Hull said some American lives were reported endangered.

It was said the President planned to withhold landing any forces in Cuba so long as there was no serious rioting which would endanger American lives.

Appreciate U. S. Action.

This was the fifth Cuban port to which American ships have been dispatched, others being the capital city of Havana, Santiago and Cienfuegos on the south coast, and the Isle of Pines, with its prison full of felons, to the south of the main island.

The day's developments included receipt of a communication from the Mexican government expressing appreciation of the action of the United States in consulting Latin American nations on the Cuban trouble and for its "proposals to continue its observation, assuring us the sending of ships does not mean intervention in Cuba."

WIFE SUES MATE WHO PUT SANTA IN A BAD LIGHT

Mrs. Marjorie McKennon, 3739 South Kedzie avenue, charged yesterday in a divorce bill filed in the Superior court that her husband, Paul, gave each of their children a $5 gold piece for Christmas, then removed the gold from beneath their pillows while they slept and told them the next morning that Santa Claus had taken the money.

McKennon is of Scottish descent, the bill added. Mrs. McKennon, who is represented by Attorney Victor Frohlich, also charges that when she reproved her husband for his conduct he beat her.

She asks alimony and an allowance for the support of the children, Paul, 5 years old; Doris, 3, and Virginia, 2.

Show Girl Backs $500,000 Suit with Love Letters

New York, Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Jeanne De La Mar, show girl, is pressing her second suit for $500,000 against Dr. Ralph Modjeski, 72 year old engineer, charging breach of promise. She presented a batch of love letters in support of her suit in the Supreme court today. Her previous suit for $1,000,000, brought in 1931, was settled out of court. She charges that, ignoring a promise to marry her, Modjeska in 1931 wed Mrs. Mary Giblyn, after getting a Reno divorce.

U. S. CONSIDERS BUILDING CITY'S SEWAGE PLANTS

May Mean End of Rule by Sanitary District.

secretary said. He has been considerably nettled by criticism that the Chicagoland states have been shabbily dealt with in the parceling out of the millions of public works easy money. Good natured about it, however, he said today that the phrase "easy money" doesn't seem to hold when projects of dubious value are presented.

Two other proposals for financing the sanitary district building program have not a ghost of a show for the public works administration's approval, it may be said.

One suggestion favorably presented is that the government purchase the channel built by the sanitary district years ago, which is now a part of the federally projected lakes to the gulf waterway. The proceeds of the sale could be used by the district to build the sewage plants.

Secretary Ickes does not believe the national recovery act permits the purchase by the government of part of a waterway.

Here Is District's Offer.

The second proposal, which is the official proposal of the sanitary district and has been relied upon by the trustees to get the funds from the government is to have the public works fund accept as collateral for a loan sanitary district bonds in the sum of $84,000,000. The district asks for $120,000,000, of which 30 per cent, or $36,000,000, would be a federal grant.

The district now has $42,000,000 in bonds in its vaults, which have been unsaleable, and has authority to issue up to $100,000,000 in additional bonds, or more than enough to complete the program.

But the government has insisted upon a showing from borrowing municipalities or corporations that they will be able to repay the loans, and the present condition of the district's treasury is such that the federal public works administrators will refuse to accept its bonds as collateral.

Thumbs Down on Bonds.

Secretary Ickes phrased his statement on this point diplomatically, when he said that "if they can show us the bonds are good, we'll be glad to take them." But, from other sources, it was learned definitely that the secretary's financial experts have put thumbs down on the sanitary board's bonds, and Mr. Ickes gave further indication of this when he added:

"I understand that the sanitary district has defaulted on both principal and interest on its bonds, and that the district's bonds have little, if any, market value. If we take worthless bonds from the sanitary district we could not turn them down when offered from any other municipality. We just cannot take any securities which are not good."

Thomas J. Bowler, president and one of the trustees of the sanitary district who are elected by popular vote in the district, in discussing the application for a loan in Chicago today, before learning of Mr. Ickes' ideas on the subject, defended the value of the district's bonds.

Mr. Bowler acknowledged that he had been told by the public works administrator that the application of the New York sanitary district for a loan had been denied because its bonds were not good collateral.

Different Case, Says Bowler.

"There is a distinction, however," Mr. Bowler declared. "The New York bonds are merely a lien on the properties owned by the district, whereas our bonds are a lien, not on our own property, but on all the tax assessable property in the district.

"We told the administration our bonds were as good as the central states themselves. We said if the sanitary district bonds wouldn't pay out, then the city of Chicago, and the Chicago area, would go to pot, and the whole country along with them."

It was announced by the public works administrator today that the state board of Chicago, headed by former Mayor Carter Harrison, had completed 11 public works projects for Illinois. Secretary Ickes directed Mr. Harrison to "rush them down here," and indicated that the proposals will be dealt with promptly.

No information was received here as to the nature of the proposals, nor will any be given out here until approval is given by the President.

Suggest Special Tax Body.

A proposal has been made to Secretary Ickes and is under consideration by him also, that Chicago, whose city government is in not much better straits than the other taxing bodies there, might organize a special taxing body, similar to the "Port of New York Authority," to engage in public works building.

Thus, the west side superhighway, one of the projects proposed for public works money consideration, and the outer drive bridge, might be built by the special authority, whose income would be derived from tolls collected on bridge or highway.

The proposed airport for Chicago's lake front will get no consideration as a federal project, it is known, and even under the suggested special authority proposal, it could not qualify, it is reported.

The new proposal for a $50,000,000 federal improvement of Calumet harbor, linking it with the Illinois waterway, has not yet reached Washington.

Use School Yard to Raise Funds for Police Slayer

School authorities disclosed yesterday that friends of "Piccolo Pete" Pace, who will go to trial on Monday on the charge of murdering Policeman Patrick A. Ryan, invaded a school playground on Labor day and played a benefit ball game to raise a defense fund. At the same time Acting Captain Peter Tomchek of the Shakespeare avenue district, where Patrolman Ryan was stationed, assigned detectives to investigate reports that hoodlums have been intimidating business men in seeking contributions for the same defense fund.

The ball game was played on the playground of the Funston school, Armitage and Central Park avenues. The promotors did not apply for the usual permit from school authorities. They circulated petitions throughout the neighborhood, unsigned, announcing a "championship ball game between the Cohens and the Kellys." Despite the names they adopted, members of both teams were Italians, it was learned.

Tells of Defense Fund Game.

President James B. McCahey of the school board was apprised of the incident by a letter written by a resident of the neighborhood, who said:

"On Labor day a benefit ball game was held for Piccolo Pete, who killed Policeman Ryan. The ball game was held in the Funston school yard, Armitage and Central Park avenues. A collection was taken up. Is it just that hoodlums use school property to raise money for defense of murderers of our guardians of the law?"

President McCahey instructed John Howatt, chief school engineer, to investigate the report, and Mr. Howatt confirmed it yesterday, adding that Adolph Wang, engineer of the Funston school, was not on duty Labor day and therefore was not on hand to prevent the performance. President McCahey sent the facts in the case to Mayor Kelly, asking that the police take any steps possible in the case.

Policeman Ryan was killed on the evening of Aug. 8 in the beer saloon of Edward Bergman at 3326 Armitage avenue, where he had gone to get a sandwich before going home to his invalid wife and four children at 4111 North Marmora avenue.

Story of the Killing.

According to stories told to the police at the time, Pace entered in a tipsy condition with a companion, Arthur Holzhous, 3523 Palmer street. He was carrying a gallon jug of wine which he set on the bar, and he offered Policeman Ryan a drink.

When Ryan refused, witnesses said, Pace threw the wine in his face. A struggle between the two men followed, during which Pace shot the policeman twice with Ryan's own gun. After his arrest, Pace asserted that Ryan had first fired two shots at him.

He was indicted promptly on a charge of murder, and arraigned in the Criminal court. On Aug. 29 Attorney Samuel Hoffman, his counsel, asked a thirty day continuance. Judge Charles B. Molthrop denied it, ordering that the case go to trial next Monday.

PHILIPPINES MAY HOLD PLEBISCITE OCTOBER 30 ON INDEPENDENCE ACT

MANILA, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The people of the Philippines will vote directly whether they wish to accept or reject the independent government proferred by congress, if a bill introduced in the legislature today receives approval of that body. It has the support of a majority of the legislators, led by Manuel Quezon, president of the senate.

The bill provides for a plebiscite on Oct. 30. The legislature would canvass the vote within 30 days, then vote for acceptance or rejection of independence as indicated by the result of the people's ballots.

Quezon said that if the people voted for acceptance, a constitutional convention would be called. If they rejected the present terms of separate government, a new mission would be dispatched to Washington to seek from congress other conditions of freedom.

HUNT FIREBUG BLAMED FOR 29 BLAZES IN LOOP

All of Chicago's policemen and firemen yesterday were ordered to cooperate in a search for a firebug who is believed to have started twenty-nine incendiary fires in the loop since Aug. 17, and the assistance of the public was requested.

A conference on the operations of the incendiary, attended by Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan, Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan, and Chief John L. Flinn of the 1st battalion, was held yesterday.

"This matter is extremely serious," said Attorney Sheehan. "There were four of these touchoffs on Thursday alone and a dozen firemen were overcome by smoke in one of them. We ask that building managers in the loop, elevator starters, and maintenance workers keep a sharp watch for any persons whose actions arouse suspicion before or during fires."

One suspect was arrested Thursday, but was released when he convinced the investigators of his innocence.

NOTED CRIMINAL OF 25 YEARS AGO SEEKS A PAROLE

Police Slayer in Prison Since 1907.

Guy Van Tassel, 60 years old, who was accounted one of Chicago's most dangerous criminals a quarter of a century ago, applied yesterday to the board of pardons and paroles for a parole from Joliet penitentiary, where he has been imprisoned since Dec. 10, 1907.

Van Tassel and a companion, Charles Hanson, who is now 61 years old, are serving life sentences for the murder on Nov. 19, 1906, of Policeman Luke J. Fitzpatrick. They had blown a safe in Hammond and were returning to Chicago when a street car conductor, suspicious of their conduct, notified police.

Caught Year After Killing.

Fitzpatrick and his partner caught them in the elevated station on 63d street at what is now Dorchester avenue, and in the ensuing battle he was shot to death. Hanson was wounded and captured a few days later. Van Tassel fled to San Francisco and was not apprehended for a year.

He made one attempt to escape from the county jail while awaiting trial, and twice attempted unsuccessfully to break out of Joliet. For the last 15 years, officials say, he has been a model prisoner, being assigned as a hospital orderly at Stateville.

39 Years in Prison.

He had served 13 years in Tennessee and Indiana prisons before the Fitzpatrick murder, making a total of 39 years which he has spent in prison. He told the parole board that he wanted to go to his mother, Mrs. Mary Van Tassel, 86 years old, who is still living in the hill country of Tennessee.

5 MILLION FUND FREED BY DEATH OF H. W. FARNAM

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The death of Prof. Henry W. Farnam, Yale economist, released from trust a fund which it was estimated had multiplied to $5,000,000 since its creation a half century ago by his father, Henry Farnam, railroad pioneer, it was disclosed today.

Prof. Farnam, the last survivor of his generation, died several days ago after a long career as an educator and economist. He was also known as an ardent advocate of prohibition.

The fund, established by the will of the elder Farnam in 1883, set aside $1,594,000 in trust for members of his family during their lives. Upon their deaths, it was to be distributed among his grandchildren or their heirs.

While the exact amount of money now in the fund was not made public by the Union and New Haven Trust company, trustees of the fund, it was estimated that it totaled approximately $5,000,000.

More than a score of the elder Farnam's grandchildren and descendants will benefit.

The elder Farnam was president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at the time of his death.

TRUSTEES REPEL ANOTHER BLOW AT SCHOOL ECONOMY

Teachers Boo Board and Draw Warning.

Another attempt to forestall the school economy program was defeated by the trustees at a meeting of the board of education yesterday. An unsigned communication from teacher groups demanding that the program be dropped started a debate among the trustees which brought boos, jeers, and hisses from the 300 teachers packed into the board meeting room in the Builders' building.

The fireworks were touched off by Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, the only member of the school board opposed to the economy measures. Supt. William J. Bogan had just reported to the board that the first accurate list of 1,271 teachers to be dismissed under the economy plan would be announced at the meeting next Wednesday when Mrs. Heffernan rose to her feet.

Presents a Communication.

"I am presenting a communication in this grave emergency," said Mrs. Hefferan, "and I move that the board meet to consider it."

Then Mrs. Hefferan read a letter, which she said came from ten leaders of teacher organizations. The statement asked that the teachers be permitted to audit the books of the school board, that the economy program be rescinded, and pledging that the leaders would "endeavor to obtain from all teachers an agreement to contribute their services without pay" for such a time as would be necessary to offset the deficit.

"Is there any second?" asked James B. McCahey, president of the board. "If not, I want to say that this is the first time I've heard of this." There was no second.

"Well, it was supposed to have been sent to you," declared Mrs. Hefferan.

Trustee Irwin Walker leaped to his feet with the assertion that before the communication could be recognized it would have to be signed.

Walker Warns Audience.

"Let's have a showdown," shouted Trustee Walker, turning toward the crowd of teachers. "This kind of stuff gets under your skin. Unless you ladies and gentlemen show the proper respect for this board of education I'm in favor of taking down your names and addresses and I'll personally prefer charges against you."

He sat down amidst a chorus of boos and the hubbub continued as Mrs. Hefferan arose again to speak.

"Mrs. Hefferan, see if you can't keep your audience quiet," said Trustee Charley Fry, and the noise abated.

"I feel badly that Mr. Walker has taken me to task," said Mrs. Hefferan. "I am one woman against ten men, and I want to get in on these conferences."

"I have no ill will toward Mrs. Hefferan," declared Trustee Walker. "We all sat in the president's office before the meeting started and nothing was concealed from her, but she didn't tell us about this communication. These efforts to fight our economy program are of no avail. I'm not going to change my vote."

Trustee Fry, addressing the teachers, said that Mrs. Hefferan had not been excluded from any conferences of the school board.

"If you ladies would quit hiding behind the skirts of the school children," asserted Mr. Fry, "it would be a great help. You teachers have run the board of education long enough. This is the first time that the board added two and two together and had guts enough to economize. To tell you the God's truth, I don't know where we're going to get the money to run the schools."

Trustee Savage Speaks.

When it came his turn to speak, Trustee Joseph P. Savage declared that this was the first time in his three years' experience on the board that a communication had been presented unsigned.

"I don't think Mrs. Hefferan acted in bad faith," said Trustee Savage, "but she knows the rules of the board. The schools are run for the benefit of the children. I say that 95 per cent of the teachers are 100 per cent with us, and the other 5 per cent are agitators. These bolsheviks have only 10 more days before the schools open.

"If it's the last thing I ever do, it will be to see that the teachers perform their work. I'll never vote to restore jobs to teachers some of whom got $15 or $19 a day for 45 minutes' work. The taxpayers are going to get what they are paying for."

When the meeting ended a few minutes later reporters were handed copies of the communication with the names of ten teacher leaders pasted upon it.

'ARREST PAIR AS SAFE CRACKERS; ONE CONFESSES

Melvin Brandel, 20 years old, 3328 West 59th place, and Alvin Boe, 24, 624 South Troy street, were in custody of Brighton Park police last night as the alleged thieves who cracked a safe in the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company offices at 3615 South Paulina street Thursday and stole $1,000.

Lieut. Arch Kane arrested Brandel in his home on secret information, and Brandel, police said, confessed and named Boe as his companion. He said that Boe could be found at the Harrison hotel, 601 South Wabash avenue. Lieut. Kane and Detectives Charles Beatty, William Duffy, Phil Dore, and Harry English broke into Boe's room there and captured him after a struggle. They found $400 in his pockets. He refused to discuss the safecracking.

Two Ex-Convicts Seized on Check Fraud Charges

Police last night seized two ex-convicts on charges of defrauding a dozen or more business houses by means of bogus checks. The men are Sam Katz, 45 years old, 745 Brompton place, who served time at Leavenworth penitentiary for infringement of the patent law, and Joe Goldstein, 35, of 3840 Sheffield avenue, who spent a number of years in California prisons. They were seized while negotiating for the purchase of $250 worth of cigars from Harry Rottner, 1108 Ainslie street, a wholesaler.

FIND NEW CLEW TO FLYERS AND GIRL IN 'GIRO'

Believe Plane Landed in Dense Woods.

New clews gathered yesterday in the vicinity of Michigan City raised hopes that H. W. [Spud] Manning and two companions, one a woman, who are believed to have perished in Lake Michigan when their autogiro plane was reported missing Wednesday, may still be alive.

Capt. B. B. Lipsner, air mail veteran who coördinated the efforts of the searchers in airplanes and boats, made the disclosure of the new clews last evening.

"The coast guard station at Michigan City was informed," he said, "that Mrs. Hilda Fritz, who lives there, had seen a plane of peculiar construction beat back from over the lake at about 11 a. m. Wednesday. It proceeded north and east of Michigan City and then seemed to disappear.

Mail Carrier Sees Plane.

"Later a mail carrier, Harvey Kenke of Michigan City, asserted he saw the same plane go through the same evolutions. Their statements agreed closely as to time and place of disappearance. It is my opinion that the autogiro may have had to descend in a wild, wooded section near the Michigan-Indiana border.

"We shall redouble our efforts tomorrow. I have the pledges of a number of pilots to fly over the area in search of the missing three. A turning back from an attempt to fly the lake would have been a logical thing if Manning and the pilot, Carl T. Otto, had found their fuel insufficient for the crossing against head winds."

Manning held the title of world's champion parachute jumper. His woman companion was Miss Majenta Gerard, 22 years old, 7617 Washington boulevard, River Forest.

Lake Fails to Reveal Clew.

Before the word from Michigan City friends of the trio had virtually abandoned hope of ever seeing them alive. A thorough search of the lake had failed to disclose any traces of them.

Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, autogiro pilot, expressed the opinion that if the craft or its occupants were not sighted yesterday there was little hope of their being found alive in the lake. He explained that the autogiro would not float long because of its lack of buoyant wing surface.

BALLOON IS SIGHTED

Search for one of the two missing balloons in the James Gordon Bennett international race centered last night in a remote section of Portneuf county, Quebec, following the report of two fishermen that they had sighted a balloon flying low in that section on Monday. This is the latest date at which either of the two balloons has been reported seen.

Flying Low Over Water.

The two missing craft, which took off with four others from the Curtiss-Wright airport at Glenview a week ago today, are the Goodyear IX., piloted by the Americans, Ward T. Van Orman and Frank A. Trotter, and the Polish Spad, piloted by Capt. Franczek and Lieut. Zbigniew Burzynski. Reports have come from dozens of areas east of Chicago of the sighting of the two crews, but so far searchers have been unable to find them.

The fishermen, Joseph Douville and J. P. Morin, Quebec business men who were fishing with a guide at Lac Bon Lac, reported that they saw the balloon flying low about 7 o'clock Monday morning. They said the basket contained two men, that it was decorated with green, blue and red squares, and that it was sailing about 35 or 40 feet above the surface of the water.

Lose Sight of Bag.

Shortly after they sighted the balloon, they said, a thunderstorm arose and they lost sight of it. They believed it came down in a forest a few miles away, but were unable to find it after a search. The nearest town to the spot where the men were fishing is Riviere à Pierre, a small village in the Laurentian mountains on the Canadian National railways, about sixty miles northwest of Quebec.

Van Orman's balloon was sighted on Sunday near Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Cancels Tag Day After Row at Charity Groups' Meeting

The permit for the annual tag day of the Chicago Federated Charities, scheduled for next Monday, has been suspended and the suspension will not be lifted until a majority of the organizations that are to divide the tag day collections reach an agreement on the distribution of funds.

Despite the suspension of the permit, some of the groups may try to hold the tag day, it was said last night, on the grounds that the suspension came too late.

Conditions under which the permit will be restored were announced last night by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, commissioner of public welfare. She acted after a day of bickering among the various associations over complaints that favoritism existed in the assignment of tagging locations. Good locations, particularly in the loop, may mean the difference between $100 and $1,000 in the amount collected. Each organization keeps the money its taggers collect.

Would Put Money in Escrow.

"My plan is that, instead of each group keeping the money it gets in selling tags, all the money should be placed in escrow in the First National bank, with Melvin Traylor as custodian," said Mrs. Conkey. "Then the funds may be distributed to the participating organizations according to each organization's merits and needs. Each charity would be represented in determining the apportionment of the funds."

In accordance with that proposal, Mrs. Conkey last night sent telegrams to the presidents of the forty-eight groups sharing in the tag campaign, outlining her plans and asking for an expression. If a majority agrees, the suspension of the permit will be revoked, and the tag day may be held. Mrs. Conkey's office is on Navy pier.

Make Protests at Meeting.

The trouble within the charities developed at the organization's meeting at the First National bank yesterday when representatives called for tags and other supplies. Miss L. Ellen Babcock, president Chicago Federated Charities for 14 years, presided. Among those who complained against alleged favoritism in assigning locations was the Rev. Joseph McNamee, pastor of St. David's Catholic church, which maintains a day nursery. The protests were brought to the attention of Mrs. Conkey and she responded with the order suspending the tag day permit.

Mrs. Conkey said that she had tried to straighten out the charges of discrimination in assigning tagging locations, but asserted that Miss Babcock had not helped her in this effort. Mrs. Conkey for some time sought the list of location assignments, and got it only after suspending the permit, she added. Miss Babcock, as president of the federated charities, she declared, has charge of location assignments.

"The list shows that the Chicago Junior school near Elgin has had very good locations," said Mrs. Conkey. "Complaints reaching me are to the effect that this institution is Miss Babcock's favorite. I do not know that to be true, of course. The same complaints state that this school's tag day incomes have ranged from $2,000 to $5,000, while the incomes of other charities might amount to a few hundred dollars."

Denies Favoring School.

Miss Babcock denied that she favored the Junior school. She said that she once served as vice president and director of the school, but severed all connections with it when she became head of the federated charities 14 years ago. The school, she said, has shared in the federation's tag day drives since the inception of the federation. She said she heartily indorsed Mrs. Conkey's plan to segregate the money and distribute it according to merit, but doubted that the rest of the organization would agree to it.

CLAIRE WINDSOR WINS POINTS IN ALIENATION SUIT

Ex-Wife Tells of Read's Love Tricks.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Alfred C. Read's deftness in swaying women to his wish again became the theme in the trial of Mrs. Marian Read's $100,000 alienation suit against Claire Windsor today. This time, however, it was the wife, holding an interlocutory divorce decree against Read, and not the screen star, whose voice trembled as she poured out admissions from the witness stand.

Mrs. Read was forced to the stand when Superior Judge Joseph Sproul ruled in favor of Miss Windsor's attorneys, in their demand to be allowed to cross-examine the plaintiff on their offer to prove that she and Read had conspired to press the trial in an effort to gain money from the actress.

Read on Stand Tuesday.

At the conclusion of the testimony, which seemed to cheer Miss Windsor and her attorneys no end, Mrs. Read's counsel announced their intention to rest their case, and Claire's counsel, sensing an advantage, moved for an immediate nonsuit. Judge Sproul ruled against a nonsuit, however, and one of the most sensational cases in recent Los Angeles court annals was adjourned until next Tuesday morning. At that time Read will take the stand as Miss Windsor's defense trump card.

Miss Windsor's attorneys drew admissions from the ex-wife that Read tricked her into his hotel room, made love to her, and then at conclusion of the episode, cried out triumphantly, "There, that is condonement; you can't sue Miss Windsor now." He then brought in his business associate, Franklin Trower, from the next room, where he had stationed him to be a witness.

Voice Trembles with Fury.

Mrs. Read's voice trembled in fury as she narrated this incident.

It was in her explanation of this occurrence, which, she said, took place in Clift hotel, San Francisco, April 4, 1932, that the story got into the legal record of how she obtained possession of Claire's fervid correspondence with Read, and the snapshots which have provided a pictorial foundation for her case.

As Mrs. Read told it, she presented her husband in the light of a man who turned over his sweetheart's love letters in an effort to make a deal to head off lawsuits.

Read, fidgeting in a chair in the witness room just outside the court chamber, must have suffered from burning ears all day. Attorneys from both sides pointed their questions to picture him unenviably.

Tells of Threat with Gun.

On another occasion, Mrs. Read said, she stayed with Read under duress for two days after he had kidnaped her at the point of a gun, took her from Oakland to a California mountain cabin, and compelled her to stay. "That time," she testified, "I kissed and embraced him because I was afraid of him and wanted him to believe I trusted him, so that I could later get away."

"And you say he used every argument, even a gun and a knife, to get you to drop the suits (alienation and divorce) and come back to him, and yet you say that you have lost your husband's love?" asked Miss Windsor's attorney.

Here Attorney Walter Little for Mrs. Read objected. "I submit that is a question for the jury to determine," he said.

Judge Sproul sustained the objection.

Is an Angry Witness.

Mrs. Read was apparently not only a reluctant witness under cross-examination, but an angry one. She spoke clearly and emphatically, especially when she was questioned as to her relations with other men.

"I didn't keep company with other men," she said firmly, "or go out with other men when he was away."

Judge Sproul ruled that if the defense were able to prove its contention that Mrs. Read lived with her husband in wifely relations after obtaining her interlocutory divorce decree last year that she would be unable to secure her final decree at the proper time.

36 U. S. NAVY FLYERS JUMP 2,059 MILES; SET A NEW RECORD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The longest nonstop mass formation flight in the history of aviation was completed at 6:25 p. m. today, when five of the six twin-motored seaplanes comprising squadron 5-F, United States navy, landed at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, after a flight of 2,059 miles from Norfolk, Va. The sixth plane arrived at Coco Solo about an hour late. It was slowed down by engine trouble.

Under command of Lieut. Commander D. M. Carpenter, who personally directed the flight of patrol plane 5 P-2, this crack squadron of naval air fighters took off from the naval air station at Norfolk at 5:30 p. m. yesterday. The flight was made in 24 hours and 55 minutes.

The planes in their flight passed over revolution torn Cuba early this morning. They flew a few miles west of Havana.

The previous record for nonstop flight in formation was held by the Italian navy. The three longest previous nonstop formation flights were made by the Italian service, in each instance under the direction of Gen. Italo Balbo, whose air armada of 24 planes recently completed the historic flight from Italy to Chicago and return.

The highest nonstop record established by Balbo's airmen was in 1931 on a flight from Italy to Brazil, the longest nonstop leg in which was 1,864 miles. On his recent flight to the United States Balbo's longest nonstop leg on the westward flight was 1,491 miles from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Cartwright, Labrador, and the longest on the return journey 1,677 miles, from Shoal Harbor, N. F., to the Azores.

Each of the six seaplanes under Commander Carpenter carried six officers and men, or a total of 36 men for the squadron.

The squadron which brought the blue ribbon of formation long distance flying to the American navy has long been one of the crack units of the service. Lieutenant Commander Herman E. Halland is the squadron commander. For this particular flight Commander Carpenter was designated as commander in chief.

All of the planes are twin motored patrol flying boats of the long range type and are the superior of any now in the American, if not in the service of any other navy.

All are equipped with machine guns and bomb dropping apparatus. They are to be stationed until further orders in the Canal zone.

The glory that was Greece, the rhythmic grace and beauty of Hellenic maidens and the valor and athletic skill of Athens and Sparta, tomorrow will shine in an ultramodern setting when 100,000 Greek-Americans present their National day at the Fair. Music, pageantry, and gracious religious ceremony will feature the events of the day.

Charalambos Simopoulos, Greek minister to the United States, will arrive at 9 o'clock this morning at the La Salle street station, opening a two day festival culminating in the ceremonies of tomorrow.

Greeting the minister on his arrival this morning will be a committee including George Depasta, Greek consul general in Chicago; Paul Demos, attorney and chairman of the day; Andrew Karzas, wealthy ballroom operator; and George W. Prassas, secretary of the Greek commission.

Groups from Several Cities.

The festivities of today will be scattered throughout the city, many of the delegations making informal visits to the Fair. Delegates have already arrived from New York, San Francisco, Quebec an dother American cities. Two large delegations from Athens are expected to arrive today.

Only 53 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

Two of the highlights of tomorrow's program will be the appearance of the Greek Choral Society of Chicago, one hundred voices, in a program which has been rehearsed for eight months, and the presentation of the first outdoor mass of the Greek Orthodox church.

Opening the ceremonies of the day will be the formal reception to the minister in the Court of Honor at 11 a. m. A minister's salute of 15 guns and an honor escort of troops from the army encampment will greet the official party. Following a reception by President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair and a tour of the grounds, a formal program will be presented in the afternoon in the Court of the Hall of Science.

Prayer by Orthodox Bishop.

Prayers and hymns, giving praise and expressing hope for the future, will open the ceremonies. Following the introduction by Chairman Demos, a prayer will be intoned by the Most Rev. Callistos, bishop of the Greek Orthodox church in North and South America, assisted by fifteen priests and chorus. A Byzantine hymn, "Lord, Save Your People," composed in the year 628 A. D., on the occasion of the recovery of the holy cross from the Persians by Heracles, the emperor of Constantinople, will then be sung by the chorus.

The prayers, led by the bishop, will mark the first time in America that such an outdoor mass of the eastern Orthodox church has been conducted.

Another feature of the day will be a series of dances presented by the Island of Crete, featuring 24 youths and maidens of Cretan descent. Other dances include the Kalamatianos, the Tsamico, Pharaoh's court dance, and a dance to Bacchus.

Every Form of Artistic Expression.

Addresses will be given by the minister, the consul, President Dawes, and officials. Extending during the afternoon and evening, the program embraces practically every known form of artistic expression. Chants, hymns, and mighty orchestral music will at frequent intervals break through the formalities of the day to give the ceremonies a solemn and yet triumphant air.

Among the musical selections are "The First Pythic Ode," "Hymn to Apollo," "Cero Demos," "Tsopanopoulo," and "Sta Xena Treho." All are closely connected with Greek history and religion.

The special attractions of Southwest Side day, New York State day, and Children's day yesterday drew the largest attendance since the Labor day holiday. At 11:30 p. m. the turnstiles had registered 161,125 admissions.

MARY PICKFORD TO FIGHT SUIT FOR $250,000

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 8—[Special.]—The $250,000 suit filed against Mary Pickford in New York yesterday by Edward Hemmer, in which he claims the actress owes him fees for family services rendered at the time of Mary's divorce from Owen Moore and marriage to Douglas Fairbanks, is "entirely unfounded in fact" and will be combated in court, Miss Pickford declared today.

The actress issued the following statement:

"I have placed this entire matter in the hands of my attorney in New York and have instructed him to deny every allegation in the complaint. There is absolutely no truth whatever in any of the charges. If the case had had any merit this suit would have been brought long ago. I shall welcome the opportunity to show in court how unjust it is."

She was particularly incensed at Hemmer's references to her mother, the late Mrs. Charlotte Smith [Pickford].

URGES INITIATING PERMANENT FAIR OF COPENHAGEN

Possibilities of Site Here Outlined.

A lake front amusement center on the continental style, with many gay and charming features as well as serious exhibit halls, a convention hall, and open air theater for opera, was a suggestion for Chicago as a permanent exposition city that came yesterday from Edward Hungerford, author and producer of "Wings of a Century."

There is great merit, he said, in the idea of a permanent exposition of some sort in Chicago, although it would have to be smaller and more compact than A Century of Progress, which he would not attempt to duplicate or revive next year. That, he thinks, has fulfilled its purpose, has given joy, and is to be put aside. As to the future he presents this plan:

"In the heart of the fine old Danish city of Copenhagen stand the remarkable Tivoli Gardens. These form a place of varied and attractive amusement, dear to the hearts of the local citizenry.

Restaurants and Concert Hall.

"These gardens embrace very elegant restaurants as well as popular priced ones with facilities for dining indoors and out. There is a fine concert hall which is adaptable for theatrical or operatic performances. Minor halls in profusion and, of course, every variety of catchpenny shows, rides and the like—some of them very charming and very amusing. The place as a whole is immensely successful.

"In a city so abundantly supplied with park spaces as Chicago, there is little need now that these should all be made into lawns and gardens and wooded areas. A public amusement park upon the newly created islands in Burnham park should not come amiss to the dignity and scope of the entire park scheme of Chicago. Here there could be restaurants and beer gardens a-plenty, rides and small shows of every sort, as well as more pretentious things such as the Streets of Paris, with possibly other foreign villages of the same sort to be created.

"One feature certainly should be included: A large open air theater or music hall, with a generous stage, adapted upon necessity to not only symphonies but to operas. This might replace the somewhat inaccessible Ravinia and give Chicago a summer open air opera house in the heart of the city and so capable of reaching a large group of potential opera patrons such as find it somewhat difficult to get back and forth from Ravinia on a summer's night.

Exhibit and Convention Hall.

"A more serious aspect could be given to the proposed enterprise by erecting a large exhibit building or convention hall among this group. Of all the buildings in the present Fair, the Travel and Transport is by far the best adapted for general exhibit and convention purposes. Its huge central hall, originally designed to hold a full sized steamship model, would make an admirable convention meeting place, wth a seating capacity for from 3,000 to 5,000 people.

"If the building, which is designed to be easily knocked down and set up again, was to be moved from its present location and finished according to the original plans of Mr. E. H. Bennett and given its duplicate suspended domes, it would make a structure of magnificent appearance as well as one ideally equipped for the dual purpose of exhibit and convention meetings. In such a giant building and, possibly, one or two others adjoining, very capacious fairs could be held from time to time—each devoted to some special activity or phase of human enterprise."

MUST WORK FOR RELIEF, IDLE IN MADISON TOLD

Madison, Wis., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Male residents of Dane county who refuse to work on jobs created for them will not be given relief supplies, according to a resolution adopted by the county relief committee today in compliance with a recommendation of the county board.

The resolution is to take effect today and the only exemption is that children who plan to return to school will be given food and clothing and their mothers will be given supplies for her own use. Men who refuse to work although they are physically able will be given nothing.

Action taken by the relief board is in response to a strike of laborers on public works initiated purely for the purpose of giving idle persons something to do to compensate the county for idle relief supplied by it. Originally the work was created to avoid demoralizing persons who were forced to accept aid.

In addition to clothing and food supplies the county relief department gives families enough cash to pay household utility bills. Strike leaders are attempting to force the county to pay $20 a week in cash for the work done.

First Visit to City

James Perdue, 73 years old, an inmate of the Warren county farm near Monmouth, Ill., saw the Fair yesterday after hitch hiking to Chicago, sleeping in haystacks and police stations. This is his first visit to Chicago and his first sight of a city larger than Peoria. Mr. Perdue slept in the Berwyn police station on Thursday night and was taken to the Fair before noon yesterday by the police. He said he would spend the rest of the day seeing as much of the Fair as possible. He planned to meet his three sons in the evening and go back with them.

SAPIRO ASKS N. Y. WRIT TO PREVENT HIS EXTRADITION

Attorney Aaron Sapiro, one of the 24 men indicted in the so-called racket conspiracy, petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus yesterday in the New York City courts in an effort to prevent his extradition to Chicago. Supreme Court Justice Miller, before whom the petition was filed, instructed the prosecution and defense attorneys to submit briefs to him not later than Monday noon. He will then announce a time for his decision.

First Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer, who went to New York to bring Sapiro back on the extradition as ordered by Gov. Lehman, aided the New York authorities in the habeas corpus hearing. The point was made by Sapiro's attorney that the indictment is illegal because it contains the names of 580 prosecution witnesses. It is contended that these witnesses could not have testified before the grand jury in the brief session held before the indictment was returned.

Son of Billy Sunday, Who Fell 75 Feet, May Recover

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—George M. Sunday, who fell 75 feet from his fourth floor apartment last night, has a chance to recover, surgeons said. Sunday is the 40 year old son of Billy Sunday. The son had threatened to drown himself and was distraught after a recent stay in a sanitarium suffering a nervous breakdown, his wife told police. She was treated for a broken finger, suffered, she said, in a scuffle with her husband before his body hurtled out the window.

IN UNION THERE'S RECOVERY, AGREE HORNER, LEHMAN

Two Governors Address Throng at Fair.

A doctrine of interstate industrial and business coöperation as the one method of fostering economic recovery was propounded yesterday by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York state and by Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois. The two governors pledged mutual support, addressing 5,000 persons in the Court of States at A Century of Progress Exposition as the climax of New York State day.

"We have outlived the time when intelligent men and women can afford to think in terms of sectionalism," Gov. Lehman said. "The prosperity of the nation as a whole and of its regional subdivisions depends on the prosperity and well being of all.

"Trade and commerce must necessarily flow in two directions. Whether we live in New York or in Illinois, we can buy only if we can sell. Self-interest is a natural thing for communities as well as for individuals. Our local pride and self-interest will not be best served if we look only at that spot which we call our own.

Thrive on Neighbors' Prosperity.

"Illinois does not live as Illinois alone; and New York state cannot live as New York state alone. Each thrives on the prosperity of the other. Self-interest makes it imperative that we look beyond the confines of our home town or city, look beyond the confines even of our own state, and in so doing open our eyes to the self-interest of our neighbors.

"When we do this the scales drop away. We turn our gaze outward instead of inward and we find our larger and better self-interest in close and earnest coöperation with our neighbors."

Gov. Horner's earlier speech had dealt with the same theories. He asserted that in the times of greatest crises in the history of the country Illinois and New York had furnished the leaders who pointed out the proper path of action. These leaders, he said, were President Abraham Lincoln and President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Although the present crisis does not involve the maintenance of the Union, President Lincoln's words, 'A house divided against itself cannot stand,' still are vividly apropos," said Gov. Horner.

No State Lines, Says Horner.

"In this crisis there can be no state lines. To preserve ourselves from economic destruction we must turn to each other for support. The hope of New York is the hope of Illinois. The states are fundamentally alike in problems of population, of industry, of agriculture. They are joined in a common purpose—reëstablishment of our people's prosperity."

The speeches followed a formal reception for Gov. Lehman at the Illinois Host house on the Fair grounds shortly before noon. Gov. Lehman was given a 19 gun salute by a military detachment as he entered the Fair grounds, and he was received by a detachment of infantry and cavalry, and the band from Camp Whistler on the Fair grounds.

After a tour of the Fair grounds the official party, which included Mrs. Lehman, John Lehman, 13 years old; Commander John M. Gill, Adj. Gen. Franklin W. Ward, State Senator Cosmo A. Ciano, and Assemblyman Ralph Gamble, had luncheon at the Blackstone hotel.

The ceremonies at the Court of States came during the afternoon. Mayor Kelly, State's Attorney Courtney, Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, and Maj. Gen. Frank Parker attended the celebration.

FATALLY INJURED WHEN HE FALLS INTO AUTO'S PATH

Waldo Takonski, 65 years old, 5230 Roscoe street, died in St. Mary's hospital after being struck by an automobile at Coyne street and Western avenue yesterday afternoon. The driver of the car, Harry E. Dowd, 6142 Odell avenue, told police the victim had fallen, apparently in a faint, from a safety island into the path of his machine. Dowd was being held.

Takonski's death and two others yesterday increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 710. The other victims:

Austin Tucker, 60 years old, of Lemont. Died in St. James' hospital, Chicago Heights, of injuries incurred Thursday when he was struck by an automobile near the Lincoln Fields race track, where he was employed as a trainer.

Louis Steege, 75 years old, 4507 Parker avenue. Died in Belmont hospital of injuries incurred Tuesday when he was struck by an automobile at Diversey and Kilbourn avenues. Arnold Grosceri, 2933 75th court, Elmwood Park, the driver of the car, is to testify at the inquest today.

Kindergarten Teacher Dies from Overdose of Sedative

Miss Vivian Balling, 26 years old, a school teacher, died last night at Woodlawn hospital as the result of taking an overdose of a sedative on Thursday night. She lived at 6135 Calumet avenue with her parents, who said that she had been despondent for some time following a nervous breakdown. Miss Balling was a kindergarten teacher at the Armour school at 950 West 33d place.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The Mexican presidential train with the Monte Alban treasure exhibit has been held over at the Fair due to the great number of people who crowded the exhibit after the announcement that the train was to be closed Thursday evening. It will be open to the public today and tomorrow, Dr. Alfonson Caso, director of the exhibit, announced yesterday.

In contrast to the registrations at most of the exhibits on the Fair grounds, which show a great majority of out of town visitors, the records at the German-American building's register with more than 100,000 names shows 80 per cent Chicago visitors.

Miss Leone Haddrill, selected Miss Lake Orion in a contest at Lake Orion, Mich., and Miss Ruth Sheardy, runner-up in the contest, arrived in Chicago yesterday via the Detroit and Cleveland line. They will spend several days visiting the Fair. The contest was conducted by the Lake Orion Business Men's association.

Mrs. Amy Maurer will give an illustrated travel talk on "Inns, Homes, and Gardens of Colonial Days" today at 2 p. m. in the Illinois Host house.

Most of the articles on display in the Philippine islands exhibit in the Travel and Transport buildin gare antiques, many of them not duplicated now. They were made by the primitive tribes of the mountain province and the Moros on the island of Mindanao, including carvings of hardwood, brass work, ancient weapons, and examples of textile art.

Gov. David Sholtz of Florida and a state delegation of eighty-two persons will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning over the Big Four railroad to take part in the Florida day celebration at the Fair Monday.

Miss Marie Miller, 16 years old, of 2125 Wellington avenue, won a tire rolling race yesterday over a course lying between the Hall of Science and the Firestone building. She was presented with a silver loving cup and a cash award by Miss Catherine Palmer, Automotive week queen of the Fair. Twenty-seven other girls entered the competition.

The original flag flown by Capt. Oliver Hazard Perry on his flagship during the battle of Lake Erie will be unfurled at the Fair tomorrow on the 120th anniversary of the battle. The program will be held in the Court of States, beginning at 2:45 p. m.

William J. Curotto, manager of the M. and C. Italian restaurant, has taken over the Seth Parker ship on the Midway, formerly known as the Dance Ship and Pirate Ship at different times, and will open it next week as the M. and C. Italian café. More than 1,000 persons can be seated at one time in the building.

The jade pagoda on exhibition in the Chinese Republic building at the Fair will be removed to the Rockefeller Center in New York on Nov. 1, to be placed on exhibit there for three months.

CHICAGO A SMALL TOWN, TOO, FAIR VISITORS SHOWN

Community Program Recalls Home.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The first of a series of neighborhood community days at A Century of Progress was celebrated yesterday, when the southwest side of the city was in the spotlight. Nine other communities have reserved special days for their participation, and more are expected to follow.

The Southwest day program was a neighborly affair. Twenty civic organizations, including Parent-Teacher groups, improvement societies, mothers' clubs and business men's associations were represented on programs held in the morning in the Court of States and in the afternoon and evening on the Floating theater stage in the north lagoon and the court of the Hall of Science.

To men and women in the audiences from rural towns the entertainment given by children and mothers of the metropolitan section seemed like a home town affair, though the setting of World's Fair architecture was vastly different from a high school auditorium or village church.

Takes Kitchen Band Idea Home.

"That mother's kitchen band number would be a good idea for us to take home for our Ladies' Aid homecoming night, Mabel," one sunburned woman was heard to say to her companion.

At one point in the morning program Mrs. Howard Gentine, the announcer, called out: "I'd like the entertainers from the Beale school to come to the platform. We can't find 'em." The audience then bestirred itself to find the missing ones.

The girls in their Scout uniforms, members of Troop No. 165, who sang songs led by their captain, Mrs. E. C. Lehman, smiled shyly at each other and moistened parched lips with their tongues as they began, but when they were well started their pure voices floated easily out across the court.

For the honor of the Pasteur Parent-Teacher association young Dorothy Brasch, dressed in lavender satin, danced a lively tap dance, accompanied by accordion, drum, and saxophone, and was recalled for an encore. Le Verne Steinert, wearing yellow ruffled silk, representing the Gage Park Women's club, paused between selections on the piano accordion only long enough to wipe the perspiration from her brown face.

Mothers Star in Afternoon.

The mothers were the star performers of the afternoon. The Central West Mothers' choir and the Chicago Lawn Women's club chorus sang in succession, each mother apparently striving to uphold her club's reputation as having about the best mothers' chorus on the southwest side.

There were selections by St. Rita's band, a string ensemble playing Grieg's "Anitra's Dance," violin solos, dances, a reading and "a piano selection of her own composition" by Rita Stratford.

In the evening the men of the community stepped forward. The Harmony Boys, representing the West Lawn Improvement association, a saxophone solo, and other church choirs were on the program. Riley A. Bender, president of the West Lawn Improvement association, a wholesale grass seed merchant, was chairman of the committee in charge of the day's program.

PLANE FOR ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION RECEIVED BY BYRD IN CHICAGO

Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd took delivery on a Curtiss-Wright Condor plane [two Wright Cyclone motors] at Chicago airport yesterday from Ralph S. Damon of the Curtiss organization. The admiral will conduct some speed trials with the plane, in which he plans to fly over unexplored parts of the antarctic on his forthcoming expedition.

The trials will be made here by Harold June, Byrd's pilot on the last expedition to the antarctic, from August, 1928, to July, 1930. The admiral yesterday afternoon visited the Fair, where he was greeted by a thirteen gun military salute and inspected his ship on the previous expedition, the City of New York, which is on exhibit there.

Admiral Byrd said in an interview that he plans to use the former coast guard revenue cutter Bear and the 10,000 ton Pacific Fir, a supply ship, on this expedition, which will start from Boston on Sept. 25 and will continue two years. Seventy men will compose the expedition, including many scientists, who will study cosmic rays, hunt for star dust, map the unknown country of the southern ice cap, chart the movement of the ice cap, and search for evidence of previous life in the glaciers.

BOYS BACK FROM CAMP GIVE SHOW TO SEND OTHERS

Three hundred tickets were sold at a carnival given recently for the benefit of Camp Algonquin, THE TRIBUNE'S summer camp for children and mothers, by nine boys of La Grange. Seventeen dollars, the proceeds of the carnival, the second annual affair given by the boys for Camp Algonquin, was received by the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

Added to the previously acknowledged gifts to the fund, amounting to $1,965.87, the contriboution brings the grand total for the camp to date to $1,982.87.

The nine boys who sponsored the carnival spent their vacation at Camp Edwards, a Y. M. C. A. camp at Lake Beulah, Wis. On their return home they began work on the carnival, to aid in sending to Camp Algonquin boys who otherwise would spend their summers in city slums.

The La Grange boys are: Bud Fisher, Donald Williamson, Albert Cook, Carl Cook, John Mehagan, George Morgan, Harvey Maglott Jr., Johnny Fisher, and Gilby Mehagan Jr. The affair was given in the yard of the Frank Fisher home, 301 South Brainard avenue, La Grange.

The Free Ice fund sponsored by THE TRIBUNE was supplemented yesterday by $1, proceeds of a play given by Carolyn Freeman, 11522 South Irving avenue, and Caroline Fahrenwald, 11538 Longwood drive, bringing the total contributed to $1,740.84.

Paraguay Agrees to Let Neighbors Arbitrate War

SOUTH TO SEND NEW THOUSANDS TO CHICAGO FAIR

A1 Roads, Reduced Fare Incentive to Travel.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Those old southern cities of Virginia, the Carolinas, and Georgia, thriving communities when Chicago was a swamp, are joining with the infant metropolis of the central west in celebrating its one hundredth birthday. Modern highways and reduced railroad fares are sending thousands to A Century of Progress, and it is the consensus of those interviewed that the visitors to the Fair from these parts will increase during the final weeks of the Exposition.

The city editor of the Columbia Record expressed the travel situation this summer in terse hyperbole: "There are two classes of people in Carolina—the e wh have been to the Fair and those who are on the relief rolls." He added that there is one more large class—those who plan to see the exhibits before the gates close on Oct. 31.

Reports to Be Corrected.

For the benefit of the eleventh hour rush to the Exposition, the Record, circulating from the capital of South Carolina, will carry a story correcting erroneous reports about adverse conditions encountered by visitors to Chicago during the Fair. The material for the story was furnished by THE TRIBUNE roadster in the course of its nation-wide tour as A Century of Progress official car to promote attendance at the Exposition.

The southerners returning from the Fair are also aiding by word of mouth in counteracting such widely circulated reports as that cars from states other than Illinois are not permitted in Chicago, or that a tax is charged for such entrance into the city, or that if entrance is effected that the visitor cannot drive his automobile within miles of the Exposition gates.

Tell Friends to See Fair.

Miss Gertrude Blumberg of the Virginia Automobile club, Mrs. William A. Boxx of the Augusta Automobile club, Mrs. A. B. Glasscock of the Carolina Motor club, and Howard B. Branch of Raleigh Chamber of Commerce told similar stories, that the residents of their respective states who have attended the World's Fair were pleased with the Exposition and with the hospitality of Chicago, influencing friends to make the trip.

Here in Dixie, with its reputation for warm cordiarlity, A Century of Progress experiences of its residents have changed the popular impression that the northerner, in his desire to be brisk, is also brusque. In Richmond, Va., a traffic policeman approached the driver of THE TRIBUNE roadster which was parked double. "Parking like this is against the rules," he said in a drawl that linotype machines won't reproduce, "but I know you're considerate of my folks in Chicago and I want you to enjoy your visit here. Try to get to the curb as soon as there is space, please, sir."

Legion Parade of 138,000 to Be Commanded by Radio

A short wave radio station will control the parade of 138,000 Legionnaires when they march, sixteen abreast, down Michigan avenue on Oct. 3 as a feature of the American Legion convention to be held here Oct. 2 to 5. The parade will be the first of its kind ever to be operated entirely by radio. Arrangements have been made with the police department to transmit commands of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, grand marshal of the parade, from a central station to radios in police squad cars driving in every unit of the march.

Cutler Shoes

ON YOUR FEET ALL DAY? THEN WHY NOT CUTLER'S ARCH-HUGGERS?

KEEP DIVERSITY OF FAITHS, PLEA OF POET MacKAYE

Let Each Creed Preserve Its Integrity, He Says.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Percy MacKaye, American poet, dramatist, essayist, and biographer, and son of the great Steele MacKaye, pleaded for no union of faiths at last evening's session of the World Fellowship of Faiths in the Morrison hotel.

Instead, he gave the delegates from many lands this resounding slogan:

"Delight in diversity is the beginning of fellowship."

Not the hard and fast union of faiths, he thinks, is to be desired, but the preservation of their "beautiful diversities."

[Owing to indisposition from the heat, the poet's address was read for him by Mr. Edwin Bolleau, ethical lecturer, of Chicago.]

In an age of standardization Dr. MacKaye's plea for diversity strikes a new note, and the delegates applauded it heartily.

When Chaos Comes.

"Only by preserving the integrity of each faith," he insists, "can the harmony of all be realized.

"It is only when one faith would coerce another — and thereby shatter the elements of its own integrity—that chaos descends upon the contestants. And so the wars of all crusaders, of whatever faith, have been abortive.

"For diversity is Nature's law, and Nature can be neither coerced nor thwarted.

"No metric systems, however subtle, can substitute themselves for her poetic inspirations. No yardsticks of materialism can measure them accurately. No quantitative 'standards' can compute her spiritual values.

"Nature knows not 'standardization,' for her beautiful diversities are the evolutionary expression of her own elemental needs and are born of her divine fecundity.

"The Faith of Poetry."

Ever since his graduation from Harvard thirty-six years ago, Percy MacKaye has with single hearted devotion served the cause of poetry, often with little material reward or public acclaim. It was fitting, therefore, that the subject of his address last evening should be "The Faith of Poetry," for to that faith he has been true, and to it his contributions have been notable.

He delivered the memorable Harvard Phi Beta Kappa poem of 1908. His was the James Russell Lowell centenary poem. "Winged Victory"—inspired title!—in celebration of Lindbergh's epical flight, and the "George Washington Bicentennial Masque" were his. And for Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe he wrote "Jeanne d'Arc," the best historical tragedy of American authorship since John Howard Payne's "Brutus," and dedicated to the great Saint-Gaudens.

Poetry the Reconciler.

Hence it was an authentic poet who, to the World Fellowship of Faiths, acclaimed poetry as "the great reconciler of faiths" and "the faith of all faiths."

Poetry he defines as "the creative law of the imagination" and heralds it as "a natural law."

"Imagination," he said, "creates art. Logic incites argument. Under the dominion of logic alone, each racial group, each separate faith, discerns and glorifies its differences from all other groups and religions. But within the communion of the imagination all groups and faiths discern and glorify their similitudes.

Poetry Not Words Alone.

"Words are not the sole revelation of the faith of poetry.

"Every symbol of every faith is its utterance.

"A lonely cross on the twilit hill of Calvary; Apollo's dawn-gold head above the Parthenon; Prometheus' crag; Diana's bow-bright moon; Nirvana's cosmic navel of meditation — these have spoken the faith of poetry through its millions of votaries, even as today the silent distaff in the hand of Gandhi is eloquent uttering its parable of ancient folk art above the modern Babel of logic's forum.

"Christian and pagan, gentile and Jew — underlying and supporting all their creeds is the faith of poetry, the creative law of the imagination."

The inspiring message of the poet-leader of the famous artist colony at Cornish, N. H., closed with this plea:

"Thus the poetic principle becomes the technique of friendliness. In a contentious world, where so much else seems to have failed, may it become the great reconciler! 'Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you.' For that admonition implies the imagination to discover and reflect mutual similitudes — the will to put oneself in another's place.

"So, summing up all the laws and the prophets in one faith, Jesus uttered supremely the Faith of Poetry when he admonished each of us to 'love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart and with all thy mind and with all thy soul—and thy neighbor as thyself.'"

ACQUIT SLAYER OF BOY CAUGHT ENTERING AUTO

Walter S. Morton, a café owner, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Charles P. Molthrop's Criminal court yesterday on a charge of murdering George Staudt, 16 years old, 1522 Hollywood avenue. Because of complaints made by the father of the boy that his son was shot without any reason, Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley was appointed to specially prosecute the case.

Morton won acquittal through a defense made by Attorney James M. Burke that the youth was shot in the act of stealing his automobile. The automobile was parked in front of the Morton home, 5037 North Ashland avenue, on March 12. Morton said he looked from the window of his apartment and saw the youth entering his car. He fired from the window and fatally wounded the boy. Attorney Burke argued that the jury should not convict his client because to do so would encourage automobile thievery.

RETURN VERDICT IN SHOOTING.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday after an inquest into the fatal shooting of John Tinko, 19 years old, 5601 Blackstone avenue, who was wounded when he pulled a rifle out of a parked car Aug. 31.

PROTESTS COURT ACTION FREEING ALLEGED MORON

Witnesses Not Heard, Says Complainant.

The arrest of an alleged moron charged with annoying girl workers in the Mallers building at 5 South Wabash avenue and his subsequent dismissal in the jury court of Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry under circumstances criticized by the complainant came to light yesterday.

The complainant is John L. Johannesen, office manager of the building. John Casey, 35 years old, a laborer who gave his address as 1634 South Karlov avenue, was the defendant. He was not an employé of the building.

Johannesen charges that he and prosecuting witnesses were in court Tuesday and when he inquired why the case was not called he was told that the case had been called and the defendant discharged because no witnesses appeared. He then complained to an assistant state's attorney present, who told him, the office manager declared, that he had recommended the dismissal of the case to the court because the complaining witnesses were not present and because Casey's wife was in a hospital expecting a baby.

In Court with Witnesses.

"I was with the policeman who made the arrest and with other witnesses in court when Judge McGarry completed his morning session in the Racket court in room 1000 and went down to room 805 to take up the jury cases," said Johannesen. "At 1:10 o'clock a recess was called and Judge McGarry announced that he would call the jury cases, one of which was ours, at 2 o'clock.

"At 2 o'clock, after the first case was called and the selection of a jury began, I inquired of the clerk when the case of Casey, which was second on the docket, would be called. The clerk then informed us that Casey had been discharged.

"I had a representative in that court all day, and if this case was called it was not called so any one could hear it. I talked to the judge and to the assistant prosecutor, who claimed that a lawyer for the defendant had misrepresented matters to them. I then swore out a second warrant and hope that we will be able to bring this man to trial again."

Says He Can't Recall Case.

Judge McGarry said yesterday he had no recollection of the matter in view of the hundreds of cases he heard daily. According to the jury court records only five cases were on call on Tuesday afternoon. Judge McGarry sits in the jury court in the afternoon after completing his call in the Racket court in the morning.

A Municipal court clerk in the jury court, who refused to give his name, said he called out the Casey case very loudly. Records in the Municipal court clerk's office show that a John F. Maloney is assigned as clerk of the jury branch.

"I called the case about noon," said the jury court clerk. "The complaining witnesses were not present and the case was dismissed. But don't quote me. I don't want my name in the paper."

The Prosecutor's Explanation.

Julius Sherwin, the assistant prosecutor, said that a lawyer representing Casey had appealed to him in the Racket court to recommend a dismissal.

"He told me that the complaining witnesses were not present," said Sherwin. "I declined to recommend a dismissal, stating that the case would have to be handled with the proper procedure. When the case was called shortly after noon in the jury court no prosecuting witnesses were present and I agreed to a dismissal for want of prosecution. But I made no such recommendation to the court."

Casey was seized Tuesday afternoon on the second floor of the Mallers building, where he was allegedly exposing himself near the women's rest room. He was caught by Bernard Zimmerman, an assistant elevator starter of the building, after Gladys Cain, a beauty parlor operator, saw Casey and screamed.

Casey was taken into custody by Traffic Policeman James Biever, who was stationed at the time at East Madison street and Wabash avenue. The prisoner was taken to the Central station, where he was booked on a charge of indecent exposure.

SON OF DANISH KING MARRIES COUSIN AS TROOPS STAND GUARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 8.—Prince Knud, younger son of King Christian, was married tonight to Princess Caroline Mathilde, his cousin, at the royal chapel at Fredensborg. A strong guard was posted at the chapel while the ceremony was held to prevent any demonstrations.

Bunting and garlands, with which the streets of the village were decorated, were torn down last night. Communists were blamed. Today troops and detectives were on guard as visiting nobility arrived to witness the rites.

The princess wore a simple wedding gown, made by her own hands. The gown was practically covered with lace. She also wore a veil belonging to her great grandmother, Queen Louise.

The ceremony was attended by 60 royal guests, including the crown princes and crown princesses of Sweden, Norway and Belgium. Others in attendance were the grand duke and duchess of Mecklenburg and Prince Hubertus of Prussia, the third son of Germany's former crown prince.

The bride was attended by her sisters, the princesses Feodora and Alexandrine Louise; the Duchess Thyra of Mecklenburg and Countess Solms-Baruth.

Prince Knud, who is a naval officer, is 33 years old. The bride is 21 years old. She is the second daughter of Prince Harald, a brother of the king. The princess served an apprenticeship under a professional woman photographer.

"One never knows how things go in this world, so it is well to be able to earn one's own living if necessary," she explained to her friends.

Though residents of the capital are pleased with the marriage, it has been reported that the couple's engagement at first was opposed by the bride's mother, Princess Helena. She is said to have objected because of their near relationship.

NRA REVERSES ECONOMIC VIEW, EDUCATOR SAYS

Dr. Silas Evans, president of Ripon college, Ripon, Wis., last night told the members of the Fellowship of Faiths at the Morrison hotel that the world is seeing the development of a new Malthusian doctrine. Contrary to the famous doctrine enunciated by Malthus, the new principle demands "that we kill the producer to give rewards to those who kill their pigs, plow their cotton under, and limit their wheat crop while the children of men go hungry."

Dr. Evans pointed to the change in economic beliefs, which, he said, now center interest in consumption. Previously the economic viewpoint centered in production. Dr. Evans said that the NRA is founded on this change of viewpoint. Among the results of this change, the speaker predicted, will be the destruction of "the economic fallacies of enormous salaries and bonuses." "If the $100,000 salary given the head of one family were to be distributed to twenty families at $5,000 a year each it would account for 15 times as much consumer expenditure and therefore make for larger prosperity," he added.

JAPAN FINDS GANG THAT KIDNAPED U. S. MISSIONARY

TOKIO, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Hopes for the early release of Dr. Niels Nielsen, an American missionary, were expressed today at the foreign office, which announced that Japanese police had established contact with the gang that abducted Dr. Nielsen south of Mukden on April 11.

The foreign office announced the liberation of W. E. Hargraves, A. D. Blue, and Charles Johnson, British officers, who were kidnaped by Chinese pirates from the merchantman Nanchang at Newchwang on March 29.

The authorities did not disclose the amount of ransom paid for the officers nor the methods of settlement used. They were similarly reticent about Nielsen.

SULLIVAN DRAWS BATTLE PLAN FOR CRIME CAMPAIGN

Orders Habitual Criminal Act Used Freely.

A more general use of the habitual criminal act was ordered yesterday by Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan of the Criminal court as the ten judges of the court met and perfected plans to start the crime war going again at top speed next week. The campaign has been lagging for the last week due to the change in administrations in the courthouse, and the fact that the cases were not ready for trial. This situation, however, will be rectified next week, Judge Sullivan said after the meeting.

"Repeaters, who have demonstrated that they are unfit to be at liberty in any community should be indicted and prosecuted under the habitual criminal act," said the new chief justice as he ordered Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro, in charge of the grand jury, to use the law, which carries a life imprisonment sentence, whenever possible.

Law Worth the Expense.

"It is false economy not to use the venue situation where it is used by criminal has a record in some other state," continued the judge. "The small expense involved in bringing a witness from another state to prove the criminal's record should not stop the use of the act.

"I am sure the public will agree that it is worth the small expense involved to know that criminals of that type are locked up for life."

Prosecutor Spiro informed the judge that the use of this weapon had already been agreed upon by State's Attorney Courtney. In the past the habitual criminal act was not used when the criminal's record was in some other state because of the expense in getting witnesses to identify the criminal.

Task for Twelve Judges.

The judges at their meeting yesterday passed a resolution unanimously requesting that the executive committees of the Circuit and Superior courts assign at least twelve judges to the criminal courts until the calendars are cleared and cases can be disposed of as soon as indictments are returned. There are at present about ten cases on the court calendar which will take from two weeks to two months each to try.

Another point decided on by the judges was to remedy the change of venue situation wherer it is used by criminals solely for the purpose of obtaining delays. When a change of judge, to be tried that same day, it case will be assigned to some other judge to be tried that same day, it was decided.

"The judges plaged full coöperation in this campaign," said Judge Sullivan after the meeting. "We also decided to hold a meeting every Monday noon to exchange views and iron out any difficulties which may arise."

Chief Justice Denis J. Sullivan of the Superior court, who was one of the volunteer judges at the start of the campaign, visited the Criminal court yesterday. He indicated that he might return to the Criminal court for a time to help in the war against the criminals. He said he was in favor of putting enough judges in the Criminal court to "clean up the situation once and for all."

Sentence Four to Prison.

Judge Francis Allegretti, who is serving his first week as a volunteer on the crime bench, imposed four penitentiary sentences yesterday to bring the total to 264 since the campaign was started by Judge John Prystalski as chief justice of the court.

The first act of Judge Allegretti was to bring Gene Kellino, 26 years old, to trial on a robbery charge after the defendant had obtained 14 continuances in eight courts. Kellino was found guilty in short order by a jury and sentenced to one year to life by Judge Allegretti.

Joseph Gagliano, 18 years old, Kellino's alleged companion in crime, forfeited his $10,000 bond rather than stand trial. The two are charged with robbing Harry Fishman, 5056 Washington boulevard, of $57 on April 23. They were caught in the act by two west park policemen.

William La Vine, 23 years old, who committed three robberies, was also given a 1 year to life sentence for robbing the Gorman pharmacy, 1745 West 91st street, on Aug. 10. He pleaded guilty.

Sentences Two Burglars.

William Clayton, 24 years old, and Alfred Owens, 30 years old, both colored, were sentenced to 1 to 10 years each for burglarizing a grocery at 219 East 47th street on Aug. 5.

The first two prisoners who are expected to face indictment under the habitual criminal act were held to the grand jury yesterday in high bonds by Judge Green in the Felony court. They are George Davis, alias George Moore, 28 years old, who committed 18 robberies before he was arrested. He has been in the penitentiary twice. The other is Guy M. Baska, alias George West, 29 years old, who robbed nin Walgreen drug stores before he wr caught on July 15. He has served terms in the Colorado and Missouri penitentiaries.

KIDNAPER IS HIGHLY ENTERTAINED IN JAIL, SAYS DALLAS PAPER

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Dallas Times-Herald says serenades, singing, dancing, and other "high-jinks" kept Harvey Bailey, notorious criminal, pleasantly entertained during his stay in the Dallas county jail from which he escaped last Monday.

The paper says this was revealed after an investigation by federal agents as to how Bailey obtained the hacksaw blades and pistol with which he effected his escape.

Bailey was captured at Ardmore, Okla., four hours after he fled from the jail and now is held at Oklahoma City for trial on kidnaping charges in connection with the $200,000 ransom abduction of Charles F. Urschel, oil man.

At no time, it appeared, was Bailey long alone in solitary confinement. At first it was reported that Bailey's visitors were limited to a few lawyers, jailers, and newspaper men, but government agents learned that others had visited the cell, including a guitar-playing trusty who serenaded Bailey several times. In addition, the paper says, several Negro trusties entered the cell and danced and acted comedy parts.

Forest Camp Loses Lure for Most of Eastern Recruits

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The timbered west has lost its lure for some 4,500 of the 6,500 eastern members of the civilian conservation corps and they want to return home. Seventy-five per cent of the eastern recruits in this region asked for discharges at the expiration of the first six months' period, while the other 2,000 have indicated a willingness to reënroll, Maj. George Clark, commandant, said today.

JUDGE'S RULINGS DELAY WINDUP OF BELCASTRO CASE

Crime Reputation of Bomb King Told by Police.

Rulings by Municipal Judge Robert J. Dunne yesterday in the vagabond trial of James Belcastro, who is known as the "king of the bombers," hampered the prosecution so that the case was not completed. Judge Dunne is a son of Edward F. Dunne, former Circuit judge, former mayor and former governor.

Chief of Detectives Shoemaker was on the witness stand ready to testify against Belcastro. Attorney Elliodor Libonati, representing Belcastro, declared that the detective chief's revolver, which could be seen in its holster, might prejudice the jury against Belcastro. Judge Dunne agreed and ordered Schoemaker to remove the gun while on the witness stand. Schoemaker put it in the judge's chambers.

Tells His Criminal Reputation.

Schoemaker, Lieut. Arthur Katt and Lieut. Walter Storms gave testimony—interrupted by many objections—that Belcastro's reputation was that of a gangster, gunman, racketeer and manufacturer of explosives. Under a previous ruling by Judge Dunne the state was limited to proving Belcastro's bad reputation between July 10, the date on which the new law which declares any person "reputed to be a criminal" to be a vagabond, became effective, and Aug. 25, the date on which a warrant was issued for Belcastro's arrest.

Each policeman testified that during that period Belcastro's reputation was the same as it had been. Lieut. Katt said he had arrested Belcastro on a charge of murdering John Genaro and that Belcastro had been indicted on this charge, but not prosecuted.

Attorney Lebonati insisted that the policemen prove by records that Belcastro had violated any criminal laws between July 10 and Aug. 25. Judge Dunne sustained the attorney. Lieut. Katt mentioned Belcastro's nickname, "king of the bombers," and Libonati objected.

Libonati asked that the judge declare a mistrial because a newspaper containing references to Belcastro as "king of the bombers" was in the jury room. Judge Dunne refused. At the request of the state, and over the objections of Libonati, the jury was locked up for the night.

Reduces Suspect's Bond.

Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan of the Criminal court reduced the bond of Michael Massena, held on a vagabond charge, from $10,000 to $2,500. He said he did so in compliance with previous decisions by the state Supreme court. Judge Thomas A. Green, who issued vagabond warrants for nearly 100 gunmen, fixed bail for all of them at $10,000. Capt. John Stege, in procuring the warrant for Massena's arrest, referred to him as "a mad dog."

Judge Joseph H. McGarry issued 47 new vagabond warrants yesterday. Those named are all alleged pickpockets. He acted at the request of Chief Schoemaker.

HAIL COAL CODE AS BENEFIT TO MIDWEST MINES

Leaders in Industry See No Price Rise Here.

The national recovery code for the bituminous coal industry, laid down Thursday by NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, was hailed here yesterday as a boon to the coal business in Chicago and Illinois. It was predicted that, if it is adopted by the industry, it will cause a shifting of markets from the eastern field to those in this district and will cause no increase in the price of locally mined coal.

"The expectation of a change of markets is based on the additional cost of production that will be encountered under the code in the eastern fields, which are principally nonunion," said Andrew T. Murphy, publisher of Black Diamond, a periodical of the coal industry.

He recently returned to Chicago from a three weeks' attendance at the hearings held in Washington which preceded the framing of a code by the administrator.

Little Direct Effect in Midwest.

"If Johnson's proposed code is adopted there will be no change in the Illinois and Indiana fields," Mr. Murphy said, "because they have been operated under union wages all along. Furthermore, the workers here have a wage agreement which doesn't expire until March 31, 1935, and of course the national recovery act doesn't affect wage contracts.

"While I expect there will be no increase in the price of coal mined in this district, there will undoubtedly be a substantial raise in the price of fuel obtained in the West Virginia and central Pennsylvania mines, from which is produced a large proportion of the coal consumed in Chicago.

"Most of the leading operators from here attended the hearings in Washington, D. C., and have been fighting for the code. Their interest, naturally, is to force their nonunion competitors up to the same standard of prices the union operators must charge."

Affirm and Deny Millinery Peace.

While the Midwestern Millinery association announced yesterday that the shops of its members, closed by strike since Aug. 29, will be reopened Monday, Miss Carolyn Wolfe, an organizer for the International Union of Millinery Workers, asserted that an offer from the manufacturers had been rejected. The refusal was voted by the chairmen of shop organizations in factories where the strike has prevailed, she said. There will be a mass-meeting of millinery workers at 10 a. m. today at 1340 West Washington street.

The manufacturers announced they had mailed to all employés a circular listing a scale of wages ranging from 20 to 25 per cent above the scale paid during August when the local industry operated on the President's code with minimum wages of $13 for a 40 hour week. The new scale, which is based on the average worker, provides 55 cents an hour for trimmers and makers, 80 cents an hour for operators, and $1.10 an hour for blockers, with the 40 hour week and $13 minimum wage remaining in effect.

Teachers May Appeal to President.

An investigation by President Roosevelt into the working conditions of Chicago school teachers in preparation for the formulation of a code of fair competition for that field may be asked by the American Federation of Teachers, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Florence Curtis Hanson, secretary-treasurer of the federation, asserted that the proposed code will be worked over after conferences with leading educators and that it very likely will be submitted to the President with the request that he inaugurate such an investigation.

Dr. Henry R. Linville, president of the federation, who is now in New York, is expected to lead in the task of formulating the new code which will ask that teachers work 25 hours a week and be remunerated so that they may be able to afford suitable living conditions.

Chicago women are to be enlisted in the campaign to bring consumers 100 per cent under the Blue Eagle. Gen. Johnson has named Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's clubs, a special worker for the NRA. She will direct the women in a final house to house canvass in the drive, which is entering the final clean-up week. She will meet Monday with executives of the Chicago recovery council, which is sponsoring the campaign.

BRITISH WARSHIP TO TAKE BODY OF KING FEISAL HOME

Son, 21, Proclaimed New Ruler of Iraq.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A British warship will carry the body of King Feisal of Iraq, who died today at Berne, Switzerland, from an Italian port to Haifa, Palestine. From there a British Royal Air force plane will speed the body of the man who, with the famous Lawrence of Arabia, wrested a kingdom from the wreck of the Turkish empire during the world war, to Bagdad. The journey probably will begin Sunday.

King Feisal, who was 48 years old and a descendant of Fatimah, the only surviving child of the prophet, died of a heart attack. He had been in poor health for some time.

Creates Ticklish Problem.

From the viewpoint of British politics in the near east, King Feisal's death comes at a very precarious time. The handpicked Arabian ruler, who became king of Iraq in 1921 after he had been deposed by the French as king of Syria in 1920 because he failed to recognize French rights, never completely orientated his government towards the British, although until last October affairs in Iraq were administered under the supervision of the British colonial office.

As long as Iraq remained under a British mandate, Feisal was careful to keep a pro-Turkish feeling in his cabinet, balanced by an equal pro-British strength. For years he did an adroit job of serving both.

Hundreds of Assyrians Slain.

Recently the soldiers of Iraq were charged with butchering several hundred Assyrian Christians, who also had been allies of Britain against the Ottoman empire and who had been guaranteed sanctuary after the war. They have no home of their own. The killings occurred within a few days after King Feisal's return to Iraq after a state visit to London, during which he was the guest of King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham palace.

Crown Prince Ghazi, Feisal's 21 year old son, was proclaimed as his father's successor in Bagdad today with a salute of 100 guns amid hostile ministers. Of these undoubtedly the strongest is Gen. Yassin Pasha, minister of finance. Yassin refused to become a member of Feisal's cabinet until the British-Iraq treaty was signed a few years ago under which Britain undertook to recognize Iraq as an independent state. Yassin is an ardent Turkophile and an opponent of everything European.

Whether the new boy ruler will lean towards him or Prime Minister Arshic Ali Bey, who is a friend of England, has yet to be determined. The new king was educated in England.

ion officials, among them John Sheridan Jr., son of the big boss, and John Thibeau, 32 years old, 7515 South Honore street, secretary of the Ice Cream Drivers' union. Supervising Capt. John P. Stege, after questioning all the witnesses, said he was confident Thibeau was the man who shot and killed Tribble.

"It was a good job he did," the captain added. "This Tribble was one of the toughest hoodlums in Chicago. He may have been one of those who escaped the police trap laid several weeks ago for the kidnapers of Jake Factor. In fact, I think he was one of them."

The two men referred to, seeking to collect additional payments from Factor, eluded 250 policemen in a spectacular chase.

As for the motive that may have sent Toughy, Tribble, and their companion to the union, the police offered several guesses. Either revenge or revenue, possibly both, were behind the strange raid, they said, and the fact that both Touhy and Tribble were known to use narcotics would account for their brazen courage.

May Have Planned Kidnaping.

Trouble had been brewing in the Building Materials Teamsters' union, it was said, since Thomas Wilson was displaced as secretary and control assumed by J. R. Waldt, the president. Possibly, the police suggested, the Touhy mob intended to prove with arms that Wilson must be kept on the job. The second guess was that the Touhyites, who kidnaped Fred Sass, one of the Sheridan union's officials, several months ago, may have intended a second kidnaping.

It is common talk in the underworld that the Touhy mobsters at liberty are making desperate efforts to raise a defense fund for the kidnapers now in the government tolls and that they have been "putting the muscle" on saloonkeepers in their territories for this purpose. Thibeau, it was reasoned, might have been selected as a victim, or one of the Sheridans.

Find Rifle and Pistol.

In the union headquarters the police found a .30 caliber rifle and a pistol. Neither, however, appeared to have been fired recently. It is the police opinion that the weapon used to shoot Tribble was carried out.

The slain Tribble served a ten year term in the federal prison at Atlanta for mail robbery and three years in Joliet for bank robbery. In July, 1932, he escaped prosecution on a robbery charge in Oak Park by forfeiting bonds of $10,000.

JOHNSON HALTS REVOLT AGAINST COAL MINE CODE

Blusters, Then Resorts to Soft Words to Win.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson tonight abandoned the iron hand he waved over the coal industry yesterday, and with kid gloves strove to reconcile angered coal operators to the terms of the code he has arbitrarily prescribed for them.

At the end of a day which saw the recovery administrator explode verbally in a fashionable restaurant over a sharply worded letter from the indignant operators, he claimed to have "bridged over a very delicate situation."

But he was no longer emphatic in his declaration that the code he wrote for the coal industry will be imposed early next week. Tonight he stated that he will continue to seek the agreement of all interested parties before the code is clapped upon the industry. And he was ready to postpone the final hearing on his code for at least twenty-four hours in order to give the operators more time to voice their objections.

Both Make Concessions.

What led the irritated coal operators to cool off perceptibly at a three hour conference in Gen. Johnson's office late today remained a mystery that neither they nor the administrator would discuss. But it was apparent that both the coal men and the recovery head had made concessions.

Nor were the operators alone dissatisfied with the coal code written by the recovery administrator and laid down yesterday. Less perturbed, but far from happy was John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers. Protests from labor, it was reported, are to be filed in a more formal manner before tomorrow's 6 p. m. deadline for such action.

The repercussions to his arbitrary code, which broke out today in the camps of the mine operators and mine labor officials alike, threatened to completely nullify the six weeks of negotiations conducted in efforts to bring the coal industry harmoniously under a code.

Almost Collapses.

Suspended immediately were the negotiations between the labor men and mine operators on terms of basic labor contracts which Gen. Johnson regards as all important peaceful conditions in the industry. Settling the long standing unionization difficulties in the bituminous fields, the contracts are expected by the administrator to achieve a result which he has ruled cannot be achieved through the code itself.

Following the conference in Johnson's office tonight, however, it was announced that these negotiations are to be resumed.

Early in the day the coal operators held a meeting at a local hotel, at which the code laid down by Gen. Johnson was hotly discussed. The operators drafted a sharply worded letter to the administrator which declared, in effect, that they found the code so completely objectionable as a whole that it would be futile for them to detail their protests as the administrator requested.

Creates Scene in Restaurant.

This letter was dispatched to Gen. Johnson in care of one of the operators. Failing to find the administrator in his office, and being informed that he was at lunch in a well known restaurant, the operator-messenger took the letter there and handed it to Johnson. The administrator read it hurriedly and slammed it to the floor.

"This is an insult to the President of the United States," he shouted, as startled patrons of the restaurant turned to stare, and choice profanity split the air as he exclaimed: "Why those . . . revolving . . ."

Frances Robinson, the administrator's secretary and "girl Friday," who was lunching with him, strove vainly to pacify him. She retrieved the letter from the floor. The general snatched it from her and slammed it down again.

When he had cooled down somewhat, Gen. Johnson summoned the operators to a conference in his office later in the day.

Atmosphere Cools.

At the appointed time, they arrived, threatening to publish the letter which had caused Johnson's outburst, and avowing that they would never consent to the code provisions prepared by the administrator yesterday. When they entered his office, it appeared that the whole coal code situation, which yesterday was regarded as on the verge of solution, had blown up.

Three hours later the operators emerged smiling.

"What about giving us that letter now," asked reporters.

"What letter?" was the reply.

Nor would Gen. Johnson disclose its contents or discuss it in any way. He admitted having seen the document, but he protested that it was not in his hands when the coal operators left. The inference he gave was that they had withdrawn it.

"Everything is all right," he told reporters after the coal men had gone. "We are going right along."

Seeks an "Agreed Code."

Asked what objections the operators had made to his code, he replied:

"This is a very delicate situation and for once I'm going to close up on it."

"What about imposing this code?" a reporter inquired. "Are you going right ahead and put it into effect as you said you would yesterday, regardless of whether these men agree or not?"

"I'll consider I've failed if I don't get an agreed code," Gen. Johnson responded. "Of course, I'm going to get a code at any rate, but it'll be an agreed code if I can possibly get it."

Although neither the operators nor the administrator would give any intimation of the nature of the objections to the code, it was understood that they centered largely about the minimum wage rates which are stipulated in the pact on a district differential basis. Also objectionable to the operators, it was reported, is the 36 hour average work week prescribed for mine workers, as well as various provisions of the so-called "fair practices" section of the code.

The United Mine Workers were also reported to find the district wage differentials difficult to swallow. Of particular distaste to them was the differential allowed between the Illinois field which will pay $5 a day under the code and the western Kentucky field, which will pay only $3.84 a day.

"Next Move Mr. Ford's."

At the same time Mr. Ford's continued refusal to sign up under the auto code now in effect for the entire automobile industry and his failure to give any intimation of his plans kept popping up to disturb Gen. Johnson, despite his repeated assertions that the "next move is Mr. Ford's."

At his press conference today Gen. Johnson admitted that the United States district attorney at Detroit has full power under the recovery act to take penal action against Mr. Ford on his own initiative and without consulting Gen. Johnson, should Mr. Ford violate the terms of the automobile code.

Likewise, the general declared that should Mr. Ford be found in violation of the pact, the government will not hesitate to take immediate action against him. But no information that Mr. Ford has violated the code has yet been received at headquarters here, the general said.

FORD COMPLIES; WHY SIGN CODE, OFFICIAL ASKS

No Fight Exists Over the NRA, He Declares.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The dispute between the national recovery administration and the Ford Motor company over Henry Ford's failure to sign the automobile code today gave signs of fizzling out. There will be no fight to the finish between Ford and the NRA, according to a high Ford executive here, because, as he expressed it, "there's nothing to fight about."

"As we understand the recovery act, one doesn't have to sign the code in order to comply with its terms," the official said. "Nobody has to sign anything as long as the code provisions are observed. We're already doing that."

Ford, still secluded in his camp in the Huron mountains of northern Michigan, was represented as still hesitating whether to sign. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, had declared the public might "crack down on Ford" if he didn't sign, adding that the motor magnate couldn't get the NRA Blue Eagle unless he did.

"Fight" Result of Pressure.

Notwithstanding Gen. Johnson's statement, Ford executives believe the matter has been "blown up out of all proportion." They are inclined to suspect that Gen. Johnson is not wholly out of sympathy with Ford and that his remarks may have been the result of repeated pressure of questions as to "what are you going to do about Ford?"

In general, his associates maintain, Ford is in sympathy with the recovery program. His hesitancy over signing the code, they say, arose from questions in his mind over certain technical details. If he signed, it was understood, his books would be laid open to inspection by his competitors in the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, to which Ford does not belong.

Expected Back Monday.

Ford and his wife are expected back here Monday from their vacation. His son, Edsel, president of the company, has returned from his vacation in Maine. Father and son have had nothing to say on their NRA controversy.

Hundreds of letters on the company's stand have been pouring into the head offices at Dearborn, Mich., Ford officials revealed. Letters supporting Ford's position have outnumbered those condemning it, the officials said. Ford, they averred, has never objected to government examination of his books, but they did not know whether he would submit to examination by his competitors.

CONFESSES STEALING STAMPS.

Stanley Kostezewa, 21 years old, 5730 North Major avenue, an office boy for a stationery firm downtown, was arrested yesterday and admitted he had stolen $500 worth of stamps during the last three years, selling them to a man in Texas at a discount of 12½ per cent.

ADVISES MAKING NRA SUCCESS BY ABANDONING IT

Scathing Letter by U. S. Senator to Johnson.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—A United States senator—Henry D. Hatfield [Rep.] of West Virginia—has expressed his views on the NRA to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. Senator Hatfield this afternoon made public a correspondence between the recovery administrator and himself. The senator's letter is a blistering document, suggesting to Johnson that the NRA be made a complete success by its complete abandonment.

Gen. Johnson wrote to Senator Hatfield a few days ago requesting the senator's support of the National Recovery plan.

Johnson to Hatfield.

The letter which Gen. Johnson had sent to Senator Hatfield follows:

"I know you are aware of the efforts of the national recovery administration. A generous and sympathetic spirit of coöperation has been quite generally indicated by the public. Leaders in industry, labor, and of the people at large are accepting the plan for reëmployment with a faith and a sincerity that justify an expectation that the campaign will meet with success.

"Just now your leadership will have inestimable value and I earnestly solicit your constant support. By your public utterances and in the influence you exert within your state and elsewhere you can render a distinct service in behalf of the national recovery program, and in the same manner give us substantial encouragement as well.

"I shall welcome your suggestions and advice at any time."

Senator Replies.

The communication which Senator Hatfield sent in answer to the general was in part as follows:

"I assume that your communication is merely a circular letter sent in identical form to all of the senators. I want to assure you, sir, that I have every sympathy for your predicament. It must be trying to one who received his early education at West Point, and there swore to uphold and perpetuate the constitution, to find himself obliged to forgo the principles of government approved by the founders of this republic.

"Upon reflection, however, I find that there are a number of items touching your NIRA program in which I would be glad to coöperate with you to the fullest extent of my poor abilities.

"I will patriotically coöperate with you in sending a respectful petition to the President to exercise his legislative function of repeal and abandon this ghastly folly of industrial regimentation; for such is our present state of ignominy that by a single stroke of his pen all this economic madness called NIRA can be ended.

"Speculation and Profiteering."

"I will eagerly coöperate with you toward restraining the orgy of speculation now carried on under the absolutism of those who subscribed to and qualified under the NIRA, and in curbing the paradise of profiteering that the makeshift NIRA plans have precipitated.

"I will zealously coöperate with you in expelling from high places in our government such intellectual theorists as Prof. Raymond Moley, Prof. Rexford Tugwell, and others, who are characterized by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. as admirers of the red flag and principles of communism.

"I will respectfully coöperate with you in beseeching the President to adhere to his sound money pledge solemnly given before a great audience in the Brooklyn Academy of Music, to the end that we may avoid the disaster of further inflation and unsound money, thus preparing the way for a return to the gol dstandard and possibly saving our country from further miseries.

"Restore Anti-Trust Laws."

"I am yours to command in any effort to restore the anti-trust laws, so that monopolies of commerce, so dreaded by President Wilson, and which are now being set up under the auspices of the NIRA, may be avoided, thereby restoring to the small independent business man his right to survive and protecting the consuming public from extortionate price racketeering.

"Also, you may look for my full coöperation in cutting off these wasteful bounties to farmers, and for the abandonment of such disgraceful practices as plowing under 10,000,000 acres of cotton, government purchase and slaughter of 5,000,000 hogs, and, so I am told, government purchase of millions of pounds of butter for purposes of destruction.

"These practices are not in accord with my idea of sensible economy; they savor, according to my modest individual view, more of the atmosphere of the lunatic asylum, if there is any such an institution reserved for economic theorists who flout the beneficence of Providence.

"In short, sir, my idea of making NIRA a complete success would be to abandon it entirely. Smash these fetters that NIRA has fastened on our farmers, manufacturers, merchants, financiers, laboring men, industrial workmen, mechanics, professional, trades, and office people generally, and I venture to say America can recover swiftly by means of the stamina and the resourcefulness of a free nation. There were many positive signs of recovery before the advent of NIRA; hence we can only conclude that it is a needless impediment.

"Since the pliant, bewildered, submissive, terrorized congress of the one hundred days practically abdicated all of its legislative functions, I can scarcely see how the executive department would be in need of any further powers, as it now daily legislates for the entire nation.

"Assuming that it is not further power you desire, because NIRA bristles with powers of every description, so that the destiny of an entire nation is now committed to the caprice of a single individual, I beg to offer this one further suggestion, namely, that the swaggering bully rarely remains very long a popular figure in our national life.

"Do you not think it more compatible with the traditions of our government to avoid blustering and bulldozing; and do you not imagine that some persons resent such incautious allusions as that you recently made to the hanging of Danny Deever, which was construed as a reference to lynch law, which, according to the admonitions of history, ever was a game that more than one person played at?

"Recently I ventured to deplore publicly any resort to a boycott in support of NIRA, branding it as an intolerable species of social ostracism in time of peace. Afterward I was glad to note you had disavowed such an intent; but notwithstanding that assurance, I regret to learn that such boycotts are being carried out by your authority and under your name, and I can offer you incontrovertible proof of same, should you care to have it. This setting of neighbor against neighbor, I feel, can only lead to confusion and disaster. The administration, indeed, may learn to its discomfiture that the housewives of America are adepts at boycotting unscrupulous profiteers. And it is easy to imagine that many of the nation's housewives already are finding it difficult to keep up with the inflated prices that NIRA is causing.

"Counter to Spirit of America."

"Surely by this time you have seen enough of the inner workings of NIRA to realize that it runs counter to the oldest traditions and very spirit of America. It can never be satisfactory to a free people, and no amount of ballyhoo can make it so. Surely in your hearts you must be averse to the Russianizing of America. I note that you declared your intention of resigning in November. I hope that you will do so sooner, and that when you do you will frankly and boldly inform the nation, what you must know to be the truth, that NIRA never can successfully manage the affairs of a free people. In that connection I will gladly coöperate with you to restore to our postage stamps the face of the immortal George Washington, which has now been blotted out and replaced by the so-called 'soviet scythe.'

"Perhaps in writing you thus frankly, sir, I am a better friend to you than some of those whom you picturesquely allude to as 'chiselers,' who flaunt your bright colored insignia and then proceed economically to stab you in the back.

"In conclusion, let me absolve you of any intent to set up an advance alibi for the impending collapse of NIRA. I hope it is not the intent of your associates to blame the impending failure of NIRA on noncoöperation of the Republican party. I really want to thank you most cordially for the acknowledgment that there is in existence such a deliberative body as the United States senate. I thank you also for deigning to seek the opinion of a mere senator. I shall take delight in coöperating with you along the lines I have indicated."

KELLY, WHEALAN PLEDGE HELP TO RECOVERY DRIVE

Mayor Kelly and President Emmet Whealan of the county board yesterday appeared at a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago recovery administration and pledged their support to the efforts made by the administration to put the city back on its financial feet.

The purpose of the newly created body, it was explained by Chairman Newton C. Farr, is to "assemble the intelligent forces of the community to act with officials in studying the financial needs, resources, and opportunities, that the public credit may be made sufficient to meet the costs of essential services."

The administration proposes to find ways to increase the market for tax warrants and bonds, to review assessments and collections, and develop plans for consolidations of local governments. A general meeting, open to the public, will be held in the council chambers on Monday to promote these aims.

Among those present yesterday were Harry Joseph, president of the west park board; E. R. Graham, chairman of the committee on public expenditures; Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, and Assessor J. L. Jacobs.

TEXAS STORM AREA MENACED BY HIGH WATER

Harlingen, Tex., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A moderate rise in the Rio Grande river threatened today to inundate lowlands and fill the flood control system of the lower valley, which was swept by a hurricane Monday and Tuesday.

Fed by the San Juan river, which carried away torrential rains at Monterey, Mexico, the Rio Grande rose slowly from Rio Grande City, where the San Juan joins it, to Hidalgo, 40 miles away, and at Mission the water went into a floodway. The only danger to Brownsville and other cities on the river, however, appeared to be in a possible levee break.

The death list in the hurricane rose to 24 today with the finding of two additional bodies at Matamoros, Mexico. The injured total 500, but few were seriously hurt.

'Get Rich Quick' Benham Faces Bankruptcy Case

Belvidere, Ill., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—A. W. Benham [350 per cent Al], get rich quick promoter under many indictments here for confidence games, was cited today in federal court at Freeport in an attempt to force him into involuntary bankruptcy on judgment notes he gave here three years ago when he was reputed to have borrowed $100,000 on a promise to pay from twenty to fifty per cent interest.

Couzens' Son Resigns as Acting Mayor of Detroit

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Frank Couzens, son of Senator James Couzens, resigned today as acting mayor of Detroit in order to become a candidate for mayor in November. He became acting mayor when Frank Murphy resigned to become governor general of the Philippines. Councilman John W. Smith, a former mayor, now succeeds Couzens.

A. M. Morrissey, ex-Chief Justice of Nebraska, Dead

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Andrew M. Morrissey, 62, of Omaha, former chief justice of the Nebraska Supreme court and more recently an attorney in Washington for the controller of currency, died here tonight of bronchial influenza.

PHILOSOPHERS TOLD TO LEAVE FIELD OF SCIENCE

Realm of Vision Is Their Province, Speaker Says.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Philosophy must abandon to science the quest for certainty and take for itself the field of vision—vision of the possible and probable in the cosmic riddle, in the opinion of Prof. William Pepperell Montague of Columbia university, who lectured yesterday in the Paul Carus Foundation series before the American Philosophical association at International house at the University of Chicago.

While 200 philosophers met here to discuss the topics left to their narrowing field, a thousand psychologists, who have set up shop for themselves as the American Psychological association, were meeting in other halls of the university and reporting on matters of child psychology, aesthetics, human learning, sensation and perception, and other fields in which they have set up a scientific technique and seek certainties.

A Course for Philosophers.

Dr. Montague, who as Carus lecturer received the highest honor that can be conferred on an American philosopher, spoke on "Democritus and the Vision of a World of Atoms." He will speak today on "Plato and the Vision of Eternal Things." In outlining the series he struck boldly into a new course. Scientists want the earth, he said. Give it to them while the giving is good. The sea will remain for philosophers, the sea of beauty and wonder.

"As philosophers," he said, "we appear to be doomed. Province after province of our once mighty empire is being invaded. Natural scientists and social scientists, historians, grammarians and mathematicians hem us in and perform our one time business better than we can ourselves perform it.

"Where can we go and what can we do? We should rid ourselves once for all of our preoccupation with proving our theories and engage upon quite a different enterprise. I urge a sober and conservative cruise along the shores of fact, keeping within easy distance of the great landmarks of established knowledge and directing our imaginative vision only upon those possibilities which are severely pertinent to the truths already discovered and the truths that are still to come.

"In short, philosophy should be concerned not with bare possibilities—not the golden mountain and the moon calf or any idle fancy, but the real alternatives between which a later knowledge will or may decide."

"Vision Basis of Greatness."

It was the vision of Spinoza, Kant, and all the great philosophers which made them great, he argued, not the systems which they must defend with proofs.

"I hold with Douglas Fawcett," he said, "that the works of nature herself bear all the earmarks of creative imagination, and that a philosopher in using his imagination to evolve knowledge is using the same sort of power that nature has used and still uses to evolve reality.

"Much has been said or sung of a world as will and a world as idea, a world that is a senseless flux of sensory experience and one that is an objectification of absolute reason, a world that is the fortuitous effect of stone blind atoms and a world that is omnipotently created by a benevolent God. No one of these worlds nor any simple compound of them seems to me quite right.

"The universe and the life that colors and stains it are not too good and not too bad. Whatever its whole may be, it is in its constituent parts a great and terrible welter. The biological sky is more thickly studded with stabs of pain, of agony, and of defeat of every kind than the sky we know with stars. Pessimists as yet have scarcely scratched the surface of life's woe.

"Some Loveliness Everywhere."

"And yet in this same world some loveliness is everywhere. Great joys are had and great ideals are successfully fulfilled. All life is shot with meanings, and probably nonlife, too, could we but see them.

"If we are to follow the ancient custom and make God in our own image, or, to put the thought with less of hackneyed flippancy and more of modesty, if we are to conceive of natural powers on the analogy of our own natures, what phase of our make-up should we select? Where but in imagination? Yet that domain of mind is all but unexplored.

"Imagination is the womb within which are formed the ideas and ideals which are born into overt, conscious life, there to be dealt with by the decidedly secondary activities of reasoning and will.

Policeman Ends Flight of Texas Steer in City

Perils Hundreds

A red Texas steer ran wild for nearly an hour yesterday after it broke loose while being unloaded from a cattle car at the Omaha Packing company plant at 2320 South Halsted street. Hundreds of persons were endangered by the steer's rampage. Finally Policeman Peter Hughes of the Maxwell street station grabbed the tail of the 1,100 pound animal and threw him to the sidewalk near 18th street and Ashland avenue. Several persons sat on the prostrate steer, but it was dead, apparently from exhaustion in its flight and injuries, when a truck arrived to carry it away.

SKIPPER DENIES CHARGES MADE IN BLUENOSE SUIT

A denial of charges was made yesterday by Angus J. Walters, skipper of the racing schooner Bluenose, in an answer filed to the admiralty suit brought by Addison Stillwell, wealthy Chicago lumberman. Stillwell charged that he and his guests suffered various indignities while on a chartered cruise of the boat.

Skipper Walters denied that Stillwell or members of his party had been mistreated by the crew, or that the guests had been awakened at 4 o'clock in the morning by sailors swabbing the decks. He said that meals were "reasonably palatable" in answer to Stillwell's complaint that the food was poor.

The answer, which was filed in the United States District court, relates that the Bluenose captured the twenty-sixth annual Chicago - Mackinac island yacht race and was thereafter placed at the disposal of Stillwell. He said that Stillwell and his guests left the boat at Milwaukee and failed to rejoin it at Chicago.

Skipper Walters declares he offered his private quarters to Stillwell, although that offer was refused. Stillwell sued for $2,500, double the amount he paid to charter the boat.

MANIAC KILLS 2, WOUNDS 2, THEN ENDS OWN LIFE

Belfast, Me., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—A two gun maniac shot up the business section of this town during the lunch hour today, killing two men, seriously wounding two, and finally ending his own life.

The killer, Adrian Jones, had been considered "peculiar" for years, but relatives and acquaintances thought him harmless. Shortly after noon he appeared on Main street, waving a shotgun with each hand. A few wild yells set a general stampede for cover in motion.

Jones brought both of his weapons into action. The first shot killed Herbert E. Ellis, 65 years old, an insurance man.

"Well, I got him, all right," shouted Jones.

Jones ran down the street and into the offices of a trucking company operated by W. W. Blaisdell, 75, and his son, Raymond, 40. The son was slain, the father wounded.

Reloading as he ran, the maniac entered an office and shot R. B. Stanhope, a veterinarian, who may die.

Jones then eluded a posse and killed himself.

HEARING ON MILK CODE SUDDENLY HALTED BY U. S.

Factions Quarrel Over Clauses in Plan.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Hearing on the agricultural adjustment administration's Chicago milk shed code, which was reopened to permit producers to propose that retail prices of milk be raised from 10 to 11 cents with increased revenues to themselves, ended with surprises for everybody concerned today.

Summed up, the developments were:

1. Don N. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk Association of Producers, insisted prices paid his members be boosted from $1.75 per hundredweight to a figure nearer $2.

2. He also asked for revision of the milk classification, which, in effect, requires distributors to purchase their supply only from those belonging to or affiliated with the Pure Milk association.

Labor Enters Fight.

3. L. E. Hart, head of the Chicago Milk Council of Distributors, served notice on the government that his organization would not consider further price revisions until the government itself enforced the license provisions on so-called wayside milk dealers.

4. Herman R. Salen, manager of the Chicago Milk Area Products Shippers' association, composed of Wisconsin producers, announced he would "fight to the end" Geyer's proposals, which, he said, would completely force producers in his organization out of the Chicago market.

5. Robert G. Fitchie, head of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, and John B. Smith, head of the Dairy Employés' union, said they intended to "enter this fight right now" to see that labor obtained its share of price increases.

Even Examiner Is Surprised.

By the time Examiner Wright Clark ordered the hearing adjourned, leaders of the groups represented at the hearing, excepting that headed by Geyer, were explaining they were unprepared to go on because of "sudden developments."

Clark, appearing surprised, set aside 10 days in which all parties will be permitted to file answers and arguments. He said the administration expected to receive financial reports from every milk organization in the Chicago shed, "including stores and stands."

$29,250 AWARD IN OLSON CASE CUT TO $7,500

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The $29,250 a jury awarded Henry Olson in a lawsuit against Attorney Harry North had diminished to $7,500 today as a result of a ruling of Circuit Judge William J. Fulton.

The case was brought by Olson, once convicted of a murder, on the ground that while North was defending him he knew two other men were guilty of the crime. Later the two confessed the killing.

In reducing the amount of the damages Judge Fulton said the verdict was distorted and due to prejudice. However, he denied North a new trial, but allowed him the privilege of appealing the case.

FIREPROOF PLANE DEMONSTRATED; TEST A SUCCESS

BRUSSELS, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Robert van Rolleghem today demonstrated a miniature airplane which, he contends, is proof against fire and heat.

The demonstration took place in the courtyard of the Brussels fire brigade in the presence of aviation and fire officials. Van Rolleghem, a reserve air commander, was in the plane with two test mice and a full oil tank. The miniature was submitted to the intense heat of an oil fire, and the commander and his mice emerged unhurt after fifteen minutes.

One enthusiastic flyer, who witnessed the test volunteered to submit himself to a test in mid-air.

Junius Wood, Newspaper Writer, Granted Divorce

Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday granted an uncontested divorce in the Superior court to Junius B. Wood, a newspaper correspondent, from Mrs. Margaret Wood of Holland, Mich. They were married in 1908 and Wood testified that he made a property settlement with his wife at the time of their separation a year ago. He charged desertion.

RELIEF ROLL CUT 9.5%, BUT COST FALLS ONLY 3%

12,583 Families Taken Off List in August.

Although the number of families receiving relief through the Cook county bureau of public welfare decreased 9.5 per cent in August as compared to the July figures, the cost of relief decreased only 3 per cent. These statistics were made public yesterday in the monthly report of Joseph L. Moss, county director of public welfare.

In August there were 119,341 families on the rolls, a decrease of 12,583 from July, when 132,424 families were receiving relief. The families on the August roll represented a decrease of 58,794, or 33 per cent, from the March peak of 178,635 families. The cost of relief in July was $3,378,540. In August it was $3,250,853, a decrease of only $127,687.

Moss Explains Discrepancy.

In explaining the discrepancy Mr. Moss said that many people who had obtained work late in August were still carried on the rolls until they received their first pay checks. He also said that it was necessary to proceed slowly in cutting the bureau's staff, and that administrative expenses, included in the relief cost figures, would not show an appreciable decrease until it had been determined what cuts in personnel could be made.

The number of new applications for relief made in August was 9,796, an increase of 2,365 over the preceding month. Mr. Moss said, however, that the new applications included those of 1,944 clients who had been receiving relief from private charities.

Additional Expenses Listed.

Additional expenses incurred by the bureau were $646,461 for work relief, previously carried as a separate item by the Illinois emergency relief commission; $132,935 for expenditures through the central charity bureau service, and $59,132 in work relief for the 1,994 families previously supervised by private agencies. These figures bring the bureau's total relief cost to $4,089,381, but the total is not to be compared with the July figures because of the extra services included.

MILLIONAIRE IN JAIL AS GRAFTER, DENIED FREEDOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Sept. 8.—Spain's parliamentary commission for responsibilities, whose job is to define wrongs alleged to have been done the nation during the Primo de Rivera dictatorship, tonight decided by a vote of 10 to 7 that Juan March, Spain's multimillionaire, who has been in prison for 15 months on a charge of bribery and corruption, shall not be set free.

March stands convicted in connection with the monopoly for the sale of tobacco in North African towns.

March, long regarded as the uncrowned king of the Ballearic islands, last Sunday was elected a member of the constitutional tribunal, and it is expected he will regain his liberty as a result.

CARE OF IDLE UP TO LOCAL BODIES, PRESIDENT SAYS

Government Will Aid in Emergencies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Pleading that citizens continue to accept individual responsibilities and not rely upon the government to take care of everything, President Roosevelt today urged that local relief bodies work the harder during the coming winter to care for the poor and idle.

Addressing the 1933 Mobilization for Human Needs conference at the White House, the President said that the program for relief was "an essential part of the government's program—the program of the people of the United States—to bring us back to where this country has a right to be."

Mr. Roosevelt's address was one of a continuing confidence that the nation is pulling itself out of the depression.

Greater Effort Required.

Saying that this year's charitable campaigns should meet greater success than last, the President urged the charity workers present to "tell everybody that we are a little bit like the old railroad train that has to travel up a long grade. The first thing to do is to get that train started, and the more we can accelerate the pace of that train the more certain it is that it is going to get over the top. We have got the train started and it is running, let us say, 20 miles an hour. We must get that train to go 40 miles an hour, and then there is an assurance that it will go over the top."

Acknowledging that the federal government has, during past months, "entered into many fields of human endeavor that it has never participated in before," the President said:

"I believe we Americans do not wish to see a permanent extension of purely government operations carried to the extent of relieving us of our individual responsibilities as citizens, and it is with that thought in mind that very early in this administration we laid down in regard to the one portion of this great picture a somewhat simple rule."

U. S. Aid in Emergencies.

The President then reviewed his rule requiring that federal relief money would be given only after it had been shown that private, local, and state agencies all had failed to take care of a situation because of financial inability to do so.

Harking again to the theme that he expects eventually to restore private functions after the governmental emergency is over, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The whole period we are going through will come back in the end to individual citizens, to individual responsibility, to private organization, through the years to come. We are going to have unemployed throughout the United States and we know it. I hope, though, the time is going to come when government will not have to give relief. I hope the time is going to come soon when everybody who normally wants a permanent job is going to get it. And so I like to think of government relief of all kinds as emergency relief."

Some States Criticized.

Hitting at states which, he said, were not doing their share, but not naming any specifically, the President declared that there were a "great many examples of late of areas in this country which have not done their share, coming, hat in hand, to the federal government and saying: 'We want federal relief.'"

"There have been states," he added, "where the problems of relief have got mixed up with politics; legislatures that are thinking in political and not in human terms. There are municipalities which are going ahead with the spending of the taxes for political purposes and then finding they haven't any money left for relief purposes."

Reiterating his statement of the ability of the people this year to give more generously than before, the President said that the country, "taken by and large, is in a much more hopeful frame of mind."

AVIATION NOTES

The first of a fleet of Lockheed low wing all metal transport planes purchased by American Airways arrived at Chicago airport yesterday from Dallas, Tex., in four hours and 22 minutes. The plane carries 600 pounds of mail and express and the pilot, and has a top speed of 215 miles an hour, and cruises 750 miles.

United Air Lines announced a new service between Chicago and Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday. The plane leaves Chicago at 2 a. m. and reaches Jacksonville at 6:30 p. m., traveling via Washington, Richmond and Savannah over Eastern Air Transport.

BISTOR DROPS FIGHT AGAINST THE SKARDA ACT

Withdraws His Appeal to Supreme Court.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $1,742,485, making a total of $58,181,643 collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act was started on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Sept. 8.....$	36,308 $	59,033
Uncollected ...	17,809,028	47,910,510
	1930.	1931.
Sept. 8 .....$	154,647 $	1,492,497
Uncollected ...	74,535,873	87,334,756

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $1,241.

James E. Bistor, former official of the Real Estate Taxpayers' association and one of the leaders of the so-called tax strike, yesterday withdrew the appeal he had filed from a decision by County Judge Jerecki, which placed a property owned by Bistor in a tax receivership. Bistor, through his attorney, Ferre C. Watkins, had announced he would appeal the judge's ruling to the state Supreme court and attack the validity of the Kerner-Skarda act, under which the county treasurer was appointed receiver for the property to collect the back taxes.

The withdrawal of the appeal ends the last legal offensive pending against the Kerner-Skarda act. Master in Chancery Julius Miner of the Circuit court two months ago upheld the constitutionality of the act and denied a petition for an injunction to restrain Judge Jarecki and County Treasurer McDonough from enforcing it.

Fail to Carry Out Threats.

Attorneys for tax delinquent properties have threatened numerous times to take appeals from Judge Jarecki's appointments of the treasurer as receiver, but no appeals have been filed.

Attorney Watkins gave no reason for abandoning the appeal. It was understood, however, that Bistor considered the prolonged legal battle too expensive in consideration of his possible gain by victory in the Supreme court. The $250 bond that Watkins posted for the appeal last month was returned to him. The property for which the treasurer was appointed receiver is an apartment building at the southwest corner of 71st street and Constance avenue, on which taxes totaling $7,000 are owed.

Judge Jarecki had a record day yesterday, hearing 700 tax receivership petitions. He appointed the treasurer as receiver for 98 of the properties, which owe a total of $375,945 in back taxes. Attorneys for other properties paid more than $100,000 to avoid receiverships.

GREY AND THE WORLD WAR.

Viscount Grey, dead at seventy-one, was the British minister of foreign affairs who made the British entry into the war a foregone conclusion before his fellow countrymen generally had taken a serious thought of its probability. Even at the decisive moment it was news to some members of the cabinet that Great Britain had no alternative but to follow France. Others may not have been wholly outside Grey's thought and actions, but when at the critical cabinet meeting the question was put to him point blank, did Great Britain have a choice of action, he was constrained to answer that in his opinion it did not have. The foreign office had committed the nation to France. The decision lay in Paris and not in London.

Two resignations expressed the opinion of peace loving sentiment in the government, but Grey had rolled the dice. Possibly he could have done nothing more or less. He was not an eccentricity or an egotism. He was not hunting war. He was playing Great Britain's cards as best he knew how to play them and the understanding with France was his reinsurance policy if Germany could not be persuaded to follow the line of British interest. Soldiers in Europe, and elsewhere, are expected to play the game of alliances when they are allowed a hand in national affairs and Gen. Harry Wilson, a braw blade who loved a glorious shindy, at headquarters, had the war all arranged with Foch long before Grey had it provided for diplomatically. If Grey intended to fight it Wilson was right in having it already fought, but if Grey had left a loophole there would have been some difficulty in patching up the failure to fight the campaigns Wilson had already fought in his understandings with the French.

If Grey's disposition of British interest and destiny has any general interest it may come to the suggestion that foreign affairs could stand a little more attention than some nations give them, one such nation being the United States. A thought of Mr. Stimson reënforces this suggestion. This American secretary of state had enough irons in the fire to cause two or three wars. On his own he was making more policy than the United States was prepared to handle in two generations, proposing and disposing in world affairs without hindrance at home and in the grand manner.

Great Britain awoke to discover that it had no decisions to make. All had been made for it by a quiet little man whose one pretension was fly fishing and whose career was in foreign affairs.

THE NEW VAGABOND.

An important phase of the campaign against professional crime in Chicago is the attempt to discipline gangsters and gun toters. The new procedure is based upon an amendment of the statute of vagabonds. The old definition of a vagabond, framed upon conditions of sixty years ago, has been enlarged to include "all persons who, not being persons authorized by law to carry concealed upon or about their persons deadly weapons, are reputed to be habitual violators of criminal laws of this state or of the United States, or to habitually carry concealed on or about their persons or in motor vehicles or other conveyances, pistols, revolvers, or other firearms, or blackjacks, slingshots" [etc., etc.] "and all persons who are reputed to act as associates, companions, or bodyguards of such persons reputed as aforesaid to be such habitual violators of the criminal laws of this state or of the United States."

Under this definition the police are arresting and the courts convicting men of the class popularly known as gangsters upon testimony, chiefly of the police, as to their repute.

It is objected to this law and procedure, and the objection will soon be tested, that this is a departure from American principle and the first instance of conviction for reputation. It is argued that it will open the way to the persecution of respectable if uninfluential citizens upon vague grounds, and is a denial of due process. It is also contended that it is an unnecessary extension of police power and that the evil to be remedied could be reached by more honest and competent police service.

No doubt these objections will be given judicial consideration, but, pending decision, it is proper to remark that they express exaggerated fears and underestimate or ignore conditions with which society must effectually grapple for its protection. Any law is subject to perversions and we must rely upon public opinion and competent administration to correct them. The amendment in question seems to us to be carefully phrased to describe existing conditions and meet notorious evils. There is a class of malefactors, individuals of known evil association and habits, which has been able largely to escape conviction for criminal acts. No doubt conviction has often failed because of inefficiency or corruption in the administration of the law, but in the original law against vagabonds it was recognized that there existed in every community persons whose way of life was dangerous to the security and welfare of the community, whom it was expedient and lawful for the agencies of public protection to supervise and restrain. This principle was expressed in the statute on vagabonds and sustained by the courts. But modern developments have called for an extension of the principle to new conditions and we cannot see that the public policy upon which the earlier law was founded has been departed from in the amendment.

Conditions of organized, professional, habitual evil living and law violation have become intolerable. If we are to allow anything to emergency, here surely is an emergency of which, it seems to us, it is the plain duty of the courts to take judicial cognizance. The former powers of the police and courts to repress the former methods of criminality have been proved inadequate. The protection of the innocent from the abuse of authority cannot be found in the automatic operation of statutory terms but in the public conscience which will rebuke abuse. Legal authority must be adequate to deal with actual conditions.

CONSUMER VS. PRODUCER.

A Massachusetts congressman wants the charter of the Chicago Board of Trade revoked because the board placed a minimum price on wheat, making the cost of brown bread and muffins to the Lynn shoemakers higher than would have been the case in a free market.

The congressman will get nowhere with his criticism because the regulation of the grain exchanges rests with the secretary of agriculture, who is striving to put prices up. He certainly is not going to punish an agency which kept prices from going down.

The complaint of the congressman serves to emphasize the conflict of interest between the city consumer and the farm producer. The efforts of the national administration have been directed toward getting a larger share for the farmers. The city people must pay not only higher prices because of an artificially created shortage but must pay taxes to reward farmers generously for creating the shortage.

The farm bloc in congress has for a number of years had the support of the union labor bloc. Indeed, the state of Minnesota is still represented in the senate by a member of the "Farmer-Labor party." The supposed community of interest between the farmer and the laborer lay in the fact that politicians had convinced them that they had a common enemy, the banker and the capitalist.

Most communities now have enough busted bankers and business men to destroy the illusion which formerly existed about the so-called moneyed classes. The inconsequential vote polled by the Socialist and communist parties in the last election demonstrates the passing of the feeling against the rich which formerly prevailed in cities.

And now the urban workers see that their conflict of interest is with those with whom they were asked to join in political action. The farmer gets more for his hogs, wheat, milk, and cotton, but the higher price comes out of the pocketbook of the factory employé.

When the city man sees clearly that his cost of living is being put up by a law passed with the aid of his own congressman, a realignment of the congressional blocs will result. The dissolution of the farmer and labor partnership at Washington seems inevitable.

BEER AND TEMPERANCE.

H. L. Mencken utters a timely and sensible warning against the overtaxing of beer. Perhaps it will be as ineffectual as the protests against other impolitic and excessive taxation, but we agree with him and have hitherto said that in the interest of temperance our zeal for new revenue should be kept within bounds in beer taxation. If beer taxes must be met either by unduly raising the price of a drink or lowering its quality, beer drinking will be discouraged and the alternative is not water or pop. Says Mr. Mencken:

"Plainly enough, the consumption of beer ought to be encouraged as much as possible, especially in view of the early repeal of the 18th amendment. The thing we have to fear is the revival of whisky drinking, an unmitigated evil. Make beer cheap and good—give us a really big glass for a nickel—and very few will turn to whisky. But keep it expensive and the distillers and the bootleggers will do a landoffice business."

We ought not to rely upon the advantages now derived by beer from the first reaction from bootlegging and prohibition. In the long run if beer is to become a popular beverage and a check upon the revival of whisky drinking it must be of good quality and low price. Professional teetotalism will not acknowledge the public benefit to be derived from substituting a habit of beer drinking for the traditional American preference for hard liquor, but people who take into account the real requirements of a practical temperance policy will respect the claims of beer.

Editorial of the Day

[The New York Sun.]

An excellent account of the origin, rise and personnel of the brain trust appears in the Redbook magazine for October. Its authenticity cannot be doubted, for the author of the article is one of the trust, Charles W. Taussig, the greatest American authority on molasses. He was at Hyde Park last Labor day. So were Messrs. Moley, Berle, Tugwell, Johnson, and Rosenman. The wife of the Democratic candidate for President was giving a hot dog party near the swimming pool at the Roosevelt cottage. Some twenty newspaper men reclined in bath suits:

> Long links of sausages were being taken off the griddle. Mrs. Roosevelt was neatly severing them at their points of conjunction and passing them around. It was during this process that the historic event took place. Prof. Berle, who had been silently observing the separating process, arose and, in the best manner of the pundit that he is, remarked, "It is precisely this separation of control from ownership which makes possible tremendous aggregations of property."

Mr. Taussig fails to couple this "historic event" with Newton's observation of the apple's fall, but the parallel is obvious. Naturally, as the historian goes on to say, "these burning words . . . caught the entire assemblage off their guard." The proper hush was followed by "astonished murmurs." Of course, the news men were in a huddle. This was no ordinary group of advisers, they agreed. The problem was, how could these men best be presented to the public—how should they be designated? It was Kieran of the New York Times who solved it, and so evolved the now historic brain trust.

Mr. Taussig tells much about the trust, which includes many members besides those who were with Prof. Berle when the severance of the links provoked th utterance of a blinding truth. But it is the historic sausages which remain on the fork of memory or lurk forever within the split roll of immortality. O fortunate event, O happy—let us not say felix—frankfurters!

PAGAN STORY.

They say of Endesthora, King of Egypt,
That he once journeyed where the sky joined earth,
There to meet his God, at the horizon,
And learn from Him how great had been his worth.

Behind him walked Traubation, Argune, Bemis,
And fear went with them, for their history ran
That each would fall beside the way in misery
If he had done an unkind thing to man.

Suddenly Argune, they say, was missing,
And Endesthora said of him, "'Tis well,
For he was seldom merciful in victory;
A man like that no doubt belongs in hell."

Then Bemis disappeared along the wayside
(Or so the old, fantastic story runs),
But Endesthora was not drowned in sorrow,
For Bemis longed for glory at his guns.

A little farther on Traubation vanished.
"Oh, what," said Endesthora, "can this mean?
Traubation was a gallant, worthy fellow;
Why couldn't he have reached his earthly dream?"

And then a God appeared and told the Emperor
To enter through the curtain of the sky;
"And where are all my brethren?" came the question;
"I do not wish to enter if they die."

"Your friends are here before you," came the answer;
"I tried but to explore your human soul."
Then Endesthora suddenly remembered
His dog, and asked if he had reached his goal.

"You know," the God replied in angry fashion,
"That dogs can make a sacrifice unclean";
"But I know, too," the King replied with promptness,
"That inappreciation's vastly mean.

"Ingratitude to man or beast is sinful;
That dog has been the truest of my friends."
"Then let him in," the God replied most kindly,
And there, they say, the pagan story ends.

TWO HUNDRED WAITERS engaged in a footrace out at the Fair, carrying a tray containing a bottle of beer, glasses, and a roll of bread. They ran like mad for a mile and a half and never spilled the beer. Waiters never spill beer or hot soup in a footrace. They ought to make the waiters practice standing, too, as well as footracing. It's when they're standing and not when they're running footraces that I fear 'em most. For that's the time they spill hot soup down the back of my neck.

PSORIASIS.

A PERSON with psoriasis might just as well train himself to disregard his disorder. This is the rule.

Psoriasis is a simple, chronic skin disorder which causes but few symptoms. It is apt to take the form of an unsightly eruption, but there is compensation in the fact that it generally develops on parts of the body that nobody but the owner of the skin has any business looking at. The round, scaly, and sometimes slightly raw psoriasis patches develop on the legs most frequently. They often appear on the trunk and frequently the arms are the locations of choice. All of these areas can be kept covered without causing talk.

Usually there is some itching and that may lead to the indulgence of scratching. But mild itching is of minor consequence, and scratching is a luxury which a person with psoriasis can restrain himself from indulging in.

Psoriasis does not lead to any very important disorder. Nor is it an evidence of anything being radically wrong with the human economy. On the other hand, treatment of it is troublesome, prolonged, expensive, and generally ineffective. These are the several reasons for the rule.

But every rule has exceptions. Sometimes psoriasis patches develop on the face. They may appear in the hair. Occasionally there is a person who wants to take treatment for some other reason and who is able to justify the experiment after weighing the matter pro and con. There are some who are cured by becoming nudists. Going around clad in the altogether is possible among people who are willing to go away off from others. Some with psoriasis who have followed this plan have had relief.

Dr. J. F. Schamberg of Philadelphia has been advocating a certain line of dieting for many years. Some German physicians make use of a dieting plan of treatment differing considerably from that used by the Philadelphia skin specialist. They permit no fats and greases. In their diets there are no eggs, butter, cream, lard, oils, fat meats, nuts, or dressings that contain greases. Their patients get their food supply from breads, cereals, potatoes, and other sugars, sweets, and starches; from lean meat, skim milk, skim milk cheese, and other protein substances. They get vitamins and minerals from vegetables and fruits. Whatever treatment for psoriasis is made use of it must be accepted as being experimental.

2. What are the symptoms?
3. Is there any cure?
4. Is it ever fatal on short notice?
5. What causes tachycardia attacks?
6. Is there a cure for this?
7. Are these attacks ever fatal?
8. Can they be overcome?

REPLY.

1. Inflammation of the heart, caused by rheumatism. Theoretically it is not the same as rheumatic endocarditis, but practically it is. When rheumatism affects the heart it affects several parts rather than the endocardium alone.

2. Rheumatism in joints, fever, some rapidity and weakness of pulse, abnormal heart action as shown by the heart sounds heard with the stethoscope.

3. Yes. Many cases get well. Many get very nearly but not entirely well.

4. The danger of that is not great.

5. Tachycardia means rapid pulse. Rheumatic carditis is one and a very important cause.

6. Yes. It is only a symptom and the cause of it may not be very important.

7. If fatality results the cause was something other than tachycardia. That symptom may be present in some serious conditions.

8. Yes.

TIMBER PILE REMOVED.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—What right has a local contractor to pile his elevating and excavating timber in the street between the street curb and the sidewalk to a height of six or seven feet, obstructing the view of pedestrians? This timber has been piled there for the last three years and furnishes an excellent hiding place for thieves and purse snatchers. A. A. S.

Officers who investigated this complaint report that they interviewed the owner and informed him of the objection to this piling of timber. The owner immediately started to have timbers removed and promised that he would remove all the obstructions. As to this being a hideout for thugs and purse snatchers, it is reported that no crime was committed in this location during the last year. However, we will continue to give the complaint attention.

PROPERTY DESCENT.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A man and wife own property in Wisconsin. They have children. Later the man marries again. They have children also. The name of the first wife appears on the deed. In case of death of the father, could the survivors of the first wife, she being dead, claim title to the property, or has the second wife entire right, her name not appearing on said deed? 2. In this same case, if a will is made by the father leaving all to the second wife, except what is mentioned for the children of the first marriage, does that give his wife undisputed claim to the property? M. M.

1. If you mean that the husband and wife are named as grantees, the presumption would be that each owned one-half. If the wording is such that the title is "joint," then all would go to the survivor. Otherwise, each one-half would descend to the heirs of the one owning that one-half.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

S. F. asks: As I understand the government's wheat reducing proposition I would be penalized by signing up for my North Dakota farm, since the wheat crop this year was almost a failure. Am I right?

Answer: The county wheat committee in your county is expected by the government to make adjustments in allotments of wheat on which you will be paid, so that you would not be penalized by signing the contract. You need only to show them the acreage planted and proof of crop loss.

H. G. asks: The leaves and outer branches on my pear trees are turning black and falling off. What causes this and how can I stop it?

Answer: The damage is caused by a blight and the only remedy is to cut off infected parts and burn them before it spreads. Spraying does not control blight, but kills off insects that might be spreading the disease.

M. L. A. asks: It looks to me as if my neighbor would be better off by not signing up the wheat contract, since he can produce all he wants to, while I will have to cut down my acreage the next two years.

Answer: The benefit which you as a contract signer will be offered under the government plan is a premium of about 28 cents a bushel on an average crop, no matter if it should be a failure, while your neighbor can expect only the current market prices. In a recent statement published by the department of agriculture, signers are promised that "the secretary of agriculture intends that producers who sign contracts shall fare better than those who do not. All the powers granted under the agricultural adjustment act will be used to accomplish this end."

F. L. C. asks: What can be done to destroy the chinch bugs in my corn and barley fields? Will they not be worse than ever next year?

Answer: State entomologists from three states have been studying control measures for the bugs and report that cornstalks and all grass, weed, or grain fields be burned over this fall as soon as the bugs start into the grassy areas and fence rows to lay eggs and winter over. Unless killed this fall the damage next year will be increased, as one bug is capable of reproducing five or ten thousand in a year's time.

NRA Question Box

Following are some typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers, as given by Paul Kunning, secretary of the Chicago Recovery council, the new federation of 138 big Chicago business and civic organizations, which is aiding President Roosevelt's economic rehabilitation movement here. Other questions, as presented by Chicago's business men and consumers, and their answers by Mr. Kunning, will be given daily. The Chicago Recovery council is headed by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

QUESTION—I am an usher in a motion picture theater. Has a code for theaters been approved? If not, why are they displaying the NRA emblem without complying with its requisites?

ANSWER—A code for the entire motion picture industry will come up for hearing on Sept. 12. Your employer is displaying the NRA emblem, which means that he signed the PRA, which is a contract with the government which he is expected to keep. If it is possible, point out to him that he is liable to very severe penalty for violation. That may make him see the light. If this does no good, submit a report in writing to NRA headquarters in Chicago, 201 North Wells street.

QUESTION—Is there a code for the corset and brassiere industry? If so, when was it approved?

ANSWER—There is such a code and it was approved by the President on Aug. 14. It contains regulations for respective hours and wages and in addition sets up a standard of business practices.

A KINDLY CITY.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 5.—By writing this letter I wish to express the appreciation of myself and family of the kind and courteous treatment given us while we visited Chicago and A Century of Progress.

My ten year old daughter is a victim of infantile paralysis and it is necessary that we take her about in a wheel chair. At first we feared this would not be possible, but on the contrary every one did everything to make our visit pleasant.

The downtown traffic officers made special efforts to see that we crossed the streets in safety. A mounted officer stationed at the Link bridge was especially courteous by escorting us across Michigan avenue. At the Chicago theater, even though a large number of people were waiting in the lobby, an attendant, unsolicited by us, took us through a side entrance and saw that we were comfortably seated. Carson Pirie Scott and Marshall Field's elevator operators allowed us to take the little girl on an elevator that made no other stops until reaching the floors that we desired to visit. In the Exposition grounds the same kind of consideration was shown us in every exhibit and concession we visited.

I assure you all of this made a little afflicted child's trip to Chicago and the Exposition one of the happiest incidents in her life. And her parents wish to take this means to express our gratitude to Chicago and A Century of Progress.

HENRY A. EMIG.

CHICAGO'S HOSPITALITY.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 6.—I have been unable to get out of my mind your editorial of Sept. 1, "We Americans," commenting on the editorial "Chicago Hospitality," from the Evening Ledger of Mexico, Mo. I heartily agree with everything the Missouri editor says. When I returned from the Fair about a month ago I stated that, great as the Fair is, what impressed me most was the changed attitude of Chicagoans. I told several times of a waitress at the Schlitz restaurant on the island who, replying to an elderly man who wanted chewing tobacco, apologized to him for not having any and really made him feel that it was not an unexpected demand.

Your own editorial, however, makes me feel that you do not appreciate the real situation. Chicago has changed, but the rest of the country has not. Real northern hospitality—the hospitality of the lumber woods and the farming districts—like the hospitality of the western plains and mountains, exists today just exactly the same as it did for years. The northerner and the westerner always had time to do a kindly act for the stranger in his city. Chicago has just reached that stage of development. It took A Century of Progress to bring Chicago to the stage of development in hospitality that was reached by the surrounding country many years ago and consistently maintained. Let us hope that Chicago will not recede after the Fair from the high point in that respect it has now attained.

I have been going to and through Chicago for twenty-five years. The Pullman company has made quite a bit of money out of my studied efforts to avoid spending a night in Chicago and thereby avoiding contact with hotel clerks too ignorant to understand and too self-satisfied to care anything about the desires of a traveler. I have not attended a show in Chicago for ten years or more. I could not enjoy the best show because of my frame of mind after buying a ticket from the subnormal individuals selling them in the Chicago theaters.

If the Fair has really taught Chicago to be tolerant and just ordinarily courteous I may be able to go to Chicago in the future for pleasure and cease planning my business trips so as to make my time in Chicago as brief as possible.

GREEN BAY.

AN UNUSUAL GARDEN IN BOSTON.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 24.—Recently a very unusual garden has been made in Boston in the public garden. It is most instructive as well as interesting and it is attracting the attention of people of all ages. A stand, describing the various plants [more than 30 different varieties] in the inclosure and telling the economic uses of them, has been placed near this garden. Each variety is numbered and one has only to look at the writing on the stand to discover the name and native country of each plant. It is remarkable to see black pepper, ginger, calabash [the fruit shell of which is used for pipes], tobacco, aloe [the fiber of which is used in commerce], bowstring hemp [from the East Indies], peanuts, cocoa, bananas, cotton, sage palm, camphor tree [of China], date palm, pineapples, New Zealand ti [from which a substance like saccharin is extracted], vanilla plant [of Java], avocado, sugar cane, etc., flourishing in one garden.

Perhaps the park authorities in your city would like to have a similar garden to instruct the school children as well as the adults. There is an old Chinese proverb which tells us that it is far more beneficial to see anything than to merely hear about it. All garden lovers would be interested in this educational garden.

VIRGINIA WAINWRIGHT.

MORAL REFLECTIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—The NRA, from what we are told, depends for its success upon the integrity of the people at large. Without a spirit of fair dealing and square shooting on the part of every one there obviously can be nothing better than industrial chaos as an outcome.

What reason have we to believe, considering the revelations of the last few years, that we as a nation have integrity? From bank operations to the operations of labor unions we know that the whole country has engaged in sharp practice, graft and an utter disregard of anything but personal betterment, no matter how cheap or crooked the means.

Before we become ready for such conscience calling arrangements as the NRA it might be well for the nation to take a bath and get some of the dirt off our necks. It might be well also for the government itself to stand out a little further in the light of fair dealing and to place above the door that ancient precept "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." J. M. M.

THE WEATHER IN '93.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Now that the weather man has been duly crowned "Chief Fair Weather," a well merited reward, some of us would like to check up on the 1893 World's Fair weather. Will you be good enough to let us have comparative figures of average temperature, rainfall, etc.? Who was the Chicago weather man then? Was it Mr. Cox? My recollection is that he did pretty well during his long tenure in the Chicago weather bureau. STATISTICS.

AUTOS AS HITCHING POSTS.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Cannot something be done to prevent mounted policemen from tying their horses to parked automobiles? They seem to think a headlight is a tying post. The finish on my front fender and hood was practically ruined from a horse rubbing his bit against them. No doubt many a motorist has wondered how his parked car became scratched. HARRY WIGGINS.

GETS 5 YEARS IN CELL FOR UNKIND WORDS ON NAZIS

Berlin Court Also Sends 3 Others to Prison.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—Johannes Gommert, a laborer, was sentenced to five years in prison by a Berlin court today. He was found guilty of making disparaging remarks about the recent Nazi party convention at Nuremberg. Three other men received sentences ranging from 18 months to two years for similar offenses.

Reports from Papenburg today said that a communist prisoner, named Esterwagen, had been shot to death while attempting to escape from a concentration camp. A guard shot and killed him when he refused to halt as he was running across a field.

A total of 340,000 idle found work in Germany during August, reducing the number of unemployed to 4,128,000, according to official figures published today. This represents a decline in unemployment by 1,886,000 since January. Fifty thousand less men were employed in the iron and steel industry partly due to the introduction of a 40 hour week. More than 250,000 youths are now occupied in labor service, it was announced.

Germany Presents Apologies.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The German government expressed its "deep regrets" today over the attacks by Nazis on two American citizens, Samuel Bossard of Chester, Pa., a student, and H. V. Kaltenborn, son of a former editor of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

"The foreign office," said an American embassy announcement, "presented orally to Ambassador Dodd the deep regrets of the German government at the attacks, and informed the ambassador that these cases had been turned over to the police and to officials of the Prussian ministry of interior, with instructions to take the most drastic action possible in the premises."

Austrian Officers Desert.

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 8.—Two Austrian army officers, Lieut. Bruno Fuschelberger of the Third Alpine regiment and Lieut. Theodor Schwarzluegel of the Sixth dragoons, surrendered themselves to Nazi headquarters today. They received a hearty welcome.

The officers, who said they expected others to desert, explained they had deserted because they feared the time was approaching when they might be called upon to fire on "German brothers." The officers claimed that a majority of officers in the Austrian army are Nazi supporters. The Nazis issued an appeal tonight urging German citizens to support Austrian Nazis in their fight against the Dollfuss government by keeping them well informed through letters and newspaper articles of what is achieved under Chancellor Hitler's régime.

Austrian Cabinet Faces Split.

VIENNA, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The rivalry of elements within the cabinet of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss pulling in opposite directions, hourly is coming into sharper relief.

Fascist heimwehr [home guard] leaders who are demanding ruthless action against the Nazis "with fire and sword" and establishment of a one party government similar to Italy's have been in almost continuous conference since the return of Prince Starhemberg, leader of the heimwehr, from conferences with Mussolini.

Meanwhile Vice Chancellor Winkler was rushing preparations for a big rally on his "national corporative front" at Graz on Sept. 17, under the slogan of peace with Germany and absorption of constructive elements of Nazi youths into a broad nationalist front instead of mere suppression of Hitlerism. Graz is the capital of Styria, where a strong heimwehr organization recently repudiated Prince Starhemberg and joined the Nazis.

The belief is growing that the point is rapidly nearing when Dollfuss will be unable longer to reconcile existing differences and must choose between one or two roads or resign.

STEVENS TRIAL TRANSFERRED TO JUDGE FEINBERG

The trial of James W. Stevens and his son, Ernest J. Stevens, former officials of the bankrupt Illinois Life Insurance company, on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $1,000,000 of the company assets, was transferred yesterday to Judge Michael Feinberg of the Criminal court. The case has been set for hearing Sept. 18.

Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan, to whom the case was originally assigned, transferred it because of his new duties as chief justice.

Attorney Franklin J. Stransky, counsel for the younger Stevens, said an audit of the company's books would not be completed until about the end of the month. Attorney J. Fred Reeves, representing James Stevens, said the father is still ill and will not be able to go to trial Sept. 18. Assistant State's Attorneys John O'Hora and Earl C. Hurley said they would not agree to another continuance.

OPEN CAMPAIGN TO KILL RAGWEED IN VACANT LOTS

Authorities Appeal to Property Owners.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Owners of vacant property in Chicago and the suburbs are being appealed to by medical and civic organizations to destroy ragweeds which are now going to seed in large quantities throughout Cook county. The appeal is made both as an aid to sufferers from hay fever and as a means of checking the spread of noxious weeds into gardens, lawns, and parks.

Some suburban garden clubs have announced that arrangements have made with municipal authorities to eradicate ragweed. Within the city several crews of men are working under the direction of the city bureau of public works.

Several Effective Methods.

Several methods are recommended for ridding the vacant property of the weeds. The most thorough job is done by plowing up or grubbing out with grub hoes the infested areas. It is necessary to expose the ragweed roots to the sun to kill the plants.

Another method is to cut the weeds as close to the ground as possible, piling them up and burning them before the seed can spread. In small lots this can be done with a scythe, while in subdivision and other large areas power mowers are used.

The heat of the last few days has been sufficient to dry up the weeds, and in open areas where their is no danger of fire spreading to buildings the entire areas are being burned off. This servies to check the spread of other noxious weeds besides ragweed, including dodder, cockleburrs, plantain, burdock, and thistles.

A Menace to Health.

"Communities should realize that to permit vacant lots to become overrun with weeds is creating a menace to the health and safety of citizens," declared Albert C. Wilson, state seed analyist for Illinois.

Mr. Wilson pointed out that the weeds spread diseases other than hay fever, especially where they become haboring places for stray cats, rats, and other vermin. After plowing up or burning the weeded areas, local authorities recommend the sowing of sweet clover, alfalfa or some other legume crop which will keep down weeds next year and build up the soil as well.

Bishop Cannon Again Takes Case to U.S. Supreme Court

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The legal fight of Bishop James Cannon Jr. to escape trial on an indictment charging violation of the corrupt practices act today was carried to the Supreme court for the second time. In a petition joined by his secretary, Ada L. Burroughs, Bishop Cannon asked the Supreme court to review the decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals directing them to stand trial on indictments alleging they had failed to report contributions to the committee they headed in their campaign against Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

WANTED—CHAIRS FOR DIPLOMATS TO REST SELVES

PARIS, Sept. 8.—"Wanted: Chairs for a lot of diplomats who would like to sit down."

The difficulty is at the magnificent new American embassy building in the Place de la Concorde, which is scheduled to be opened on Sept. 13—"unless circumstances should render a delay advisable." The furniture for the building has arrived.

American officials are extremely evasive, not to say touchy on the subject. While nobody will admit he does not know where the furniture is, it looks as if the red tape of the Washington bureaucracy may entangle our representation in considerable delay.

The state department rules are that embassies and consulates must get their furniture from Washington. In conformance with this rule, enough furniture to fill the new structure has long since been ordered, but where the order is now is a big question mark.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A mild heart disorder has confined Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, to bed at his home here for six days. Mr. Baker was able to be up today, but he will not return to his office until Monday.

"Mr. Baker has been under considerable strain of late years," Dr. R. W. Scott said, "and it has told on him. He requires periods of relaxation from business and other cares."

DUCE BACKS PLAN FOR PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN IN U. S.

"Sons of Italy" to Push Fascist Doctrines.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Sept. 8. — American political observers here have been much interested in the recent announcement by its president that the Sons of Italy order in the United States will shortly expand the scope and apparently also the purpose of its activities.

Attorney Giovanni di Silvestro of Philadelphia, who holds American citizenship and who is supreme head of the organization, made the announcement after he had called on Premier Mussolini a few days ago and informed Il Duce that the order would shortly establish an office in Rome for the purpose of making closer the link with the home country. He assured Mussolini, according to newspaper reports, that the order "was anxious to contribute, within the limits of its possibilities, to the superb movements which were being prepared in the world at this beginning of the second decennial of the Fascist era."

Mussolini Backs Program.

Di Silvestro then outlined to Il Duce the program of activities which the Sons of Italy "proposed to carry out in this historical period" and Mussolini expressed his high satisfaction with the program.

The announcement of the intention of the Sons of Italy to open up an office in Rome was made at about the time that the Italian air armada returned from its visit to Chicago, and diplomatic observers recalled that both the reports of Italo Balbo and the speech of Mussolini welcoming the flyers back laid special emphasis on the fact that the Italian flight was to awaken patriotism among Italian immigrants in America and renew the grip of the mother country on them so that they can be more easily directed for political action beneficial to Italy.

Who "Sons of Italy" Are.

The Sons of Italy order has existed for many years in the United States. Its members are both Italians who have retained their Italian citizenship and those who have become American. Its membership was increased a few years ago when the Fascist League of North America was ordered dissolved and duties of the Fascist League of North America were taken over by the Sons of Italy.

At any rate, a close connection between the order and the mother country is kept up through the efforts of Attorney di Silvestro, who pays frequent visits to Italy and maintains cordial relations with Mussolini.

As a further vehicle of spreading the culture of the new Italy under Mussolini it is planned to publish another newspaper or periodical in the United States.

Fear Influence on Congress.

Italy pays great attention to Italians who live abroad, five out of ten million of them in the United States. For this purpose a special department of the foreign office, known as the "section of Italians abroad," has been organized. Its leader, Sig. Parini, travels about among the Italian colonies abroad, as does Secretary Starace of the Fascist party among the provinces at home. The government's purpose is to see that Italians abroad do not become spiritually assimilated, even if they are politically.

Thus, colonies of Italians with blackshirt leanings in the United States might, for instance, influence their congressmen to take favorable view of things which Mussolini regards as desirable.

Observers here point out that the persistence of Italy in seeking to organize these colonies abroad might make great difficulties for the United States in the event of another European war, which Mussolini himself announces is inevitable. The difficulties with Germans during the recent war are remembered and it is said now that the Italian organizations are as close and the links as subtly joined as was the case with the Germans in 1917.

MEET HERE TODAY.

The Illinois Grand Lodge of Sons of Italy in America will hold its annual convention at the Morrison hotel today and tomorrow. The principal business will be the election of grand officers, who hold office for two years. The order is composed of men and women of Italian birth or extraction and has a membership of approximately 500,000.

ASK CRUSADERS TO PUSH REPEAL IN MISSISSIPPI

Repeal advocates of the state of Mississippi yesterday sought the aid of Col. Ira L. Reeves, western manager of the Crusaders, militant liberal organization, in giving Mississippi an opportunity to vote on the repeal of the 18th amendment. Gov. Sennett Conner of Mississippi is blocking a vote, according to Nelson T. Levings of Moorehead, Miss., chairman of the Crusaders in that state.

Mr. Levings called on Col. Reeves yesterday to ask him to go to Mississippi and put on a campaign for a repeal vote. The vote of his state is not needed to knock out the prohibition amendment by December, Levings said, but he believes the wet attitude of the state should be recorded.

"Gov. Conner is not in harmony with the national administration," Mr. Levings continued. "He is a dry, and his animosity to the Roosevelt administration goes back to the Democratic convention in Chicago when he tried to steal the Mississippi delegation from Roosevelt. He is a political ally of Huey [Kingfish] Long of Louisiana, and he is playing Long's game.

"Gov. Connor's inability to cooperate with the national administration has lost him the support of practically all the political factions in the state. The fact that he is a dry and uses his power autocratically to prevent an election is evinced in his steadfast refusal to call a special session of the legislature to set up the machinery for a repeal vote.

URGES ILLINOIS LOCAL OPTION, BAN ON SALOON

Liquor Control Commission Announces Hearings.

Preparations for formulating laws which will govern the hard liquor traffic in Illinois after national prohibition is repealed were started yesterday at an initial meeting of the state liquor commission, held in the county building.

After electing State Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] chairman, Arthur F. Smith of Bloomington secretary, and William T. Biesel assistant secretary, the commission went into executive session, apparently for no reason in particular.

All Vote for Star Chamber.

Reporters were at a loss to account for these star chamber tactics, for there were no important representatives of the liquor interests waiting to be heard. The motion to exclude all but members of the commission was made by Senator Francis J. Huckin [Dem., Chicago]. It was passed unanimously, but members disclaimed any other motive save "the making of plans" was behind the move.

Before they went into their private huddle the members listened to Chairman Ward point the necessity for swift action, as repeal was expected in December and the state would have to be ready with regulations by then. If Gov. Horner could include the regulatory plan in his expected call for a special idle relief session next month, money could be saved the taxpayers, Ward declared.

"We must recommend legislation that will bar the saloon," the senator said. "Those who condemn prohibition and those who favor it are alike opposed to the saloon evil. There must also be provisions for local option.

Start Hearings Tuesday.

It was decided that the commission would hold hearings beginning next Tuesday night to get the views of proponents and opponents of prohibition alike. Those invited to appear on that day include Dr. George B. Safford, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league; representatives of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform; Col. Ira L. Reeves of the Crusaders; Emil Thiele of the Illinois Association Opposed to the 18th Amendment, and State Representative Michael Hannigan.

The following evening, Wednesday, representatives of the brewing and distilling industries will be given an opportunity to present their side of the matter.

Members of the commission are five state senators, five state representatives, and five citizens who hold no offices.

GAS WASTAGE INQUIRY ORDERED BY STATE BOARD

Information Is Sought on Burner Adjustments.

Chairman Benjamin F. Lindheimer of the Illinois commerce commission yesterday ordered a hearing on next Wednesday of complaints that the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, through incomplete adjustments of gas burners in the homes, is responsible for the wasting of a considerable amount of gas each year, for which the consumer pays.

Chairman Lindheimer said he had notified the engineering firm responsibe for the first complaint that its findings would be welcomed by the commission. He had asked the firm to give complete data, he said, and he has asked the gas company to be present to make any answer deemed advisable.

Rates Under Consideration.

The question of gas rates in Chicago and suburbs has been under consideration ever since the new commission headed by Mr. Lindheimer has been in office, the chairman stated. A slight reduction has been obtained for the public and the matter of a new rate is pending.

"We welcome suggestions, advice and evidence," Mr. Lindheimer said. "The commission has had many conferences with gas company officials and we sought reductions. In order to insure that any reduction we might order would be sustained by the courts we are obliged to have complete hearings and make an extensive investigation of every factor that enters into the cost of gas."

No Appliances Perfect.

"Gas engineers know that the average gas appliance falls below the perfect rating. No city in the world has perfect appliances. We have been and are concerned to see that Chicago and Illinois match the degree of efficiency reached elsewhere.

"I am confident we compare favorably with the efficiency of other communities using either natural or artificial gas. The Illinois commerce commission welcomes suggestions and advice which any one has to offer in connection with problems we are trying conscientiously to solve."

First Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Grossman said he had complained to the commission a year ago that the gas company was not properly adjusting the home equipment to burn the mixed gas. He said the city would take part in proceedings to prevent further wasting of gas.

B. J. Mullaney, one of the vice presidents of the Peoples Gas company, said:

"Any gas consumer in Chicago whose gas using requirements are the same as they were before the new gas was introduced is not paying more today than before the change. On the contrary, he is paying less."

CITY'S APPEAL IN TELEPHONE RATE CASE IS FILED

The city of Chicago's appeal in the telephone rate case was filed in the United States Supreme court yesterday. It is expected that a final decision will be handed down in December, thus ending a case that has been in the courts for ten years.

The city seeks a reduction in rates and the refunding to subscribers of approximately $25,000,000. Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight represent the city.

In 1923 the Illinois commerce commission, then known as the utility commission, ordered the company to reduce its rates on coin box service, lowering the monthly guarantee and ordering a charge of 4 cents per call for all calls over the required number each month. The company obtained a federal court injunction restraining the enforcement of the reduction. After several years a court comprised of three judges made the injunction permanent.

Attorneys Goldstein and Haight obtained a reversal in the Supreme court and the case was sent back to the lower court for new findings and with orders to apply new principles of law to the findings. Early this summer the lower court again ruled against the city and once more the Supreme court is asked to give the final decision.

Woman, 81, Ends Life by Leap from Second Floor

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Rosa Kant, 81 years old, who died in her home at 701 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, two hours after she had leaped from the second floor window early yesterday. She was the wife of Gustav Kant, and the mother-in-law of Harry King, owner of the chain of King Hat stores, who shared the Kant residence. Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. from the chapel at 3125 Roosevelt road.

Muncie Mayor Seeks U. S. Pardon in Liquor Case

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Mayor George Dale of Muncie, Ind., is seeking a federal pardon from Homer S. Cummings, attorney general, it was revealed today. Dale is facing, a prison term of 18 months for violation of the prohibition laws.

FEDERAL DRIVE ON UTILITY RATES ASSUMING SHAPE

Series of Court Battles Is Planned.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The long expected Roosevelt drive for public utility reform, fortold in the President's campaign speeches, may be taking shape in plans now being developed at the department of justice, it was disclosed today.

A nation-wide series of court battles between the government and utility companies in which the government will use the NRA in an effort to reduce rates for consumers and to squeeze water out of utility capitalization is called for by the present program.

As a consumer of electricity in postoffices and federal buildings in almost every city and hamlet in the country, the government may institute a series of rate cases to prevent utilities companies from raising their charges on the claim that the NRA is increasing their costs.

Has Been Secretly at Work.

The plans, which eventually will have to go to the White House for approval, have not yet been passed by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings. They are now being drawn up by Robert Levitt, special assistant to the attorney general. His work has been closely guarded.

Coming to the federal service after a long record of utility fights, Levitt is convinced that by squeezing the water out of utilities their costs and the rates they charge customers, which are based on the costs, can be materially reduced. Both Attorney General Cummings and Levitt himself, however, stress that the final policy in the gigantic impending battle will not rest with them but with the President.

Recent surveys have shown that state utility commissions as a rule are giving blanket authority to utility companies to increase their rates in order to cover NRA costs. Levitt outspokenly criticizes this tendency, claiming that charges already are high enough to give the companies a fair return, even if the NRA increases are included.

Warns State Commissions.

Levitt declares that state commissions should make a blanket denial of rate increases and require companies seeking to raise rates to come before them and demonstrate the validity of their claims.

Faced with an opposite drift among state utility boards, Levitt has informally suggested to the attorney general the possibility of the federal government instituting rate cases against utility companies as a consumer. He said he is confident that the government can "lick them hands down."

The proposed plan of action would involve the nation-wide series of court actions, and Levitt is convinced that abuses of utility rates would be broken. Two malpractices — that of watering their stocks and that of underselling dealers in electrical equipment at a loss and then making up the losses out of the pockets of electricity customers—would be the major points of attack.

Levitt favors a return of from six to eight per cent for the companies, but he will fight the computation of this return on the basis of over-expanded capitalization and extraneous costs.

EVENING POST IN N. Y. WILL BE TABLOID SIZE

New York, Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The New York Evening Post is to be reduced to a five column size beginning next Thursday, it was announced today by Harry B. Nason Jr., of Philadelphia, who took charge of the paper a month ago for the Curtis Publishing interests. It will be of tabloid size.

Also announced were the resignations, effective yesterday, of Julian S. Mason, editor, and Ralph E. Renaud, managing editor.

The Post, known as a conservative publication and the oldest daily newspaper to be published under one name in the United States, was founded in 1801 by William Coleman to publicize the political and economic policies of Alexander Hamilton.

JAIL WOMAN FOR FAILURE TO PAY $25,000 JUDGMENT

Mrs. Rose A. Willson, 40 years old, formerly of Round Lake, Mich., was locked up in the county jail yesterday for failure to pay a $25,000 judgment with a malice count awarded for injuries in an automobile crash to Mrs. Marion Jones, 5229 Woodlawn avenue, who lost an eye in the accident. Mrs. Willson was arrested Thursday night at the home of her sister at 5048 South Winchester avenue after a search of several months. The award of $25,000 damages was made in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes last spring.

Policeman Is Exonerated in Slaying of Motorist

Policeman Patrick Gibbons of the Summerdale station was exonerated yesterday in the killing of Harold Lind Jr., 37 years old, 1472 Argle street, who died Thursday night from bullet wounds inflicted accidentally by Gibbons on Sept. 1. Lind, an employe of the city electrical department, was shot in a struggle with the policeman, whom he refused to accompany to the police station to settle a dispute over a minor collision with an unidentified motorist.

The Fourth Novel of the Famous Jalna Saga

THE MASTER OF JALNA

This is the book of Renny Whiteoak, at 46 head of the tumultuous Jalna clan—Renny with his fascination for women, his bluntness for men, his deep and hidden loyalty for Jalna. This novel can be read with complete enjoyment by those who have never visited the Jalna scene.

Talking, Merely to Talk, Helps Novel by Burt

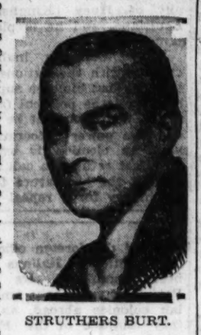
"Entertaining the Islanders" Worth Reading.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Entertaining the Islanders," by Struthers Burt. [Scribners.]

"The Master of Jalna," by Mazo de la Roche. [Little-Brown.] Published yesterday.

TWO authors who have never failed us in the past are adding to the joy of the new deal, one in a new fashion, the other with the same competency and solidity.



STRUTHERS BURT.

Struthers Burt, who has won us so often in the past, usually with tales about the west, has gone far from the Wyoming rocks and rills for the background of "Entertaining the Islanders." From New York to a hot little island in the West Indies the story leaps (by airplane and private yacht and tramp schooner) and explores not only the strange flora and fauna of the island but also the far stranger thoughts and emotions of the human mind and heart.

With an honesty and skill which any of his fellow craftsmen might envy him he has managed to write a light novel which has the sturdiness of those casual cobwebs that sometimes strangle unwary snakes. To the reader who wants amusement "Entertaining the Islanders" will be a gay modern novel in which three people talk more frankly than people of their class are wont to talk in novels and in which true love triumphs in an unconventional fashion.

But for the reader who cares to search for it there is something deeper than gayety, stronger in its power over the reader than amusement. There is an honest attempt to set down the why as well as the what of human beings. Mr. Burt makes the serious reader feel that David is a person honestly seeking, that he may find himself; that Anita Fulton honestly believes that marriage is an impossible institution; that Julius Wack honestly is a cynic and a darling. In other words, the actions, the thoughts, the words of David and Anita and her uncle are not the actions of three characters in a book but of three human beings whom the author has made, not in his own image, as most characters in books are created, but in their own images.

The book begins unsympathetically . . . that is, it offers nothing in its first few chapters to convince the reader that this, of the spate of fiction which overwhelms him each season, is to be fished out and enjoyed. But, take my word for it, the book is worth fishing out; and soon the scheme of it unfolds before the reader's eyes—slowly, but with impressive reality—and when, the hurdle of the first chapters over, the reader settles into its pages, reward is his, not only in entertainment but in thought provoking modernity.

Suddenly he realizes that this book has something that isn't common in modern fiction. And that rarity is "talk." It has not been the fashion of late to have characters in books talk, in the full sense of that word. They say things to carry on the action, they answer questions vital to the plot. But they rarely talk for the sake of talk.

So far as that goes, few people nowadays do talk for the sake of talk. It isn't an age of good talk. It is an age of action [good or otherwise]. But there are human beings to whom a good talk [not a good gossip] is the breath of life. Two of such human beings are characters in "Entertaining the Islanders" and between them is talk just for the sake of talk, about everything and anything, politics, love, economics, writing, reading, the difference between working for one's living and living for one's work, the modern sleight of hand of the advertising business, religion, music . . . all discussed not for the fun of talking about them but for the fun of talking in itself.

It is an extremely engaging and entertaining quality in a novel and a rare one nowadays when many a novel hasn't a quotation mark in its entire length and breadth and the minds of the characters are blobs of specimen under the author's microscope.

On the other hand, "The Master of Jalna" is neither one of those types of novels . . . with conversation or without. It is, like its predecessors, "Jalna," "Whiteoaks of Jalna" and "Finch's Fortune" the sagalike record of the vast Whiteoaks family in Canada, rooted deep in the soil of "Jalna." "The Master of Jalna" is a record of the third generation of the descendants of that indomitable old Adeline Court, with Renny, "the Master," carrying on in his arrogant, despotic, but generous fashion, providing home, love [so far as it is possible for him] but always loyalty to the clan.

The young of the previous books are the adults of this one. The middle aged have become the uncles and the aunt who makes a farewell visit from England to her tribe. The adults in their turn have begot young who already in "The Master of Jalna" are laying up for themselves psychological treasures for future volumes. There is no reason why the Whiteoaks saga should ever end, so diverse are the psychologies of its minor characters who may so easily become major characters in future novels.

"The Master of Jalna" is a tale of own day, 1933, a tale of the depression in Jalna when to meet expenses Vaughnlands is to be subdivided and the master of Jalna makes a vast quixotic gesture which keeps it together, but which [in its repercussions] removes from Jalna every one but himself, his wife and his child, leaving, for the first time in its history the old house untenanted by generations of the descendants of the intrepid Adeline and her adventurous army captain husband.

"The Master of Jalna" is full of the rich life of the earth, its pages filled with dogs and horses and the growth of all living things, just as its predecessors were.

BRIEF REVIEWS

Brand Whitlock, American ambassador to Belgium during the war, author of the very fine biography, "La Fayette," bases the plot of his present novel, "The Stranger on the Island" [Appleton], on historical fact. The setting is in the northwest in the 1850's, on a strange island, named Beaver island, over which a curious, psychic, ignorant, brutal and uncanny man rules, and has set himself up as king. Though liquor and cigarets are prohibited, polygamy is permitted and encouraged.

A middle aged French rover happens on this island as a refuge from a crime he thinks he has committed. There he lives unmolested for some time, forming a touching friendship with an Indian, fishing, sailing, hunting, wandering over the paradise of Beaver island unhindered. When, however, King Gorel [the name is fictional] sees and covets Martha, the woman with whom the Frenchman is living, trouble begins, and ends only after many chapters in a double or even triple tragedy.

"The Stranger on the Island" is well and simply written, with a peculiar fragrance to the style, a vitality in the author's communicated point of view. Nevertheless the novel misses fire through some curious lack in inspiration, in a magnetism of intuition, that must seem as mysterious and elusive of analysis to the author as well as to the critic and reader.

Lewis Grassic Gibbon, said to be the pseudonym of a young Scottish novelist already known in this country for two novels of a very different theme, has written a prose poem to Scotland and its people in "Sunset Song" [Century]. It is unmistakably local and national, the very odors and sights and sounds in their essence are Scottish, with the same overtones of universality that are usually found in the talent of real and sincere artists no matter what their medium.

The story is an epic of the struggle of the Scottish peasants against the trend of the time which means their annihilation. Three generations are recorded, the sadness, the beauty, the loves and hates, the tragedies and happinesses, all the richness, complication and simplicity that make life the brilliant and intricately woven fabric it is, find a poetic and implicative realization in this book.

Author Sees Us Moving to "Triopoly"; He Tells Why

"Triopoly, or Class War," by Robert Segal [Duffield & Green], tells us where we are headed—not, according to the author, toward socialism, not toward fascism, nor back to capitalism, nor toward a class war, but toward . . . "triopoly," which, he says, goes back to the beginnings of modern civilization. Intriguing idea, Mr. Segal's.

Woman Writes of War Era in Her Life Story

"Testament of Youth" Tells of Personal Loss.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—I think I can safely prophesy that the book all England will be reading and discussing during the early part of the fall season is Vera Brittain's "Testament of Youth." This book is the autobiography of a woman, a novelist and poet, who was born towards the end of the nineteenth century, who went through the war period with bitter suffering and loss, and who has set down with the greatest candor her memory of the first twenty-five years of this century.

She was born in an English provincial town, went to Somerville college, Oxford, fell in love with a brilliant young scholar who went to the war and was killed, became a V. A. D. nurse in London, in the east, and in France, lost in the war every one she most loved, nearly lost her own reason, became a writer, lecturer, and novelist, and at last made a happy marriage.

She began years ago to write this book as a novel, with disguised names, but found that she could not deal successfully with her material by that method. She then tried to edit her own very full and truthful diaries, again to realize that this would not be satisfactory as a means of "presenting" the period. Finally, using the diaries wherever she found a phrase or a passage that gave actuality to the description, she determined to tell the story of the time as it affected her own life. That was an inspiration.

"Testament of Youth" is a monument to the war generation. It is absorbingly interesting to read and very valuable as a record of an intense and terrible period. The author, who is married to Prof. Catlin, well known in America as professor of politics at Cornell, began her literary career with a little book of verse, but her first novel, "The Dark Tide," attracted attention as a picture of feminine life at Oxford university.

She is a great friend of Miss Winifred Holtby, whose alert intelligence is familiar to American readers, and she celebrates Miss Holtby's talents with an enthusiasm that is never fulsome. Other portraits are scattered through the book, but the best of them is the author's self-portrait, which, at times unconsciously, presents very clearly the figure of a modern type. The war is revived with extreme skill, and the book deserves attention.

Good Morning!

"He told her that her voice was all right, but that what she needed was experience.

"'You gotta suffer if you're goin' to sing,' he says to her. And so she says, 'All right — just watch me suffer!' And she goes out, and does she SUFFER . . . !"

"And does she sing?"

"I'll say she sings . . . !"

The voices of two girls who'd just met outside the Chicago theater, one on her way out and the other about to go in—as was I—drifted away as I eased into the heavenly cool of the theater. [Honestly, it's just plain DUMB to suffer from the heat in this man's town when we've got the sort of movie houses we have!] And almost immediately I was absorbed in the sad tale of the little girl who suffered and sang.

A man did Sally Trent wrong—and went to China. Sally has her baby girl in the charity ward of St. Anne's hospital. She makes a gallant attempt to care for the small daughter—but jobs in the chorus—are NOT. And so, one dreadful day, big Sally goes back to the place where wee Sally first saw the light o' day and signs away all rights to her child. Touching scene.

From then on—for a while—the film runs true to the rank and file of bad-little-girl-with-good-little-heart opuses. Sally becomes a hardened torch singer of notorious reputation whose "protector" is a handsome man about town connected with a radio station. Follow regulation cabaret and party scenes. Then—praise be!—the piece springs a surprise angle. "Aunt Jennie" enters the scheme of things and "Aunt Jennie" finds contentment and happiness that Sally Trent the chorus girl and Mimi Benton the torch singer had never known.

Fine cast! Miss Colbert gives a highly intelligent performance and is appealing in all the modes and tenses demanded by her role. She sings—or appears to sing—several pleasing numbers, charmingly. Ricardo Cortez is a peach as the mainstay of Mimi Benton. You're not human if you don't hate to see him step out of the picture for David Manners. As for the latter—nice—but the scenario doesn't hand him much of a part. Baby LeRoy has a couple of bits that bring down the house and Cora Sue Collins is adorable as wee Sally. Lyda Roberti puts over a small, featured role in compelling style and all other roles are handled in shipshape fashion. Direction and staging are splendid.

If "The Torch Singer" doesn't make exhibitors patty cake with glee—I miss my guess. Because the picture looks like sure fire "box office" to me.

The Fan Dance Rage Moves Northward to the Field Museum

A fish with fins used in the manner of a fan dancer's fans has been added to the exhibits in Albert W. Harris hall at the Field Museum of Natural History, it was announced yesterday. It is a sargassum-fish, also called a mouse-fish and fishing frog.

The fins resemble the arms and legs of a frog, and the "wrist" joint is long and slender, making possible the fan dancer motions. The sargassum-fish is found in gulf weed off the shores of Australia, Florida, Norway, Africa, Brazil, and Massachusetts.

The creature swims only when necessary to cross some open space. Otherwise it climbs around through the weeds, using its fins like hands. It will readily swallow a crab or another fish almost as large as itself.

Sally to Show Her Fan Dance in Feature Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Probably it was inevitable, at any rate Sally Rand has been signed to do her World's Fair fan dance for the movies. Paramount announced her signing today. She will agitate those ostrich plumes in "Search for Beauty," the film that will also give the girls around the country a peek at the athletic countenance of Gil Berry, the Urbana gridder, and others.

Funny thing about Sally, her last two efforts to make headway in the movies [the first time she bore the name of "Billie Beck"] she never got any further than being made a member of the annual Wampas crop of baby stars in the year 1927, after which she subsided to the unimpressive rating of a second or third lead, with equally unimpressive pay. There must be some magic about those fans.

Plenty of excitement at Paramount the first day of Dorothea Wieck's "Cradle Song." The German star, who had been annoyed by screen testing and waiting and worrying for her film to start for months, was in a temperamental mood when ordered for 6:30 a. m. studio appearance to be made up for 7:30 departure to the old Lasky ranch, 35 miles out. The studio, thinking to please Dorothea on the first day of her film, gave her snappy little brunette Dorothy Pindelle, makeup girl whom Marlene Dietrich swears by, to fix Dorothea up.

But Dorothea Wieck, impatient over something, icily informed Miss Pindelle: "Don't lag when I ask you to do something. I am a big star. In my country they run when I want something." Miss Pindelle said, "Nuts," packed up her kit and walked out of the dressing room.

The reverberations went on for two days, but everything was smoothed today with Mitchell Leisen, the director, affable; Dorothea a picture of poise, and Miss Pindelle back at her makeup duties. Miss Pindelle, incidentally, is the girl who so pleased Marlene with her work and companionship that Marlene gave Dorothy a big ruby ring when she left for Germany recently.

Arlene Judge, young actress wife of Director Wesley Ruggles, today was no longer a Radio-RKO contract featured player, securing a friendly surrender of her contract. She had intended taking a big part at MGM, but latest word is that that agreement fell through. Ruggles didn't think Radio was doing the best possible for his spouse.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

THE funniest story of the month concerns a visit two north shore women—one of them Mrs. Monroe Cole of Winnetka—made to look at a cottage for sale. Mrs. Cole accompanied a friend who was looking for a house, and as they went up the steps to ring the bell a pair of large, energetic and muddy Airedales dashed past them and inside as the door was opened. The two women, guided by the householder, made a tour of inspection through the rooms and upstairs, the dogs always dashing ahead. When a closet door was opened the dogs nearly knocked down the prospective purchaser and her companion in their eagerness and curiosity, and when the party descended to the little basement the dogs dashed ahead of the women down the stairs. It was all a little wearing, but the visitors made no comment except to ask:

"Where do you keep these animals at night?"

The householder looked up in amazement.

"Where do I keep them?" she asked. "Aren't they your dogs?"

WE like Hal Noble's story about Katharine Hepburn and the Bryn Mawr press clippings. It seems the college had subscribed to a clipping bureau and paid a modest bill for clippings when various alumnæ broke into print about something or other. Then came a month when there was a veritable snowstorm of clippings and the bill jumped to $150. The next month it was still higher. That was after Miss Hepburn, for reasons best known to herself, denied to representatives of the press that she had attended Bryn Mawr.

MRS. ALEXANDER KIRK tells of the pair on the bus who were discussing the meaning of the word "Shut-Ins" on the window of the shop devoted to the vocational society for Shut-Ins.

"Why, don't you know?" said the man in surprise. "It means no outside air gets in. One of those new fangled air conditioned buildings. Some day they'll all be like that."

BIG city sights . . . Lord Lionel Tennyson sun-bathing on the Oak street beach. . . . Dr. Hugh Fairchild Osborn, for many years president of the New York Museum of Natural History, inspecting the paintings at the Art institute, among them, in the World's Fair exhibition, the Gaugin "Two Tahitians," owned by his brother, William Church Osborn. . . . A timid young man loitering outside a beauty shop, then finally venturing in to ask for a permanent wave. . . . A woman sitting on a fire plug on State street in the loop addressing picture post cards. . . . James Childers, author, visiting the Art institute and being taken for James Roosevelt by the crowds. . . . Julio de Diego, Spanish painter and craftsman, who did the mosaics for the stained glass windows and fabricated the brasswork in the Ernest Byfields' new barroom in their apartment, finishing the mural with a quotation from G. K. Chesterton:

And Noah, he often said to his wife
When they sat down to dine,
"I don't care where the water goes
If it doesn't get into the wine."

School Doesn't Replace Home, Educators Say

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Perhaps you will remember some months back I discussed the nursery school and its advantages and disadvantages. It brought forth several interesting letters, particularly one from the head of a nursery school.

This woman writes that she has been "a believer in a half day nursery school for children since 1918 and also that three is the age to enter, not two or younger . . ." She continues: "You can well understand my interest in your article on 'Home or the Nursery School.'

"Home is home, be it ever so poor a one. And mother is mother. A separation and return, after three hours, but glorifies this relationship. We who are older find the wear and tear of life softened through perspective. Children are great givers in their love and loyalty to home and mother, and it should be fostered and returned in every possible way during the first six years. Thereafter they are in school all day and playmates come closer.

"Thank you for your article, which is so suggestive and needful."

Those who have established nursery schools or who teach in them have not all as much vision as the writer of this letter. Mothers in recent years have allowed themselves to get inferior feelings [not complexes at all] in regard to their own skill in handling their little children and the great importance of their position in their children's lives. For a while educators tried to convince them that the expert and impersonal relationship of the nursery school for a whole day's session or the progressive school in higher grades was better for children than home and mother and father.

For a while many parents accepted this dictum, against their instinctive feeling. Other mothers had enough independence to think and act for themselves in this matter. Educators now are giving the home its due importance, and it is interesting to quote here the head of a very successful nursery school who thinks that three hours away from home is enough for the three year old—also that three is early enough for that adventure.

Woman Marks 100 Years of Life Tomorrow

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"An old age serene and bright
And lovely as a Lapland night. . . .

Tomorrow Mrs. Sue Lyon Douglas of Winnetka will be a centenarian. It would seem that England's poet laureate of the early 19th century, William Wordsworth, had written these lines with her in mind.

Or, again, Daniel Webster might have been speaking of her when he said more than 100 years ago: "You have come down to us from a former generation. Heaven has bounteously lengthened out your life that you might behold this joyous day." Certainly more truthful words could not be spoken today.

Born Sept. 10, 1833, in Steuben county, New York, Mrs. Douglas, affectionately known as Aunt Sue, has traveled history's trail to celebrate her own A Century of Progress. She has thrilled with the invention of the telegraph, the telephone, the cable, and the radio. She has seen Lincoln and Garibaldi make history. She has lived to find a woman in the presidential cabinet.

Tomorrow her memory . . . and it is far superior to those of many of more recent generations . . . will hark back over these experiences when she receives her relatives and many friends at the house of her son, Scott M. Douglas, at 20 Indian Hill road in Winnetka, where she now makes her home. There will be a family dinner at noon attended by Mr. Douglas and his new bride [they were married on Sept. 1] and Mrs. Douglas' four grandchildren, Richard Douglas and his sister, Dixie Douglas, "Truly" Douglas and Douglas Pearl. In the evening Mrs. Douglas will have the pleasant experience of hearing birthday congratulations broadcast over a national radio hookup.

Happy in spirit and mind, she is anticipating the day. "I never expected to live to have a cake with 100 candles," she commented pleasantly yesterday afternoon. "You see I wasn't even considered healthy until I was sixty. But I must say I am awfully glad I have been spared. I do want to see this World's Fair."

In perfect health the last year with the exception of a lameness which prevents her walking far by herself, Mrs. Douglas' family expects that she will be able to visit the Exposition during the cooler days of the fall. Her Winnetka neighbor, John Vennema, the consul for the Netherlands in Chicago, is making arrangements for her to tour the Fair in an automobile. Her last trip of any length was a visit to California seven years ago.

"I spent ten days at the Fair of '93," Mrs. Douglas went on to relate yesterday, "and ther I wished I could spend about twice that many. I remember leaving the grounds one evening and hearing a man behind me say, 'Well, I've been here a day and I've seen everything.' When I turned around and looked at the man I decided one couldn't expect a pint measure to hold a quart."

One of the ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson F. Lyon, Mrs. Douglas received her formal education at the Athens academy in Athens, Pa. On her mother's side she traces her ancestry to a Welshman, Gaius Morgan, a colonial soldier in the revolutionary war. Her paternal ancestry goes back to a French Huguenot named Leon, who fled to America after the massacre of St. Bartholomew's eve. His name was eventually Anglicized Lyon.

After her schooling Mrs. Douglas migrated west with her family by way of the New York and Erie railroad and the steamship Michigan to Menominee, Mich., where she spent the next twelve or fifteen years. Today Menominee claims her as its oldest living pioneer. Her only surviving brother, James F. Lyon, 90 years old, is still a resident of the little Michigan town.

Six months of Mrs. Douglas' girlhood were devoted to teaching school. Regretting that so many children were growing up without any education, her father and Charles McLeod, another pioneer in that part of the country, erected a log cabin school and two years from June until September Mrs. Douglas taught the three R's to the children of the countryside—a Frenchman, an Irishman, a German, a half-breed, and one Indian.

It took the Rev. Frank Douglas, an officer of the 16th infantry of the U. S. army, nine years to win Sue Lyon. Upon marriage she resigned her duties as a correspondent for the Green Bay Advocate, which is one of the three dailies she still reads today. "In that day it was almost unheard of for a young woman to do anything outside the home, certainly after she was married," explained Mrs. Douglas.

It was in 1861 that Mrs. Douglas visited Chicago for the first time as the guest of friends whose home was located on Wabash avenue just south of Peck court. Shortly after the turn of the century she came to the north shore to make her permanent home.

Patchwork quilts and reading have been the two main interests of Winnetka's centenarian these last dozen years, and now it is reading almost entirely. With Solon, she believes the best way to grow old is to learn something new every day.

Religiously Mrs. Douglas is a Presbyterian, believing in a strict observance of the Sabbath. Politically she is a Jeffersonian Democrat, and glad of it.

Bath Luxuries Keep You Cool and Feminine

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Good news for the gal who manicures her own nails: Have you frugally sliced soap, or saved small scraps of soap, rather than struggle with a large bar when you fixed your nails?

Then you will be delighted with a box of ball shaped soap in two lovely colors and twice as lovely scents—each ball big or small enough for the single manicure. They come packed in a box and the entire assortment will make you think of a box of particularly delectable bonbons.

You will find also the most luxurious of bath essences—a slender bottle filled with a ravishing amber colored liquid hauntingly fragrant with the perfume of romantic jasmine blossoms. It is unbelievably feminine, devastatingly unforgetful after you have once used it, and ought to make any laggard swain sit up and take fresh interest the next time you enter the room.

The top is narrowed so that only a few drops escape into the bath water—another thing that will please the careful user of perfumes—but the few drops that trickle out will keep you fresh and cool and serenely conscious of the jasmine scent.

Cautious bathers who have been punctured by gritty bath salts, and all the gals who stew and fret and wait while bath salts take their own sweet time to disappear, have, of course, bought dusting powder ever since some enterprising soul invented the stuff. And so the after-the-bath dusting powder, also of jasmine odor to match the bath essence, ought to be snapped up quickly by all the appreciative people who hungrily sniff its perfume. It comes in square decorative boxes, fitted with a magical top that keeps the swandown puff in a separate tray by itself and a supply of the incredibly soft powder immediately below.

Six Debutantes Will Bow on N. Shore Today

Five Will Be Presented at Tea Parties.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE are other social activities this week-end than debut parties, but with six of them scheduled for today and one for tomorrow, it does seem as if the debutantes were taking the center of the social stage with a rush. Three young Winnetka girls and three Lake Forest ones will make their formal bows to society today, and tomorrow another young Winnetkan will be introduced to her parents' friends.

The mothers of the five girls who will make their debuts at teas this afternoon are delighted that the Kenneth S. Templetons of Lake Forest chose a dinner dance for their daughter, Josephine's, debut, for otherwise each and every one of this afternoon's hostesses would have had to make some plan to entertain their budding daughters and their assistants and their beaux tonight, for what is a debut tea without something gay to follow that evening?

But since all this year's debutantes are invited to the Templetons' party at the Onwentsia club, along with some of the subdebs and a few of the older girls, including Miss Jean Schweppe and Miss Mary Reed, who are in the latter class now, having "come out" last year—everything is "oke" for a jolly evening as well as a perfect afternoon, in the eyes of the young girls who are being graduated into young ladyhood today.

Miss Templeton, who went to Miss Nixon's in Florence, Italy, last winter, has four house guests, who will be at her party tonight, her cousins, the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Montgomery of Madison, Wis., Miss Margaret Taylor of Pittsburgh, who went to Dobbs Ferry with Miss Templeton before she went to Italy, and Miss Mary Rogers of Minneapolis.

Nancy Morse Will Receive on Terrace.

The weather this afternoon will be of supreme importance to those who are giving teas, for they all plan to use their gardens, whether they receive in them or not. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Richardson and her daughter, Miss Nancy Morse, will greet their guests from 4 to 7 o'clock on the terrace of their lovely old fashioned house on Washington road in Lake Forest. Assisting will be Miss Templeton, Miss Patsy Keith, Miss Barbara Bastien, and her house guest, Miss Jessica Slocum of New York; Miss Beth Coleman, Miss Peggy Hixon, Miss Jean Hyman, Miss Jean Wilhelm, Miss Fleury Leonard, and Miss Marie Louise Gardner. Miss Morse spent last winter traveling abroad with Miss Stout's school.

During the same hours Mr. and Mrs. James G. Alexander and their daughter, Betty, will be receiving the guests who go to meet Miss Alexander in the drawing room of their residence on North Waukegan road in Lake Forest. Assisting will be some of the same girls who will be among Miss Morse's assistants, for an assistant at a debut really doesn't do anything but look pretty and make herself agreeable so she can assist at several teas during an afternoon.

Miss Alexander, who went to Farmington year before last and spent last winter in Florida, has asked the Misses Montgomery, Miss Templeton, Miss Hixon, Miss Leonard, Miss Hyman, Miss Virginia Ashcraft, Miss

BLOOD MONEY

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's stepbrother, keeps a written private account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a debauchee. The Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important of the servants, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray finds, spread out on Cresap's desk, a new will disinheriting Florence. As it is unsigned, the old will stands. Cresap disapproved of Florence's moneyless sweetheart, Gregory Thorpe, who had arrived the day before Cresap died, having driven east from his home in Ohio in response to an urgent wire from Florence. Thorpe can't be reached at the local hotel, where he registered as George Thomas. Florence is on the verge of prostration. Thorpe is found in a hospital, where he was brought after having been felled by a gangster who stole his car.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

SHADOWED.

With a negligee on over her pajamas, Florence was lying on a chaise-lounge. I crossed the room and I took her in my arms, and I told her what there was to tell. And while I was telling it, I literally could feel the renewed life pumping from her resilient young heart and rushing through her pliant young veins.

And by the time I was done with telling it she had wriggled free and was upon her stockinged feet, and her eyes were big and round and there was color once more in her cheeks and she was saying:

"O, I must go to him! O, Uncle Gil, can I go to him? Will they let me go to him?"

It was Bray who took the words out of my mouth:

"And why not?" he boomed heartily. "Aren't you your own mistress? And who has so good a right to be going on such an errand as you, Miss?"

"O, thank you!" she cried. She ran to ring a bell for Hilda.

"I can be dressed and ready in ten minutes," she told us over her shoulder as she pushed the button. "And Hilda can have a bag packed in less than that. And Uncle Gil, will you phone up to that hospital that I'm starting?"

"One moment, please," put in Bray. "You're not thinking of driving up yourself, Miss?"

"Why not?" she asked, puzzled.

"Well, I'll tell you about that," he said gravely. "The concrete would be pretty slippery already from the rain, and this minute it's coming down by the bucketful. And, Miss, your nerves have been under a strain and you'll be in an awful hurry for to get there, which is but natural. It's the danger to you I'm thinking of and so——"

"O, I must go to him——"

"Then Olsen could drive me in the big car. Or Uncle Gilly in his little one. He'd be glad——"

"Well, Miss, as a matter of fact, I happen to know that your chauffeur is down at your boathouse helping your man Verity to put your motorboat in shape for the wintering. And he'd be all over grease and oil, and you'd have to tarry for him to tidy up. And as for Mr. Redd, here, I'd like to have him here with me the next hour or two whilst we go over some—some data and memorandums. I'd feel easier in my own mind if you took a train up."

"Whatever you say—only let's hurry, please."

"I'm gone, Miss. And stay as long as you please. And give the young man my regards and congratulations."

I waited until we two were downstairs. Then I said:

"So that's the big idea, eh?"

"What do you mean, 'So that's the big idea'?" he sparred.

"It's hard in thick weather on crowded roads to follow a girl in a car that's going fast," I said. "But on the train it'll be easy to keep her shadowed."

"What talk have you?"

"What'll you bet that inside of fifteen minutes your boy Terry, or if not Terry, young Shapiro, isn't down at the station waiting to pick her up?"

"Now, Gilly, behave yourself. You're giving me credit for more wits than I've got. I'll be getting the swell head next, no fooling!"

"Exactly what I'd say," I retorted, "no fooling."

He dropped his bantering air.

"That suits me," he agreed. . . . "Well, leave us check up on ourselves: Barring that one fairly promising lead blew up in our faces night before last down in that boathouse, and that another that looked like a red hot tip has fizzled out on us this afternoon, we're right back where we were when this thing first broke. Ain't that so? And what have we left out of what we had at the beginning and out of what has turned up since?"

He held up a knobby forefinger.

"That'll be for the funny old tousle headed rummy with the funny old comedy name, from down the lane. And I wouldn't risk the parings of my nails on the theory that he had a hand in this here mess."

He erected a middle finger.

"And that'll be for the one chance in a million that the quiet sojourn of that unsociable Mr. Tom Kee to this peaceful hamlet last week had a bearing."

He poked out a thumb.

"And this thumb, being short, might stand for Sabino or for Verity or even for——" He stared at me. . . . "No, I'm getting dippy!"

"That's all very well," I said. "But you've rambled from the main point. Since young Thorpe has been so entirely absolved from all suspicion, why should you have his sweetheart's movements dogged as she goes to where he is?"

"Gilly," he said slowly, and weighing his words out, "the young lady's happier than she was, that I'll admit. But she's not altogether happy, not by any manner of means she ain't. A sore burden of trouble has just slipped off her pretty shoulders, but on them she's still carrying another load—and it grows heavier instead of lighter. And young Thorpe, now! We know he couldn't have been an active principal, but suppose he knew beforehand what was due to come off?"

"Just to show you," I said, "how little I think of what you think, I'll not warn her to be on her guard in what she says or does—and yet it would be easy for me to warn her."

"O, I grant you she's smart enough," he said. "But once in awhile even the smartest ones will stub a toe. And it's in the line of my duty to be there in person or by proxy when a toe is stubbed." On that he hunched his shoulders against the beating drops and made for his parked car in which, as I now saw, Shapiro was sitting at the wheel.

"Wait a minute!" I called out.

For just then Florence, dressed for travel, came out upon the veranda with Hilda scurrying along, lugging a small suitcase behind her.

"I was going to run you over to the station," I told Florence, speaking out good and full for Bray's benefit, "but the captain here is just leaving and he'll appreciate the opportunity of taking you along."

"Just so somebody gets me there in time for my train," she said, and in her voice was a trill like a snatch of a song from a thrush's throat. "If I missed that train I'd die!"

"The honor is all mine, miss," stated Bray.

I took over the bag from Hilda and Florence was in the car and had kissed me goodby—with both her arms squeezed tightly around my neck—and was giving me a farewell hug when I bethought me of something.

"We've all been so hectic these last few minutes," I said, "that I forgot one thing, and I guess Capt. Bray forgot it, too. Just why was it that Gregory used an alias?"

"O, that! I didn't dare tell Capt. Bray before. What with everything else, it did seem so—well, suspicious. Early last Sunday when poor Greg was starting east, he suddenly remembered he didn't have any driver's license. His had expired. He borrowed a license from a young fellow named George Thomas, who works in a garage where Greg used to keep his car when he was prosperous enough to own a car. And Greg thought it would be better in case of any mixup if he just called himself George Thomas. Looking back, it does sound stupid, doesn't it? But that's the truth."

"Being heels-over-head in love should excuse any boy for doing an occasional stupid thing," I declared.

"I'll say this, if I might make so bold," put in Bray. "Being in love sure puts a grand light in a certain pair of lovely big blue eyes."

Six Debutantes Will Bow on N. Shore Today

Five Will Be Presented at Tea Parties.

Three at Same Hours in Winnetka.

Miss Dorothy Ott, daughter of the John Nash Otts; Miss Jean Lamson, daughter of the Warren A. Lamsons, and Miss Eleanor Janney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Lynde, are the three Winnetka girls who will be introduced this afternoon, all between the hours of 4 and 7. Mr. and Mrs. Ott and Miss Ott will be at home at their Indian Hill road residence, Mr. and Mrs. Lamson and Miss Lamson at their Sheridan road home, and Mr. and Mrs. Lynde and Miss Janney at their Spruce street residence.

Miss Ott, who will be returning to Smith college on Sept. 21 for her sophomore year, has invited Miss Marion Daughaday, Miss Barbara Hobart, Miss Patty Calkins, Miss Harriet Fentress, Miss Barbara Ann Sargent, Miss Bastien, Miss Pauline Seipp, Miss Ann Palmer, and the Misses Marion and Nancy Thomas to assist.

The Lamsons' party is to be a tea dance, with dancing on the screened-in porch. Miss Lamson, who is to enter Bryn Mawr this fall, will be assisted by her roommate at college, Miss Elizabeth Barnard of Los Angeles, the Misses Thomas, Miss Bastien, Miss Sargent, Miss Fentress, Miss Palmer, Miss Hobart, Miss Ashcraft, and Miss Calkins. Miss Virginia Lamson, an older daughter, also will assist. She made her debut at a similar party in the early autumn of 1930.

Assisting Miss Janney will be Miss Calkins, Miss Bastien, Miss Palmer, Miss Nancy Harris, Miss Gardner, Miss Hobart, Miss Marjorie Street, Miss Sargent, the Misses Thomas, and Miss Gretchen Onderdonk. Also Miss Janney's older sister, Mrs. Stephen Roby of Lake Forest.

Miss Calkins Will Bow Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. George B. Calkins and their daughter, Miss Patty Calkins, will be at home on Hubbard lane in Winnetka. After the tea there will be a buffet supper for the assisting debutantes and their beaux. Those who will assist are Miss Bastien, Miss Ott, Miss Allene Withers, Miss Janney, Miss Lamson, Miss Harris, Miss Fentress, Miss Gardner, Miss Hobart, and three classmates of Miss Calkins' at Sarah Lawrence, Miss Sarah Key of New York, Miss Elsie Ferguson of Newport News and Miss Patricia Oishei of Buffalo. Miss Calkins is leaving the latter part of this month for college.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Canfield and their twin daughters, Kate and Frances, are entertaining the season's debutantes and their beaux at a cocktail party tomorrow from 5 to 7 o'clock at their apartment on East Walton place. Miss Kate and her fiancé, Harry R. Curran Jr., will be receiving the congratulations of many of their friends for the first time, for their engagement was announced early this week. Miss Frances is to make her debut this season.

Two Highland Park girls who are at an age when they might be making formal bows to society but who do not choose to be listed as debutantes will be at home to their friends with their mother and father tomorrow afternoon. They are Miss Virginia and Miss Helen Jeffries. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore Jeffries of 1032 Lincoln avenue. Miss Virginia will be a senior at the University of Chicago this year and Miss Helen will go to New York to study in the American Academy of Dramatic Art.

Olga de Tarnowsky to Be Bride Tonight.

At 8 o'clock tonight in the presence of relatives and close friends Miss Olga de Tarnowsky, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George de Tarnowsky, will walk down the aisle of St. Peter's Episcopal church to be joined in marriage to William Jeffrey Hudson, son of the H. Newton Hudsons.

Miss de Tarnowsky will be attended by her sister, Miss Mary de Tarnowsky, as maid of honor, and her bridesmaids will be the Misses Helen and Marietta Gillette, Miss Katherine Hudson, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Jean Wegener. The bride's brother, Nixon de Tarnowsky, will serve Mr. Hudson as best man, and ushering will be Howard Lang, Gebhart Peterson, Ernest Clarenback Jr. of Milwaukee, and Booth Kellough. The ceremony will be read by the Rev. R. Everett Carr.

A wedding reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents, Pine Grove avenue. Mr. Hudson is taking his bride on a wedding trip that includes a few days in New York and a trip by boat through the Panama canal to San Francisco and back to Chicago. After Oct. 10 they will be at home at 45 East Bellevue place.

Last night after the wedding rehearsal Mrs. Hudson had the bridal dinner at the Hudson home in Hawthorne place.

Those two delightful people, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Raftery, are leaving today for New York to sail next Wednesday on the Manhattan for England. They are going over so that Mr. Raftery can celebrate his 80th birthday on Oct. 16 with his twin brother, Alfred, who lives in Cheapside in London in the same house in which his father and grandfather lived. If the weather is good the octogenarians undoubtedly will play golf as a celebration, for both are enthusiastic golfers, and nothing but extreme heat or cold interferes with their game.

Helping them to celebrate their birthday will be their brother, who is a year and a half older than they and their three sisters, all of whom are over 70 and live in or near London.

Leave Today for Ranch of Strongs.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Strong of North State street and the Andrew Sandegrens of Sheridan road are leaving this morning to motor to the Strongs' ranch, Los Trigos, near Santa Fe, for a three weeks' stay. They plan to have an unusual and exciting time, for they are going to do their own "cowboying" and load a car of steers for shipment to Denver. Then they will fish for trout in the Pecos river, which rushes over a rocky bed for six miles through the ranch. The Strongs' little daughter, Cara, will stay with her grandparents, the Franklin Millers, while her parents are away.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hull Atwater of 1124 Sheridan road, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lydia, to Norton Cotterill of New York, son of Mrs. Ralph Cotterill of Dayton, O. Miss Atwater attended the Roycemore school in Evanston and then went to Smith college. Her fiancé is a graduate of Ohio State university. No date for the wedding has been set.

Mrs. Catherine P. Girault of 1209 Astor street announces the marriage of her daughter, Rowena, to Jack W. Augustin of Fond du Lac, Wis., which took place last Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Augustin will be at home in Fond du Lac.

Fashion Parade at Knollwood.

Between five and six hundred will dine and dance at the Knollwood club tonight after viewing a fashion parade around the pool. Mrs. W. E. MacFarlane, chairman of the committee, and Mr. MacFarlane are entertaining a party and so are the Thomas E. Wilsons, the Frederick Poors, the Ward Starretts, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Fleming, the George T. Buckinghams, the Franklin Clements, the W. Bradford Freers, David J. Molloy, the Alfred T. Castles, the Ralph Sargents and the D. F. Kellys.

The verandas and the terraces of the Skokie Country club will be filled with parties this evening, for the club is having its final dinner dance of the summer season. Dinner is to be served from 7 until 10 with dancing from 9 until 12:30. The club will be opened later in the season, however, for the annual harvest home party.

The women who will work tooth and nail from now on to sell the boxes and main floor seats for the Monday night series of concerts at the Auditorium that will benefit the Girl Scouts met yesterday morning at Mrs. William S. Monroe's East Elm street apartment to discuss plans.

Shoulders Strike Smartly Upward in Girl's Frock; Collars Are Boyish

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

Today's dress features points that strike an upward line at the shoulders, a very youthful idea. The boyish collar is smart for school and college wear, and it's not a difficult dress to make. A thistle red hairy woolen mixture would be gay.

The pattern, No. C-2825, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years.

Famous Surgeon Advocates Sophistication for Youngsters

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Dr. William J. Mayo, distinguished surgeon, recently said that children should be sophisticated; that the more they know the better!

In connection with a good many beauty angles they are sophisticated. Personally, it comes as a bit of a shock to me to see a six or eight year old emerge from a beauty parlor a miniature of her sophisticated looking mama. Hair slicked down with waving lotion and dressed almost identically after mother's head outline. The youngsters look like little midgets when they step out of the chair.

But perhaps my prejudices are too old-fashioned. After all, youngsters do hear reducing talked from morning till night. They hear about nail polishes and see them and they have a particular passion for the colored nail. They know pretty much what is in every bottle on the dressing table—and when no one is looking they help themselves to the best perfume. They have teeth beauty pounded into them at least twice a day during the brushing procedure. They use their mouth washes and have become familiar through usage with sun tan oils and the like.

They're living in their age and when you come to think of it, they have a darned sight better chance than children in older generations who knew the agonizing ostracism of the ugly duckling. Mighty few children of this generation will go through life carrying that scar on their memory.

They can have their straight hair turned curly if the parent is indulgent enough to give them a permanent. They have designers working out clever coiffures for them. The shape of their heads may be given a new beauty by the cut done by expert hands. The nail pride [minus the red polish] and the tooth pride and the clothes pride are all bound to have a fine influence when good looks are practically demanded of the deb. Not only of the deb but of the girl out to make her own way in the world.

All of which brings us up to the real point of introducing the children today. At the end of the summer there is need in many cases of conditioning the young daughter's hair. It is sun bleached and sun scorched, maybe harsh and brittle. It may be very much in need of oil treatment for a while. A bit of olive oil rubbed into the scalp will serve; a bit on the brush and a lot of brushing given.

The youngsters themselves have assumed a decidedly grownup attitude of criticism and analysis of each other. So, in order to give one's own poise and security, mother may have to shed her prejudices and get in step with that rising young generation. Anyway, endowing her girl-child with as much beauty as possible is a mother's job.

"Adventures in Salads," a collection of 23 recipes, and "Simple Salad Dressings" to accompany them, are on sale at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn, for 3 cents each. By mail, 5 cents each, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

"What to do about jelly doughnuts which won't cook through?" And so Mrs. A. J. P. arrives with the first question this morning and starts off the Saturday Question Clinic with a puzzler. We had sent Mrs. P. a recipe for raised doughnuts which she found good—until she decided to do a bismarck or so and include a little jelly in the inside. Then each time a film of raw dough was left about the jelly. What to do?

The answer has mainly to do with the thickness of the dough when rolled. To make a raised jelly doughnut roll out the dough to one-eighth inch thickness and cut with a cookie cutter into thin rounds. Then place one teaspoon of currant jelly on the center of one round, moisten the edges with water, and place another round on top, pressing the edges lightly together. Cover and set in a warm place to rise until doubled in bulk. Then fry in hot fat (380 degrees F.) until golden brown.

And now a pickle trouble from Mrs. J. L. M.: "My sweet cucumber pickles get soft and shriveled. What is the cause of it?" I suspect your pickles are reacting to an overly strong solution of one kind or another, Mrs. M. Usually shriveling is caused by too strong a brine, sugar, or vinegar solution. The stronger the solution the more water it draws out of the cucumbers, causing them to shrivel. Or this condition is sometimes caused by pouring hot vinegar over the vegetables. As a rule soft pickles are the result of using too strong a vinegar, too weak a brine, failure to completely cover the pickles in the brine, or perhaps from overheating while processing to remove the solution.

And, by the way, these are pickling days now. Recipes for old faithfuls, as well as new dodges in pickle making, interest us and questions constantly come up concerning the whys and wherefores of pickle making. If such is the case at your house you may be interested in the fall TRIBUNE booklet, "The Pickle Parade," now available for 3 cents by mail or 2 cents at the Public Service counter, 1 South Dearborn. Address your requests to Mary Meade, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Mrs. E. J. H. brings us back to hot weather desserts with a request for orange ice. Take advantage of these last few days of summer to try it:

ORANGE ICE.

2-3 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups water
2 cups orange juice
3 egg whites, beaten stiff

Cook the sugar, salt, and water for ten minutes, add the orange juice, and chill in a refrigerator tray until frozen to a mush. Remove from the tray and beat. Fold in the beaten egg whites and return for freezing, stirring occasionally during the process.

Dance Frock of Tulle Is Favorite in Paris Circles

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Mlle. Gabrielle Chanel has harvested the major part of the famous forty smartest Parisiennes this season, gleaning them all into her famous Rue Cambon house to get her tulle dance frocks that they are all mad about. There isn't a great lady of fashion without one of these dresses in her wardrobe, and they are seen wherever the world of society gathers to dine and dance.

The newest color for the tulle frock from Chanel is rose red, and Mlle. Chanel gives it touches of white that make it look as cool and fresh as an ice cream soda on a hot day.

The model in our sketch today is an example of this popular style. The bodice is placed over a foundation of delicate lace, which appears in a yoke at the top. It buttons down the back and in front the tulle makes cunning tailored revers below the V-neckline. The sleeves are stiff ruffles, and there are many of them, alternating rose red and white tulle.

The skirt is fitted to the hipline and is made of a number of shaped bands placed diagonally from a V in the front and back, and between these bands are wide tulle godets from hip to hemline, which give the skirt a width of many yards around the bottom.

Seek $100,000 to Support Jewish People's Institute

A campaign to raise $100,000 for the Jewish People's institute at 3500 Douglas boulevard will be launched next Friday under the direction of Gustav Hochstadter, who has been a director of the institute for more than 20 years. Unless the fund is collected the settlement will be unable to carry on as it has in the past, it was announced. Increased demands of the last two years have expanded the activities there by 40 per cent, according to the executive director, Dr. Philip L. Seaman. The Jewish People's institute is one of the largest settlement houses in the world, serving more than half a million Jews on the west side.

Blondes Prefer Gentlemen as Steady Swains

Etiquette Is First Aid to True Love.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Boys, you'll simply have to buy yourselves a good etiquette book. The girls are getting pretty censorious about your manners. You have no idea how many of you lose out after a time or two out with a girl because you do not know the rules of polite behavior.

Not that we're trying to make elegantes of you—but why shouldn't the girls censor you for things that make them uncomfortable when you ask a good deal of them.

To be more concrete, "Jean" reports falling for a six footer. The first time out he let her go ahead and open doors, introduced her most awkwardly to an acquaintance, embarrassed her frightfully at table with uncouth handling of food and implements. Next time Six Footer called "Jean" had another engagement.

Jean claims, and rightly, that she had little social training in her home, but she managed to pick up through study and observation the essential needs of table and general behavior. "Why," she inquires, "can't boys do this, too?" We reiterate: "Why can't they?" Simple, uncomplicated books are for sale. Libraries have these books. Magazines and newspapers offer valuable and generally free aid to these wanting to know the proper thing to do.

It is true that American girls out of homes without the social advantages pick up quickly through their daily contacts in business the things that they should know. They are alert, wide awake to every little thing that will make them more attractive. Men out of the same background go on the theory often that it is male stuff to be rude, ignorant of the niceties, or else they do not think of the matter at all. Since the girls do, the men better turn their attention to it! Besides, it isn't sissy to be aware of the right and nice thing to do. Advance in business, if you young men will notice, takes into consideration the presentableness of the man as well as his ability.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933 By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"Some of you fellows did well on last class day and some of you fell down miserably," Prof. Fordney said as he stood in front of his class.

"Yes, I know you all want to hear about the Klein jewel robbery. I was fortunate enough to catch the thieves after three days of intensive work, but I wouldn't have had not Sergt. Keene, an old timer, coöperated in such splendid fashion. However, I'm not going out this afternoon to see the Giants and the Boston Braves play a double-header so I haven't much time."

Fordney, a great baseball fan, looked at his watch and continued, "I've repeatedly told you chaps—and in the last three weeks I've given you examples of it—that while in crime detection you cannot always trust the obvious you must examine it closely before making any wild deductions or disregarding it.

"Here's a case in point." He looked at his watch again. "And," he continued, "the principle involved is the same as that which most of you fell down so badly on the last three or four class day problems.

"All of you who can get it in one minute will be my guests at the ball game. Ready? All right. Here we go! Hurry up, I want to see those two games.

"If it takes three equally matched cats six minutes to kill three rats how many rats can six cats of the same caliber kill in nine minutes? Quickly now—if you want to go to the game!"

WERE YOU ABLE TO SOLVE IT IN ONE MINUTE?

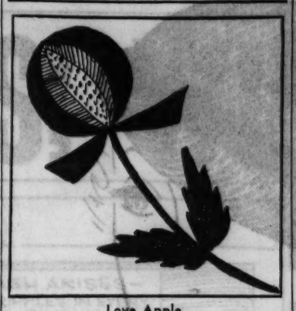
Quilt Celebrates 'Love Apple' Days of Tomato Today



Love Apple.

BY NANCY CABOT.

At one time the tomato was considered poisonous and unfit to eat and consequently was used only for decorative purposes. It was then known as the "Love Apple." And it was then, too, that it quite naturally found a page for itself in the quilt album. A tomato colored gingham and some prints of a similar shade are the proper materials from which to cut the crescent shaped pieces which combine to make the "tomato."

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Urges Brotherhood of St. Andrew to Assist Church in Comeback

More than 200 persons representing the world wide organization of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Episcopal men's society, last night attended the 50th anniversary banquet at the Lawson Y. M. C. A. The toastmaster was James L. Houghteling Jr., son of the founder of the brotherhood.

Mr. Houghteling read messages of congratulation from President Roosevelt and Bishop James De Wolf Perry, primate of the American Episcopal church. The brotherhood was founded at St. James' church, Wabash avenue and Huron street. The order will continue its annual convention today and tomorrow.

Bishop Warren Lincoln Rogers of Cleveland, speaking as Bishop Perry's representative, declared that times are sufficiently better for the church to launch a comeback religious drive.

"This week," said Bishop Rogers, "we launched an advance church movement in Ohio."

CUBS SWEEP SERIES WITH BRAVES; WIN, 8-3

INDIAN RUNNER IS 7-5 CHOICE IN LINCOLN STAKE

Benton Horse Is One to Beat.

Handicap Field

THE field for the revival of the $5,000 Lincoln Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth at Lincoln Fields this afternoon arranged in the order of post positions is as follows:

Horse—	Weight.	Jockey.	Probable Odds.
*Royal Blunder	101	J. Kacala	10-1
Big Brand	108	D. McAuliffe.	7-2
*Late Date	103	E. Pool	10-1
Dusky Devil	100	E. Brasfield	20-1
†Evergold	105	L. Ruder	8-1
Esseff	106	W. D. Wright.	6-1
†At Top	93	No boy	8-1
Karl Eitel	100	C. Corbett	40-1
Indian Runner	126	A. Tipton	7-5

*Audley farm stable entry.
†Shandon farm stable entry.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They're going to ask Indian Runner, the big black horse from Benton, Ill., to prove he is the champion of the western turf at Lincoln Fields this afternoon.

JOCKEY A. TIPTON.

He is going to the post in the $5,000 Lincoln handicap, a dash at a mile and a sixteenth, which engages all the best western handicap performers. His followers were confident last night that he will win and they made him the 7 to 5 favorite, despite the 126 pounds he has been assigned.

Nine were named for the revival of the race, which is one of the oldest stakes on the Lincoln Fields program. Indian Runner was unfortunate in drawing the extreme outside post position. In races at a mile and a sixteenth at Lincoln Fields, the horses on the extreme outside at the getaway are often beaten. They always seem to lose much ground on the short run to the clubhouse bend.

He Is Ready.

Indian Runner should overcome it, however, for he is sharp as a tack. He demonstrated it yesterday morning when he ran half a mile in :49 3-5. It will take a fleet horse to beat him to the turn.

The speculators were at a loss to name a horse that has a chance of beating Indian Runner. They finally settled on Big Brand, powerful stretch runner from Kentucky, and made him the second choice at 7 to 2. The consistent 3 year old filly, Esseff, from Kentucky, which was was second in the Chicago Derby last week, was the third choice at 6 to 1. The Nash Brothers' entry of At Top and Evergold was the next in line at 8 to 1. Despite some sensational workouts lately, Late Date was held at the rather long odds of 10 to 1.

The extreme outsiders were Alderman Coughlin's Karl Eitel and a horse called Dusky Devil, which has been flitting from the top grade plater class to a position among the handicap performers all season.

Famous Horses Win.

The Lincoln handicap has been won by some noted horses in other years. Supremus was the first winner of the stake, and the great Chance Play, ridden by Earl Sande, won it the next year, which was in 1927. Then came victories by Toro, Blackwood, Lady Broadcast, and Sun Beau, the latter winning in 1931. The stake was not revived last season.

Indian Runner goes into the struggle with four impressive stake victories to his credit. He won the Inaugural handicap and the Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington. He then moved over to Hawthorne and won the $10,000 Illinois Owners' handicap, and a few days later captured the John Schank Memorial, worth $5,000. He has won all the way from six furlongs to a mile and an eighth. He has carried light weights and heavy weights. The weights or the distances don't seem to make much difference to him.

He Trains Well.

Jockey A. Tipton, who has ridden him to all his victories this year, will be in the saddle again today.

All workouts during the last two weeks indicate that Indian Runner has come up to this race in perfect condition. He didn't work so well for some of his other engagements, but he always managed to win one way or another. The inconsistent way in which he trained caused him to rule at good odds in nearly all his starts.

FULLER DRAWS WITH PETROLLE, JUDGES DECIDE

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., gave Sammy Fuller, Boston welterweight, a boxing lesson in the Boston garden's 10 round feature tonight without impressing the two judges, whose votes resulted in the contest being declared a draw. Petrolle weighed 142, four pounds more than Fuller.

In a seven round bout, Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, scored a one-sided decision over Gene Stanton of Cleveland.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

COLLEGE football coaches are hard to understand. Harry Kipke of Michigan is worried no end because his squad consists chiefly of seniors. Noble Kizer of Purdue is near a nervous breakdown because he hasn't enough seniors. If Kipke could trade some of his old men for a few of Kizer's saplings, both schools might carry on to a Big Ten championship. They probably will anyway.

If Kipke and Kizer are as successful this year as they have been since they took charge of football at Michigan and Purdue, you will have to give them a place among the Napoleons of the sport. A coach's prestige, unfairly perhaps, rises or falls in exact ratio to the number of games he wins or loses. On this basis Kipke and Kizer rank with the leaders.

Whether they admit it or not, both young men have excellent prospects for strong teams this season. It is unfortunate that Michigan and Purdue do not meet. Through no fault of its own Purdue appears to have the lighter conference schedule. Minnesota, Wisconsin, Chicago, Iowa and Indiana are the Boilermakers' Big Ten opponents, while Michigan must tackle Ohio State, Chicago, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Northwestern. Purdue has even greater opportunity, however, to demonstrate its real class because it faces Notre Dame, perennially one of the country's strongest teams.

Purdue probably has lost more seasoned players than Michigan, but when you consider that Kipke must replace Harry Newman you have an idea of the job ahead. They say that William Renner, a sophomore from Youngstown, O., will help Michigan fans to forget Newman. But somehow Newmans come along only once in a while.

Newman was to Michigan what Babe Ruth is to the Yankees. His game was the team's game. If he was on, the team was on. If he was off, the team was off. I cite the first half of last year's game with Princeton as evidence. The recent East-West contest at Soldiers' field would have been dull indeed had it not been for the Newman spark.

Kipke's success in finding a man with a punch will determine his chances of finishing another undefeated season. This may be a good time to point out that Michigan teams under Kipke have lost only one game in their last thirty. Ohio State was the last opponent to whip the Wolverines. The score was 20 to 7. It occured in 1931.

The last football season Michigan might call unsuccessful was 1929—Kipke's first. It lost three conference games. The following year Michigan tied Northwestern for the Big Ten championship and in 1931 figured in a three way tie for the title with Northwestern and Purdue. The team won a clear claim to the 1932 honors with an undefeated season. There have been few records comparable to Michigan's under Kipke.

Now let's take a look at Purdue's accomplishments under Kizer. He took charge in 1930, a year after Kipke relieved Yost as Michigan coach. Like his rival from Ann Arbor, Kizer had rougher going his first year than in the two succeeding seasons. Purdue lost two games in 1930, one in 1931 and none in 1932. A tie with Northwestern deprived the Boilermakers of a share of the conference championship last fall.

Michigan—One defeat in the last 30 games.

Purdue—Three defeats in the last 26 games.

Not bad for schools led by two of the youngest major league coaches in America.

COCHET TURNS PRO; RECEIVES U. S. OFFERS

PARIS, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Henri Cochet, French tennis star, formally announced tonight he had turned professional and signed a contract with Big Bill Tilden.

Cochet's announcement, made to sports writers, definitely ended all speculation as to what the former world's champion would do. Cochet will make his debut as a pro in the Franco-American series starting Sept. 23. Cochet had declared yesterday that he would play in the series, but would not accept pay for his services and thus, he insisted, would retain his amateur status.

Cochet said he had received offers for matches in the United States and Australia.

PERRY, STOEFEN TO MEET TODAY IN SEMI-FINALS

Crawford, Shields Also Win in Title Tennis.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Two young American tennis giants fought their way to the semi-finals of the national men's singles tournament today and will carry the last hopes of the home guard against the challenge of two of the world's finest shotmakers, Frederick J. Perry, Britain's Davis cup hero, and Jack Crawford, Australia's ace.

Lester Stoefen, Californian who towers 6 feet 3½ inches and enters the semi-finals for the first time in his short career, plays the brilliant Perry tomorrow, while Frank X. Shields, the equally towering New Yorker, meets Crawford in two international battles.

Stoefen gave an excited gallery of 10,000 their biggest moments of an overheated day by outlasting Bryan [Bitsy] Grant Jr., the Atlanta bantam, who ended the reign of Champion Ellsworth Vines yesterday. But Perry and Crawford flashed by far the most impressive tennis of the quarter final round.

Perry Eliminates Quist.

Stoefen took Grant's measure in a rough-and-tumble duel decided by scores of 8-6, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

Perry trounced Adrian Quist, the young Australian, who conquered Wilmer Allison, with a magnificent brand of tennis, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0.

Crawford administered a tennis lesson to Clifford B. Sutter of New Orleans, third ranking American. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, and the issue was never in doubt.

The powerful Shields, despite some trouble with his booming service, bombarded his way to victory in the other quarter-final over the resoluta Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., national indoor titleholder, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

The extent of the tennis turnover within a year's time is manifest by the fact that of the 1932 unofficial world's first ten, only Perry at No. 7 and Crawford at No. 10 survive in this tournament. Shields and Stoefen were not considered of top ranking international caliber a year ago.

Crawford is seeking the grand slam of tennis, having already taken the Australian, French, and British singles championships this year in competition with the world's foremost players.

Grant Takes Early Lead.

Grant fought tenaciously to capture the first set from Stoefen, taking a 4-1 lead before Stoefen could get his bearings. Grant took too many chances, however, in his overanxiety and finally dropped the set. With it went most of his hopes, for Stoefen was obviously better equipped for an extended encounter, in which Grant had to do most of the running.

Stoefen had a two set lead before Grant finally dug in and kept the gallery in constant uproar with a fighting comeback. Battling for every point and tumbling and spinning in desperate attempts to get his racquet on every return, he pulled out the third set and carried his rally well into the fourth set. He led, 5-3, and it looked like a certain five-setter but Grant's service cracked and so did his physical resistance.

The Shields-Mangin match was chiefly a duel of service. Shields broke through once in each of the first two sets for the deciding margin but experienced a lapse in the third set as he dropped his cannon ball delivery twice in succession. He broke through early in the fourth set, however, and smashed his way to victory. All told, Shields crashed over 13 service aces and banged out 32 placements in four sets, a new high for the tournament.

Perry Shows Skill.

Perry's offensive strokes were scarcely less conspicuous in his match with Quist. It was unexpectedly one-sided as the British ace went on a four-game winning streak to take the opening set and then reeled off 10 games in a row in the last two sets. Perry's stroke analysis showed 30 earned points out of his total of 79.

Sutter lost to Crawford after gaining his quarter final bracket in the morning at the expense of Vivian McGrath, 17-year-old Australian, who features a two-handed backhand shot.

Ross Forgets About Big Fight; Gets Reckless on His Day Off

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Swannanoa, N. J., Sept. 8.—Barney Ross didn't do a lick of work today in his professional capacity as the lightweight champion of the world. He was ordered to take a rest. But nevertheless, Barney, who will earn $30,000 next Tuesday night at the Polo grounds in New York when he defends his title against Tony Canzoneri, gave Art Winch, his comanager, an attack of heart trouble by his recklessness and came within a step of putting himself out of the fight.

Barney's trouble, if it is an ailment, is that he is a normal boy who acts first and thinks afterward. Ross was the official scorer for a quarrelsome foursome at the Lake Hopalong golf course. Coming to the eighth tee, which overlooks the green some 100 yards down a precipice, Barney decided the quickest way down was to follow the caddies, who were tumbling and sliding along the slope without regard for the boulders on the hillside.

It Reminds Art of Someone.

Before Winch could stop him, Barney was in full stride down the hill, leaping and skidding among the rocks. Winch set up a bellow worthy of a fog horn but Barney, even had he wanted to, couldn't stop. While Winch yelled and the others in the party waited almost breathless, Barney completed the 100 yard descent in safety. A twisted ankle and Tuesday night's bout perforce would have been cancelled.

"Aw, I wasn't going to fall," Barney grumbled when Winch had come puffing down the hill.

"And where would you get another $30,000?" Art asked. "Can you imagine him" Winch thumbed in Ross' direction, "taking a chance like that? You'd think he was King Levinsky."

Barney slept until 10 o'clock this morning and his sparmates tiptoed around the cabin until the champion wakened. After a short walk Barney breakfasted. He gets only two meals each day and is extremely careful about the amount of water he consumes. Between now and Tuesday afternoon he has some three pounds to lose from his solid frame work.

Barney Referees Disputes.

Around noon the golfing party commandeered an automobile and started for Lake Hopalong, a sizeable body of water some 15 miles from here on the shores of which an ambitious golf architect has dug out a course worthy of mountain goats.

Barney wasn't swinging clubs, now that his muscles are set for swinging gloves, but he did assent to keep score. Ross tabulated the totals and checked off each player's strokes. He also refereed several arguments over hole and stroke purses.

Joe Foley, who matched Ross and Canzoneri at the Chicago Stadium last June; Bob Kent, a friend of Barney's; Winch and THE TRIBUNE correspondent formed the foursome. Foley, Winch and Kent do not shoot very good golf.

Barney had a rub and a nap late this afternoon while others of his entourage took a dip in Lake Swannanoa. After dinner Ross loafed around the club, listened to the radio and then hiked off to bed. He's ready for the final two days of boxing and in the best of spirits, absolutely convinced he will lick Canzoneri.

Benny Likes Barney.

This opinion, and we're anticipating an announcement which Benny Leonard, one time lightweight phantom, will make later on at space rates in the New York papers, is shared by Benny. Leonard predicts Barney will win and anticipates he will stop Canzoneri during the last half of the fight. According to Benny, Canzoneri is only 80 per cent as effective as when he won the championship three years ago. He also thinks Barney will become one of the greatest in the long list of great lightweights.

Reports of money received at the box office made to Sam Pian by telephone are some $35,000 in hand.

SENATORS' WORLD SERIES LINEUP BEATS SOX, 11-2

Heat and Hits Drive Three Pitchers to Cover.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8. — The White Sox today got tangled up with the exact cast Manager Joe Cronin plans to put forth in the opening game of the world series, including Al Crowder, who was engaged in the business of hanging up his 22d victory of the year.

The fact that the Chicagoans took a 11 to 2 licking at the hands of the inaugural personnel need not be of special concern to the National league, however, for its champions probably will be able to muster a bit better pitching than that turned in by the first three of the quartet of hurlers summoned by Manager Fonseca today.

The General Breezes Along.

In view of the terrific heat and humidity which prevailed in Washington today, Crowder did not bear down especially, allowing the Chicagoans nine hits, which was exactly three times as many as they made in winning yesterday. One of the few hits which annoyed him was a triple by Haas in the first inning, which gave the Sox a lead of brief duration.

In the fifth and sixth innings Crowder's leisurely manner got him into jams, in the fifth with runners on second and first and none out and in the sixth with loaded bases and none out. On each occasion Al put on the headlock and pitched a double play ball. Presto, the rallies were over.

The game did not become really namby pamby until the Senator eighth. In that inning, with Gaston pitching, Goslin and Manush singled. Then Manager Cronin socked his fourth hit and second double, Goslin scoring. Gaston walked Schulte, filling the bases after which Kuhel drove a triple to the flagpole. It was decided that Milt wasn't effective and Faber came in. He retired the next three batters, Kuhel scoring in the process.

Sox Lead for a Bit.

The Sox hopped off to a one run lead in the first inning as a result of that triple by Haas. After Swanson had started the game with a foul to Kuhel, Haas drove the ball to the farthest point in the confines of the park, easily making third. Mule scored on Dykes' fly to Schulte. Simmons also filed to Schulte.

Appling led off the second inning with a single to right, but was forced by Kress. Hayes fanned and Kress was doubled off first, Sewell to Kuhel.

The Senators took their lead in their half of the second. Cronin opened with a single to left and advanced on Schulte's sacrifice. Kuhel's drive hit the right foul line and it went for a double, Cronin scoring. Bluege walked and the situation seemed well in hand when Sewell chased three curves across the plate. Crowder, however, crossed up the works by singling to center, scoring Kuhel and

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Harry McCall used to conduct the "Dizzy" saloon in Dearborn street near Madison, a high class place of its kind and not what its name might imply. The militant Carrie Nation on one of her tours was stopping at the Saratoga hotel. She caused Harry to "dress" the beautiful marble statue he had in the window of his saloon.

This incident was published in the newspapers and caused the biggest business the saloon ever had known while crowds congregated in front to view the "dressed" statue in such numbers that cable cars were blocked and policemen were required to keep the sightseers moving. M. S.

In the late '60s and early '70s, usually in September, groups of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin Indians, friendly and peaceable, roamed around the north side, mainly along North avenue in the Lincoln park district.

These Indians had live pets with them, such as a few ponies, some squirrels, raccoons, bears, etc., and gave varied exhibitions with them. The braves and little braves showed good form in wrestling, jumping, climbing trees and poles, shooting arrows at small and distant targets, etc. All these stunts, of course, brought an abundance of loose change from the residents.

As there were cows in nearly every family's barn, the papooses had plenty of rich milk. Hausfraus of the preponderant German population also were generous with sandwiches made from home baked bread served with liver or cervelat sausage. J. F. J.

Desolation.

Until I see your smile again,
Until I hear your voice,
I shall remain unhappy—
I have no other choice.
I will not wear your favorite frock,
Nor bake your favorite cake,
I will not watch the moon come up
Across the distant lake.
And when I set the table
With the cups you like of blue,
I'll find I do not care for tea
Unless it's tea with you.

Memory of Emergency Press.

Dear Wake: I note where your paper is about to install new presses costing $1,250,000. That brings to mind the time Oct. 11, 1871, just after the Chicago fire, when the late James Piggot, Steve McNamara, William Ripley and others met at Holmes & Pyott's foundry, on Jefferson near Randolph, to assemble parts of a cylinder press called the Chicago Taylor press and printed an emergency issue for THE TRIBUNE. In testing the press for this edition the firm first printed an advertising card for a commission firm on Lake street.

IT'S 10 OUT OF 11 FROM BOSTON AT WRIGLEY FIELD

Bush Pitches 17th Victory.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs did the best they could yesterday to get the recently boisterous Boston Braves out of the pennant race as quickly as possible. The visitors, embarrassed by futile pitching and a couple of bloomer girl nine plays in the outfield, surrendered by 8 to 3 in their final effort of the year here. It wasn't a new experience for them. They captured only one decision in their season's schedule of eleven games at Wrigley field.

GUY BUSH.

The north siders, in collecting their fifth straight victory and at the same time giving the Braves their seventh consecutive setback, had to contend with four different pitchers. The first was Ben Cantwell, ranking member of the Boston staff, who was searching for his twentieth victory and his eighth in a row. Three innings ended the tall boy's labors, his plea being that he did not feel well. Subsequently Leo Mangum, Bob Brown, and Bob Smith appeared, and they were wrecked by a quantity of action in the late innings.

Bush's 17th Victory.

The Braves had to battle against Guy Bush from start to finish and apparently weren't equal to the job. They ganged on him in only one inning, the fourth, and brought on a tie. Thereafter he proceeded with caution, and his 17th victory became a certainty when his pals put on a big campaign which netted five runs in the sixth and seventh. Three of these might have been avoided if it had not been for a trace of comical outfielding. One of the three runs scored off Cantwell also was due to the same sort of defense.

Since Babe Herman has been such a flop as a hitter in recent weeks he probably deserves honorable mention for his achievements on this occasion. The Babe came out of his trance and put on an act featured by four hits.

Jordan Hits Homer.

Jordan, ably assisted by a tail wind, boomed a homer into the right field seats with two out in the first inning, but it didn't take the Cubs long to adjust that slight setback. They scored a pair in their opening half. Hack led off with a pass and Billy Herman filed to left. Cuyler sailed a liner to left center for three bases to drive Hack home. Babe Herman then singled to center, Cuyler scoring. Stephenson also singled, but Hartnett was an easy out on a roller to Urbanski.

Cantwell insisted on giving another pass to Hack at the start of the third, and the Cubs made use of this to the extent of another run to make their lead 3 to 1. After Hack had strolled he was pushed to second on Billy Herman's sacrifice. Cuyler's infield out put him on third. Babe Herman lined to left and Lee acted as if he had serious intentions of catching the ball but let it slip through his hands. The scorer let this go as a two base drive. Hack scored on it and the Babe took third on Lee's wild return throw. Stephenson couldn't bring him in.

Braves Tie Score.

Jordan's homer was the only hit surrendered by Bush in the first three innings, but the Braves enlarged this total in the fourth when three clouts tied the score at 3 apiece. Jordan singled to center with one out and Berger caromed a single off Hack's glove. Bush filled the bases by passing Whitney. Thompson took advantage of this situation by singling to right. Jordan and Berger scoring and Whitney taking third. Mowry took

TRAINER CHANGE BRINGS LUCK TO ALBERT SABATH

Two Year Old Dan Sabath Wins Handily.

Things haven't been going so well for the horses which race in the silks of Albert Sabath this year.

One disappointment followed another. Mr. Sabath changed trainers a short time ago and placed B. S. Michell, who trained the champion Reigh Count, in charge of his steeds.

Since then his horses have been showing a new ambition. He sent his best 2 year old, Dan Sabath, named for his brother, out in the Des Plaines purse at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Dan Sabath overcame some interference, raced up from the rear in the stretch, squeezed through a narrow opening next to the rail, and won going away by three lengths from Col. Edward R. Bradley's Benevolence. Mumsie landed third money and the heavily backed Wacoche from Audley Farm stable was out of the money.

Dan Sabath galloped the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 3-5, and in the mutuels paid $8.90. He had been second in the Joliet handicap on Monday and won the Des Plaines in a way to indicate it will take a good juvenile to beat him.

Trinchera came back with another brilliant performance yesterday and won the Congress Hotel handicap easily from Princess Camelia, Minton, and three others.

It was the fourth straight victory for the son of Eternal-Canadian Tetrarchia, which carried the silks of T. C. Worden of Chicago. He ran the six furlongs in 1:11 2-5, just a second off the track record, which he had tied earlier in the week. He was in front all the way and was the odds-on favorite, paying $3.38 in the mutuels.

Safe and Sound, a son of For Fair-Refugee II., which races for Thomas D. Taggart's French Lick Springs stable, started the daily double players off yesterday when he won the second race easily after leading most of the way. He paid $18.30 in the mutuels and won like a 1 to 5 shot with all Mr. Taggart's Chicago friends rooting for him to get home in front. The favorite, Spud, won the third race, and the double paid off at $64.26.

Charles W. Bidwill encountered some more bad luck in his racing venture yesterday morning when Wood Bell, his 4 year old chestnut daughter of Altawood-Blended, fell while galloping slowly on the turn beyond the clubhouse at Lincoln Fields and broke her right shoulder. She was destroyed. Trainer Ed Snyder was preparing to give the mare a workout breaking from the five and one-half furlongs post and she was jogging to the starting point when she went down. Her rider was uninjured.

SAFE AND SOUND took command easily while racing wide in first quarter, saved ground as he rounded the turn under steady restraint and, continuing well, was not threatened in the stretch. LEGAL GAMBLE, a strong factor from the start, stood pressure gamely and wore down SILVA in closing strides. Latter was under hustling tactics from the start and held on fairly well.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :23 3-5, :47, 1:12 1-5, 1:25. Two dollar mutuels paid: Spud, $4.44 straight, $2.88 place, $2.98 show; Portodine, $4.40 place, $3.92 show; Celtic Prince, $5.40 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:08. At post 3½ minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving. Daily double paid $64.26.

SPUD, beginning slowly and far back for five-eighths, impeded VOTAN when working his way to outside entering the stretch and, closing with a rush, won with speed in reserve. PORTODINE had speed from the start, saved ground in the stretch and weakened, but outstayed CELTIC PRINCE. Latter rallied mildly after reaching stretch, then faltered.

JOHN MILL raced wide throughout and, under mild restraint until reaching the stretch, responded to light urging and, wearing down PRINCESS VAL, came away slowly. Latter had the most speed from the start, increased her advantage on stretch turns, and held on fairly well, but was not good enough. GLOVE had no mishap and also stood the drive gamely.

Michell. Went to post at 4:01. At post 9 minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

DAN SABATH, fractious at post but away well, was eased out of close quarters when leaving the back stretch, came through on inside when responding to strong urging entering the final quarter and, disposing of BENEVOLENCE, came away fast. Latter, away fast and having fine speed, bore out slightly on stretch turn, and while no match for winner held on creditably. MUMSIE lost ground to stretch, where she went to inside and held on well.

Jones. Went to post at 4:33½. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

TRINCHERA took command quickly and, aided by good rating, maintained keen speed to end and, responding when left, PRINCESS CAMELIA saved ground throughout and, holding on gamely, outstayed MINTON. Latter saved ground on stretch turn and closed resolutely when straightened up.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and one-sixteenth. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by A. C. Schwartz. Went to post at 4:39. At post 1¼ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

SISTER ZOE, along until reaching three-eighths, came away fast on stretch turn and faltered after reaching final eighth, but withstood SISTER ZOE, pulling up lame. SISTER ZOE, under energetic riding after reaching final half-mile, held on gamely. BATTLING GIRL had no mishap. BRING BACK, far back from the start, lacked her best speed.

Winner trained by B. A. Jones. Went to post at 5:26. At post 2 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

LAHOR, away fast, but taken back under steady restraint, responded stoutly when called upon as he came through on inside when entering stretch and, holding on gamely, withstood ELCIDIO. Latter, away fast and having speed, gave a sharp cut on stretch turn and closed strong when clear. SCIMITAR, far back for three-quarters, moved up fast on extreme outside, but weakened badly in the final eighth.

HUBBELL HALTS PIRATES; GIANTS TRIUMPH, 2 TO 1

New York Increases Lead to 6½ Games.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Carl Hubbell pulled the New York Giants' faltering fortunes back into safer regions today and the National league leaders increased their lead to 6½ games by beating the Pirates 2 to 1 in the final game of their series.

The Giants lost the series 3 to 2, but the final triumph diminished Pirate hopes of beating out the New Yorkers in the pennant race. The Pirates have only 21 more games to play and the Giants 23, a scant allowance on which to overcome a 6½ game lead even though the league leaders still face the remainder of a hard western tour.

Traynor's Error Helps Giants.

Young Hal Smith, who has the best record among the Pirate pitchers, opposed the Giants' star southpaw. He pitched well enough for most occasions, but couldn't keep up to Hubbell. The Giants got a run in the third aided by an error by Pie Traynor, and that was the margin by which they won.

The first Giant run came after two were out in the third. Joe Moore beat out a scratch single to Traynor and went to second when Traynor threw the ball past first. Hughie Critz scored him with a single through the center of the diamond.

In the seventh, George Davis opened with a double, the only extra base hit of the game, moved to third when Gus Mancuso laid down a sacrifice and scored after Blondy Ryan hoisted a long fly to Lindstrom.

Thevenow's Single Starts Trouble.

Thevenow's single on a high bounder which hopped over Critz's head started trouble for Hubbell in the eighth. Earl Grace singled to send Tommy to third and he scored when Pinch Hitter Adam Comorosky forced Pinch Runner Hal Finney at second. Lloyd Waner's single and a walk to Paul Waner loaded the bases, but Hubbell sent for a towel to dry his hands, pitched one ball to Traynor and the third baseman went out on an easy bounder to end the rally.

SIREN CAPTURES OPENING RACE FOR LUTZ TROPHY

Competition in the annual Q boat series for the Lutz trophy of the Jackson Park Yacht club should be keen in the final two races, judging from the finish of the first one yesterday. Siren, the Karas brothers' entry from the Chicago Yacht club, defeated its rival, the Robinson brothers' Hope, by one second. Siren finished in 1 hour 47 minutes 24 seconds, with Hope a second behind. Princess, owned by Edmond Jedzry-Kowski and Carl Kallgren of the home club, was third in 1:47:51, while the fourth entry, Bob Conklin's Chaperon, also from Jackson park, was timed in 1:52:22. The second race will be sailed today, with the final tomorrow.

ATHLETICS BEAT INDIANS, 9 TO 2, FOR 3D STRAIGHT

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Athletics climbed to within two games of third place today with a 9 to 2 victory, their third straight over the Cleveland Indians.

Merritt [Sugar] Cain's six hit pitching and Jimmy Foxx's 42d homer of the year had a lot to do with the A's victory.

Root to Pitch Opener Against Phillies Today

Charley Root, seeking his fourteenth victory, will pitch for the Cubs today in the opener of a four game series with the Phillies. The latter used up so many pitchers while taking it on the chin at St. Louis that there is no way of telling who will work for them this afternoon.

Pinkey Whitney had the distinction yesterday of making two errors in the same play. He took one for booting Billy Herman's roller in the fifth and the other when he threw wild after capturing the elusive ball. Herman went to second on the latter blunder.

The Tuesday game with the Phillies has been moved up to complete a double header for tomorrow. That will give the Cubs a day off prior to opening the series in which they hope to pull down the leading Giants. Six games must be played in four days.

Grube Misses One.

Grube got the latter half of the third inning off to a bad start when he dropped Goslin's easy pop up in front of the plate. Manush lined to Swanson, but Cronin doubled to right, Goslin stopping at third. Schulte flied to Haas, Goslin scoring after the catch and Cronin taking third on the throw to the plate. Kuhel walked and stole second, then Bluege bounced out to Kress.

The Sox got two on in the fourth, but they waited till two were out to do it. After Haas and Dykes had been retired, Simmons singled to center for the third hit off Crowder. Then Appling walked. The inning ended when Cronin threw out Kress.

Heving got Sewell and Crowder out on infield taps to start the Senators' fourth, then suddenly bogged down, apparently under the distressing heat. After the outs Myer, Goslin and Manush rapped successive singles, the net of which was one run and the replacement of Heving by Kimsey.

It's All So Tiring.

A double play blotted out what should have been a big inning in the sixth. The bases were full with no one out as the result of singles by Haas and Dykes and a pass to Simmons. Appling flied to Goslin, Haas scoring and Dykes taking third. Kress then hit into the double killing, Cronin to Myer to Kuhel.

The heat started to bear down on Kimsey in the Senators' sixth. He walked Crowder on four pitches, then walked Myer. Goslin forced Myer. Crowder stopping at third, then Manush fouled to Dykes. Cronin came through with his third hit of the game, a single to left which scored Crowder. Hayes tossed out Schulte.

Gaston took over the pitching job in the seventh and got the first two batsmen out. He then hit Sewell with a pitched ball, after which Crowder doubled to left center, scoring Sewell. Shortly after came the rude work in the Washington eighth.

Lakeview, runner up in the Chicago Post-office Baseball league, and Cuneo Press will play an exhibition game at McKinley park today.

Bush Pitches 17th Victory for Cubs, 8-3

Lee's place at this point and flied to right, but Whitney made no attempt to go home on the catch. A double play put a quick finish to the incident.

Mangum put in two good innings before succumbing to the treachery of his mates in the sixth. Babe Herman opened with a legitimate single and was forced by Stephenson. Hartnett looped a single into right to put Stevie on third. Grimm hit what looked like an every day fly to left field, but it didn't pan out that way. Mowry forgot there was a wind blowing and the ball drifted beyond his reach for a double, Stephenson and Hartnett scoring. Grimm hiked home with the third run of the inning when Jurges' short, low fly dropped in center for a single.

Brown's welcome in the seventh was so strenuous that he didn't stay long. Hack started it with an infield single and raced to third on Billy Herman's single to right. Cuyler also singled to right, Hack scoring. That was enough for Brown. Smith took over the job, and the first happening under his régime was Babe Herman's fourth hit, a single to center, which scored his namesake, Billy, with the final run. Smith then set down the next three men.

St. Adrian and St. George in C. Y. O. Final

St. Adrian's, Chicago C. Y. O. finalists for the last two years, and St. George's, of Louisville, Ky., will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Comiskey park for the first national Catholic baseball tournament championship.

The teams are the survivors of an original field of eight teams, representing four states. St. George's won from the Chicago C. Y. O. champions, St. Hyacinth's, 10 to 6, and eliminated Salt Lake City, Utah, 12 to 6.

St. Adrian's, runnersup to St. Hyacinth's in the Chicago C. Y. O. race, defeated St. Joseph of Rockdale, Ill., in the opening game, and won, 7 to 5, over St. Peter's, Aurora, Ill., in the semi-finals.

St. George's played 15 games, winning 14. St. Adrian's lost only one game out of 14 played.

Steve Crimmins and Johnny Halpen, who have pitched St. George's to two titles in two years, will oppose two lefthanders—Lefty Stevens and Lefty Owens of St. Adrian's.

MITCHELL BEATS BOZAK IN FIVE ROUND FIGHT

Scotty Sylvano beat Pete Blanchard. [4].
George Engel and Eddie Smith drew. [4].
Frank Ketter beat Eddie Domas. [4].
Jack O'Brien won on foul from Freddie Mitchell. [3].

Ex-Wife Sues Jack Kearns for $2,720 Back Alimony

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Legana Angel, former show girl and ex-wife of Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, today sued Kearns under terms of her Chicago divorce claiming $2,720 back alimony due for the last two years.

Lott Will Play in Australian Tennis Matches

George M. Lott, Chicago's international tennis star, will compete in the Australian-United States Davis cup team matches at Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, Tuesday and Wednesday. This was announced yesterday by Charles S. (Chuck) Garland, official referee. On the closing day Lott will meet Dan Turnbull of Australia in a singles match and then will team with Wilmer Allison against Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath of Australia in the doubles.

M'GUFF, IRISH QUARTER BACK, QUITS SCHOOL

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Al McGuff of Chicago, who was being groomed to play quarter back for Notre Dame, will not return to school this fall, it was learned today in a letter from McGuff to Coach Heartly Anderson.

No reason was given for his withdrawal. Three quarter backs were lost by graduation last June. They were Emmett Murphy, Chuck Jaskwhich, and Laurie Vejar.

The job will probably go now to Tony Mazziotti, White Plains, N. Y., sophomore.

DUBLINSKY WINS DECISION OVER JACK ELVIRRELLO

Harry Dublinsky gave Jacquette Elvirrello a ten round beating last night in the windup of the first indoor boxing show of the season at the Cicero arena. There were no knockdowns.

The six round semi-final between Sammy Levine and Johnny Fitzpatrick ended in a draw. Other results were:

Joey Kleko and Steve Padjo, draw [4].
Sammy Adams beat Mickey Landis [4].
Jack O'Connell stopped Johnny Reba [4].
Carl Scallise beat Popeye Huber [4].

BEARS CUT TWO OFF ROSTER AS TEAM SWELTERS

Culver Joins Notre Dame All-Stars.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The roster of the Chicago Bears was cut to 29 today with the release of Dick Smith, Ohio State center, to the Boston Redskins and the unconditional release of Bill Miller of Purdue. Smith will report tomorrow to the Redskins, who are working out on the campus of Northwestern university. Miller is a brother of Ookie Miller, Bear center and one of Purdue's stalwarts of 1931.

Coach George Halas, faced with an abundance of material, must cut the Bears' squad to 25 before the opening game of the National Pro league with Green Bay Sept. 24. The roster must be reduced to 22 after the third league contest.

Hanson's Work Impressive.

Each practice is apparently making the job more difficult for him. Cliff Hanson, former Luther college star, is showing new possibilities as a triple threat star daily. His punting ranks with that of Dick Nesbitt, best punter in the league last year.

Red Grange will join the squad Sunday in Chicago, Halas announced today.

Alvin Culver, a tackle, joined the camp of the Notre Dame All-Stars, who will play the Bears at Soldiers' field, Chicago, Sept. 16. The All-Star roster now includes Marty Brill, Harry O'Boyle, Laurie Vejar, Paul Host, Mike Koken, Bernie Leahy, Nordy Hoffmann, Tom Conley, George Kozac, Tom Yarr, and Tim Moynihan.

Both teams sweltered through the third day of intense heat today with morning and afternoon drills. Some of the Bears reported losing as much as 10 pounds in the double workout, Harold Auer, former Michigan tackle, dropping an even dozen.

SCHISSLER PICKS BAUSCH

Coach Paul Schissler will see his Chicago Cardinals in action against outside opposition for the first time tomorrow when he takes the complete squad of 30 men to Aurora for a practice game with the Aurora Ideals.

Schissler named the veteran Cardinal line in his tentative lineup, but designated two new back field men, Jim Bausch for full back, and Harold Moe at a half back.

This pair is showing so much stuff in workouts at the Mills stadium location that it is safe to assume they have just about clinched permanent berths.

Les Malloy, former Loyola university star, and Walt Holmer of Northwestern have been named to fill out the back field. Malloy will play quarter back.

Franny McNally will start at center with Creighton, Williams, and Kiesling on one side and Blumer, Gordon, and Kassel on the other. Schissler has been especially pleased with the work of Creighton at end.

Yesterday's drill consisted of signal practice as the squad had scrimmage three days in a row.

NEGRO BASEBALL TEAMS ARRIVE FOR TITLE GAME

The east and west baseball teams which will meet tomorrow afternoon at Comiskey park for the Negro baseball championship arrived in Chicago yesterday to take final workouts before the game.

Accompanying players were their managers, John H. Lloyd for the east and Jim Taylor for the west, both stars of former years.

Each squad included 17 players, four pitchers, two catchers, and regular and reserve infielders and outfielders.

W. A. Greenlee, chairman of the Negro National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, will be in charge of the game tomorrow.

DR. PARKHURST RITES TO BE HELD IN ATLANTIC CITY

Won Fame for His War on Tammany Hall.

New York, Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The funeral of Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, the militant clergyman who blasted Tammany Hall from power in New York City in 1892, will be held at the First Presbyterian church, Atlantic City, at a time yet to be fixed. The minister was fatally injured early today in a fall from the roof of his home at Ventor, N. J. He died in Atlantic City hospital an hour after the fall.

Dr. Parkhurst, who was 91 years old, was a sleep walker and shortly before 3 a. m. went to the bathroom. Through a window of this room he stepped out on the porch roof, walked to the edge and stepped off into space, falling about 16 feet to the ground. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Condemned Reformers.

One of his last public utterances was on the occasion of his ninetieth birthday, when he said that New York City was like a big house which needs a "thorough scrubbing every so often."

In the twilight of his life, under the mellowing influence of years, the famous clergyman who has been called the ideal of all reformers repudiated reform denied that he had ever been a reformer and proclaimed that reform and reformers, as people understood "those weasel terms," were dead, finished and done for. "You cannot legislate the human race into heaven," he said.

"All the reformers I have met, have a genuine itch to make the world better; but they irritate more souls than they heal and purify," he recently wrote in an article for the New York Times magazine. "They work on the principle that you can pump goodness into a man if you will first pump out the badness to make room for it. A saint, according to them, is a deflated sinner. For such a doctrine I cannot pump up any enthusiasm.

"The world can be made safe for moral decency only by the process of education."

War with Tammany.

Dr. Parkhurst first attracted more than local attention when in the course of a sermon in 1892 he denounced the then New York City administration as "a damnable pack of administrative bloodhounds, polluted harpies, and a lying, perjured, rum-soaked, libidinous lot."

A storm of denunciation broke upon Dr. Parkhurst and he was called upon to prove his charges.

Dr. Parkhurst carried his fight to the legislature and obtained the appointment of the famous Lexow committee, whose investigation of conditions not only substantiated his most serious charges, but resulted in a wholesale reorganization of the police department.

Poet-Philosopher, Once Wealthy, Dies Penniless

Denver, Col., Sept. 8.—(AP)—With a poem in praise of "Death, the Poor Man's Friend" on his lips, Charles W. Stewart, poet, scientist, and philosopher who came to Colorado from Louisville, Ky., with a sizeable fortune in 1886, died penniless in the charity ward of a hospital here today. He was 87 years old. His late wife, Mrs. Jessie K. Folsom-Stewart, was widely known as a scientist spiritualist.

Henry M. Quackenbush, Prolific Inventor, Dies

Herkimer, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Henry Marcus Quackenbush, 86, whose inventions ranged from air rifles and bicycles to nut picks, died today at home. He suffered a heart attack last spring.

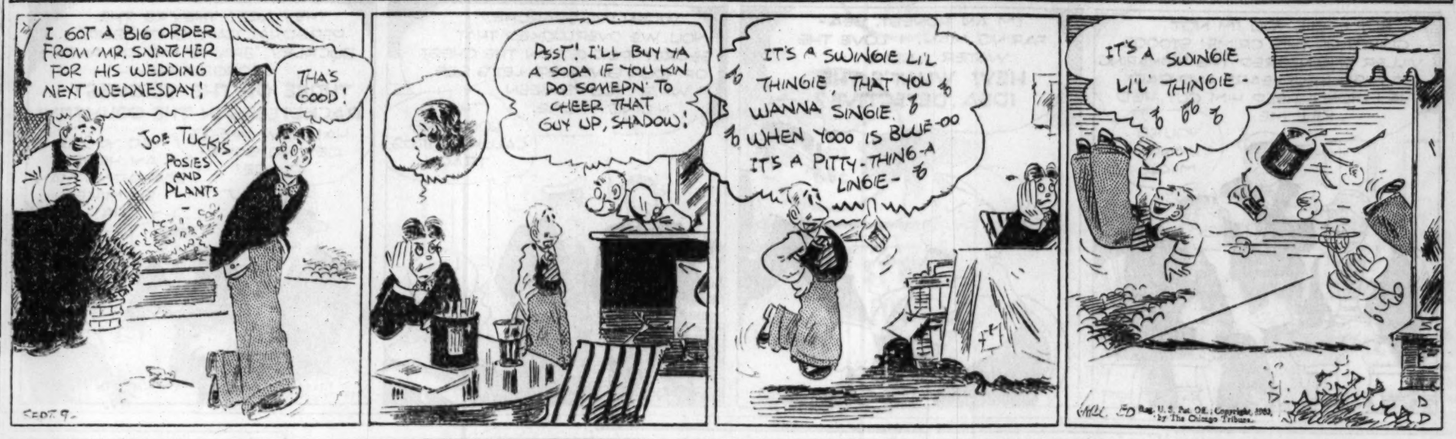
HAROLD TEEN—AN UNAPPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE



RITES TODAY FOR WILLIAM D. KING, CIVIL WAR VET

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. today for William D. King, a pioneer real estate man and civil war veteran who survived wounds received in three battles. He died Thursday at his home, 8207 Ellis avenue, at the age of 89.

Mr. King was born Feb. 25, 1844, in Alden, N. Y. In 1861 he enlisted in the 14th Wisconsin infantry. He was wounded twice in the battle of Shiloh, again when he was with Gen. Grant at Vicksburg, and finally was shot five times during Gen. Sherman's "march to the sea."

Mr. King came to Chicago in 1868 and had charge of the general delivery department at the postoffice during and after the great fire. While holding this post, he struck up friendships with a score of personages, including Marshall Field.

He went into the real estate business and became active in Republican politics, particularly in the old First ward. He was a state representative from 1892 to 1896. He was a charter member of the A. F. & A. M., Home lodge, a 32d degree Mason and a member of Medinah shrine. He was also a member of George H. Thomas post No. 5, G. A. R.

Services will be held in the chapel at 63d street and Evans avenue, and burial will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

Mrs. Henry Martyn Bacon, Widow of Attorney, Dies

Mrs. Daisy Moss Bacon, widow of Henry Martyn Bacon, prominent attorney, died Thursday in the Highland Park hospital. She lived at 121 North Linden avenue, Highland Park, and was active in north shore social groups. Mrs. Bacon helped to organize occupational work for veterans at Fort Sheridan immediately after the war and continued this interest at the Great Lakes hospital in recent years. She is survived by two sons and a daughter. They are Robert L. and H. M. Bacon, and Mrs. Harold O. Barnes. Services will be held at 3 p. m. today at the home.

CHICAGO EVENING POST PROPERTY IS REORGANIZED

Bondholders Get New Bonds and Stock.

The final step in the reorganization of the old Chicago Evening Post property was taken yesterday with the filing of a trust deed by which the Chicago Evening Post Building corporation conveys title to the building and 39 year leasehold to the Trust Company of Chicago as trustee.

John C. Meiners, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee states that the reorganization plan which was announced last December provides for the exchange of the old bonds for new income bonds on which such interest will be paid as earned. The holders of the new bonds will also receive 80 per cent of the stock of the building corporation. The remaining 20 per cent will go to Carroll Shaffer, head of the old building corporation. The new bonds will be secured by a junior mortgage and by the pledge of the old first mortgage bonds which have been deposited.

Most of Old Bonds Deposited.

Out of the original $1,800,000 bonds outstanding, $1,770,000 have been deposited. The reorganization was effected without foreclosure and the plan has been declared operative.

Mr. Meiners stated that the new bonds are being signed and will be delivered shortly. He stated that bondholders have received a payment of 1 per cent and that another of ½ of 1 per cent will be made when the bonds are delivered. The issue was put out by Mosser, Willaman & Co. Default occurred in July, 1931.

Dividend checks were mailed yesterday to holders of trust certificates issued in the reorganization of apartment hotel properties at 14 West Elm street and 1512-18 North La Salle street. The properties were financed through Leight & Co. and the reorganizations were effected about a year ago through the Leight bondholders' committee, of which Adolph Kempner is chairman, George S. Ballard, vice chairman, and Fred W. Heide, secretary.

Dividend Paid from Earnings.

The dividend on the La Salle street property amounts to $1.50 per share and is paid out of earnings. It is the fifth distribution made since the reorganization. Each share represents $100 of the old bonds. The dividend on the hotel at 14 West Elm is 10 cents a share and is being paid out of the surplus funds of the building corporation resulting from reorganization. Each share represents $10 of old bonds.

A lease filed for record yesterday disclosed that the Shell Petroleum corporation will pay to Robert J. Dempsey 1 cent a gallon for gasoline it sells as rental for the filling and service station at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Catalpa avenue.

The property, which fronts 100 feet on Sheridan road and 150 on Catalpa, is across from the Edgewater Beach hotel property. The lease provides a minimum rental of $225 per month.

WIFE OF NOTED U. S. ATHLETE SEEKS DIVORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GRASSE, France, Sept. 8.—Mrs. Tevis Huhn of New York today filed suit for divorce from her famous athlete husband, one of the most famous hurdlers and quarter mile runners of his time at Princeton and later at Oxford. The charge is incompatibility.

Mrs. Huhn has taken a villa at Cannes. Huhn has been vice consul at Montevideo, but, it is understood, plans to quit the diplomatic service.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The statement made in THE TRIBUNE yesterday that no motion was made in the Machine Gun Jack McGurn vagrancy trial to exclude evidence prior to July 10, the date the new vagabond law became effective, was in error. Attorney Benjamin Feldman said he made this motion in writing to Judge Green in the McGurn case and that the judge refused to entertain it. The same motion made yesterday in the James Belcastro trial

F. C. HAERTHER, 80, PIONEER CHICAGO RESIDENT, BURIED

Funeral services were held yesterday in the chapel at 1253 North Clark street for Frank C. Haerther, a resident of Chicago for 78 years and for many years an employé of the postoffice and the board of election commissioners. Burial was in Graceland cemetery.

Mr. Haerther was born in New York on Aug. 28, 1853, and was brought to Chicago by his parents when he was a year old. As a youth he was apprenticed in the gold framing and gilding trade. One of his first jobs was that of redecorating Crosby's Opera house on Washington street for its opening on Oct. 10, 1871. The theater never opened, being destroyed in the great fire the night before.

Later Mr. Haerther was employed as assistant cashier in the postoffice and after that, for a long period, in the office of the board of election commissioners. For the last three years he had lived in the Lincoln Belmont Y. M. C. A. A brother, Dr. Augustus G. Haerther, survives.

CITY OFFICIALS AT FUNERAL OF DANIEL CARMODY

Thousands of city employés and friends lined nearby streets yesterday as the funeral procession of Acting Fire Commissioner Daniel J. Carmody passed from his home at 628 North Central Park avenue, where services were held.

Taking part in the services were the Rev. William J. Gorman, chaplain of the fire department; the Rev. Francis A. Ryan, pastor of Queen of All Saints church, and the Rev. James A. Hines, pastor of Our Lady of Angels church. Floral tributes almost filled the room.

Mayor Kelly, members of the city council, city department heads, and fire department officers were among the mourners. Many of the city hall offices were closed until after the funeral.

Acting Commissioner Carmody died of heart disease Tuesday night. He was 54 years old. Burial was in All Saints cemetery, Des Plaines.

FIRE IN DENTAL COLLEGE.

A fire caused by a short circuit in the wiring was extinguished after $25 damage had been caused on the first floor of the Chicago Dental college at Congress and Honoré streets early yesterday.

STATE ISSUES CODE OF ETHICS FOR BROKERS

Rigid Rules to Take Effect Sept. 15.

A code of ethics for security dealers, brokers and salesmen—designed to protect the public from unscrupulous operators—will be put into effect Sept. 15, according to an announcement made yesterday by Edward J. Hughes, secretary of state for Illinois. It is reported Illinois will be the first state to have a rigid set of regulations governing security dealers.

EDW. J. HUGHES.

The regulations were drawn up by Edward J. Bippus of the state security department in coöperation with Mr. Hughes. It was explained that they were drawn so as to protect both the public and honest business from the inroads of sharpshooters. Enforcement of the regulations, it was said, will eliminate the bucket shop menace.

Applies to All Dealers.

The code will be applied to every dealer, broker, solicitor, or agent registered under the provisions of the Illinois securities law.

Among the provisions of the code are the following:

It is held that the relationship between all registrants under the securities act and the public is a fiduciary one and shall be so considered by the registrant at all times.

If a broker is also a dealer in securities being sold or offered for sale, the customer shall be specifically informed of that fact and also as to the fact that the dealer or broker is expecting to make a profit in addition to the compensation for his services as broker.

All registrants are to keep themselves free in their dealings with prospective customers from just charges of fraud or misrepresentation. They shall employ full candor and fairness at all times in dealing with customers.

Must Not Mislead Customer.

Customers shall not be deliberately mislead in the purchase or sale of a security. Securities pledged by customers with registrants shall not be used as the personal property by the latter, but shall be safeguarded as a pledge.

A clause particularly directed at bucket shop operators prohibits trading against customers' orders. Such practice carried to the extent of 10 per cent or more in terms of market values of all securities bought or sold on account of customers' orders shall be deemed prima facie evidence of intent to trade against customers' orders. Specifically, the regulations prohibit the dealer selling of the same securities when the customer is buying or of buying when he is selling.

All printed matter issued by persons selling or offering securities shall be accurate and adequate, must plainly state material facts and omit no fact which would render the information misleading or inaccurate.

Regulation on Advice.

Investment counsel or advice, whether by one specializing in this or by a dealer or broker, must be strictly on a basis of the fiduciary relationship between the counselor and the investor. Counsel or advice must not be influenced by the element of profit through sale or trade out of any security held by the customers.

Registrants must not permit or encourage customers to trade beyond their means, make agreements to repurchase or resell securities, etc. Restrictions are imposed on dealers selling securities on the partial payment plan.

Confirmations of sale or purchase of securities must be made within a reasonable time.

Long distance telephone calls in soliciting business must be bona fide. Where the apparent profit from regular commissions is small compared with the sale, indicating something wrong in the background, such calls will be considered prima facie evidence of bad faith and unfair practices.

No registrant may solicit margin accounts or offer securities for sale on margin by communication with any one at his home except where previous consent in writing has been given.

Ontario Premier Criticizes Bank Loans to Farmers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 8.—Appearing as "a citizen and a farmer" before Canada's bank probe commission, Premier George Henry of Ontario today expressed the conviction that Canadian banks did not extend sufficiently long term credits to farmers and particularly to live stock breeders.

Banks Wonder at U. S. Drive to Buy Stock

BY HOWARD WOOD.

"Be smart for once."

That was the remark made by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC in his speech before the bankers' convention urging all banks to sell preferred stock to the RFC.

It was also the gist of his advice to bankers in informal talks outside the convention. Bankers who talked with him at the banquet table or in casual conversations were impressed by his singleness of purpose.

To every banker, big or little, whom he could buttonhole the RFC head gave the same warning. "As a friend I'm warning you that if you're smart you will expand your capital by selling preferred stock to the RFC," he would say.

* *

Jones' exhortations have given the bankers something to talk about. They aren't sure just what he was driving at, but they are all impressed with the seriousness in which he made his appeals.

They recalled the part of his formal address in which he had said:

"Probably the greatest obstacle in the NRA program would be the failure of banks to extend available credit—credit for every unit in our economic structure—the average man, the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker . . .

"It is easy to say 'no' and if that is the program, and we want the government to do our banking, what is to become of our high priced bank talent?

"The office boy can say 'no,' and the note teller can collect the notes if they are good. Why not use this bank talent to find ways and means of providing the necessary credit for business requirements in coöperation with the NRA?"

* *

Even the bankers who know Jones best are unable to determine what it's all about. "Why should a bank already possessing much excess cash for which it cannot find satisfactory borrowers get more cash by selling preferred stock to the RFC?" they ask.

Whether the attempt to make the banks increase their capital is part of the administration's plan to force credit expansion or whether it is a scheme to remedy some of the defects of the guaranty of deposits plan, to which the banks have strenuously objected, the bankers have been unable to decide. Some of them figure it one way and some the other.

* *

Whatever the idea behind the RFC preferred stock program, it has become apparent that the banks are not going for it in a big way. If Mr. Jones is to put his plan into operation he will have to apply pressure.

Which brings up the question: Has the administration already begun to apply this pressure?

Word comes by grapevine from the east that national bank examiners, imbued with a strange new inspiration, have been going through banks in staid old New England and are now in New York rewriting the assets of big banks. What they formerly considered a good liquid loan they are now marking down as "slow." Values are being scaled down.

Is this, ask the bankers, part of a deliberate plot to make it appear that the banks need more capital so that they can be forced to sell preferred stock to the RFC? It is conceded that under the various new banking laws the administration has the power to force the banks to do its bidding by applying enough pressure.

* *

Due to the conservative policy advocated to by A. P. Leyburn, former chief national bank examiner in this district, it is agreed that member banks in the middle west can qualify in good shape for the deposit guaranty corporation. But it is likewise agreed that banks in some other districts may need new capital in order to qualify. The bankers are wondering whether the Jones exhortation to sell preferred stock to the RFC is designed to make it possible for weaker banks to accept RFC help without advertising their need for it by forcing all banks to take some whether they need it or not.

The treasury's September 15 financing announced yesterday was another puzzle to bankers. It introduced an innovation by setting no amount, although the maturities to be met amount to 220 million dollars.

The new nine-months certificates to be issued bear interest at the rate of only one-fourth of one per cent interest. Holders of certificates maturing Sept. 15 may exchange them for the new nine-months certificates. To the extent that the old certificates are not exchanged for new ones the treasury will make up the difference in cash.

* *

About half the 220 millions of maturing certificates are believed to be held by the federal reserve banks, and it is assumed that they will exchange them for the new certificates. As for the rest of the new issue it is believed that a large part of it will be bought by the federal reserve banks.

The consensus of opinion in the financial district yesterday seemed to be that the treasury was putting out this type of security with the deliberate aim of keeping the ordinary commercial banks from investing in it, the reasoning being that banks won't buy nine-months paper and that they will be left with just that much more cash.

The treasury and the federal reserve board are still going on the theory that if the banks keep on piling up cash evenutually they will be forced to lend more liberally. They have gone on this theory for nearly two years, but to date the more cash the banks have the less inclined they seem to be to make what they regard as questionable loans.

Bloomington, Ill., State Bank to Reopen Today

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—The American State bank of Bloomington, closed since the bank holiday, will reopen for business tomorrow, bank officials announced. The reopening will release approximately $900,000, or 50 percent of the deposits that have been kept unavailable to this banking depositors for six months.

RALLY AT CLOSE ERASES STOCKS' EARLY LOSSES

Volume of Trading Picks Up a Little.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—Speculative ardor was kept in leash again today while traders awaited higher visibility on the autumn business outlook.

Stocks put in the day backing and filling in rather aimless fashion but perked up somewhat toward the close. The final figures were mixed, with the more active issues showing changes ranging from a loss of a point to a gain of about as much. Volume was slightly better than yesterday at around 1,270,000 shares.

There was no news of any significance from Washington or elsewhere to influence speculative sentiment, and the trade reviews kept to the even tenor of their recent ways—hopeful, but cautious. They agreed that the fall prospects look good from here but that actual developments in the basic lines leave considerable to be wished for. The firming dollar claimed some attention, but proved of cut little figure in the day's activity.

Credit Rally to Grains.

In the absence of any other explanation, the late afternoon recovery movement was credited to the example set by wheat and other commodities. The buying seemed most active in the repeal and railroad stocks and a few specialties. Up to the time it got way a fairly long list of issues including a number of pivotals were selling around their lows for the movement, some of them as much as 2 or 3 points below last night's closing levels.

One consistently weak leader was Union Pacific, which was under selling pressure most of the day. The rail group leader closed at 118½, which was six points below its previous closing level. Earlier in the day it dipped a half point lower. New York Central was another big time carrier to have its troubles. It sold off to around 45, which was some 2 points below its Thursday night's final, but made up most of its loss in the late rally.

Gold Shares Strong.

Gold mining shares did somewhat better, perhaps on the announcement of the treasury's price at which the mines could sell. Homestake went into the overnight record at 300, up 1½.

United States Steel had its poor moments, but closed with the benefit of a plus sign. American Can and a number of other leading industrials retrieved most of all of their early losses.

Preferred issues again were uncovered in a thin market. Those of Goodrich, Bucyrus, Erie, Mullins Manufacturing, Colorado Gas and Electric, and St. Louis-Southwestern fared the worst, dirping from 2 to around 4 points. Public utilities ranged lower as a rule.

Although trading interest was small in stocks, there were indications that the technical correction of the past week had attracted new demand in many issues. Moderate covering for short account also was in evidence.

DOLLAR GAINS THREE-QUARTERS OF CENT ON FRANC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—The American dollar was in better demand today in terms of foreign currencies. The dollar was worth 70.21 cents at the close in terms of French gold francs, an advance of three-quarters of a cent over yesterday's last price. The final price on the franc was 5.58 cents, against 5.64 cents yesterday.

The British pound also depreciated slightly in terms of United States funds. The final quotation on the pound was $4.54, a fraction of a cent below yesterday's price. Canadian dollars closed at 95.12½ cents in American funds against 95.31½ cents yesterday.

Pemberton Named Bank President at Rock Island

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—G. Herbert Pemberton, for nineteen years an examiner for the Chicago Clearing House association and more recently employed in the Chicago office of the Reconstruction Finance corporation was elected to the presidency of the reorganized Rock Island Bank and Trust company by directors today.

Bankers Pick Group to Plan New Reforms

Caught napping and forced to accept a banking reform bill which they had little hand in shaping at the last session of congress, the country's banking fraternity is now showing belated activity . . formulating a comprehensive program of sound banking reform.

To a committee, of which Guy Emerson, vice president of the Bankers Trust company, New York, is chairman, was delegated the task of making a comprehensive study of the American banking systems and making such suggestions to congress as may be helpful in achieving reforms.

The group was organized by the Reserve City Bankers' association.

Big City Banks Represented.

The former organization is made up of bankers in the twelve reserve bank cities and includes representatives of all the important big city banks in the country. A similar committee is acting on behalf of the larger A. B. A. but the reserve city group is expected to be the spearhead of the movement.

The danger of leaving banking reform matters entirely in the hands of congress has been brought home to bankers by the option as part of the Glass banking bill of 1933 of the federal deposit guaranty scheme, which in the almost unanimous opinion of bankers is economically unsound.

The banks have criticized this feature of the bill with much more conviction than the other drastic provisions, which included abolishment of security affiliates.

Seek to Compose Differences.

The reserve city group will attempt to iron out kinks which have arisen as a result of the legislation adopted and to meet problems resulting from the closer relationship between the government and the banks. In this latter category is the problem of the relations between the banks and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

It is believed that the new committee may become an important liaison agency between the banks and the administration. Perhaps more important, however, is its intention to propose sound fundamental reforms. It was the unpreparedness of the bankers a few months ago which enabled congress to take the matter entirely out of their hands.

CINCINNATI HOME LOAN BANK VOTES DIVIDEND OF 2%

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Fifth District Federal Home Loan bank today declared a dividend of two per cent, payable Oct. 16 to its 308 member building and loan associations in Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

Saying the dividend was the first ordered by a member bank of the system, Chairman Harry S. Kissell of Springfield, O., said officials of the federal home loan system in Washington were amazed at the progress of the bank here.

Founded Oct. 16, 1932, the bank, in addition, he said, has met all its expenses, bought all of its equipment, and contributed $35,000 to the federal government to aid other banks. The Cincinnati bank has loaned out $13,055,000, for which it has collateral of approximately $35,000,000.

U.S. Fixes Gold Price at $29.62; Sale of 'New' Metal Is Started

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—The United States treasury began selling newly mined gold today, acting as the agent for American gold producers.

An official price of $29.62 an ounce was quoted at noon today and sales begun. The new price is based on the world price. Approximately 10,000 ounces of newly mined gold had been handed over to the federal assay offices by miners for sale, the treasury announced.

No Report on Sales.

The treasury was unable tonight to say how much of the gold had been sold, how much had been bought in this country, or how much sold abroad for latter export. No reports had been requested from the field offices, and no sales were conducted in Washington.

While the treasury was quoting a price of $29.62 at which it would conduct sales of newly mined gold, its own mints were still offering only $20.67 an ounce, the price set by the gold standard act. The new official price, if applied to domestic currency, would make gold in the dollar worth $1.45.

Deny Monetary Significance.

Treasury officials today denied that the quoting of a gold price based on the world price was a prelude to reducing the gold content of the dollar by shaving the added 45 cents off it. They continued to insist that the order permitting sales of newly mined gold has no monetary significance.

A new official price for sales will be set each day and will be regulated on the basis of prices in world markets. Gold consigned to the treasury for sale is first offered at that price to domestic consumers in industry and art. If not absorbed in this fashion it will be sold abroad. Producers will get the quoted price minus handling, insurance, and transportation charges.

Daniel W. Bell, a treasury statistical expert and the commissioner of accounts and deposits has been detailed to the task of keeping the domestic quotation in step with prices abroad.

$1 WHEAT IN A YEAR FORECAST BY MURPHY, DELEGATE TO PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—Frederick E. Murphy, chief American delegate to the wheat conference, returned today from Europe pleased with the accomplishments of the conference and convinced that "we will see $1 wheat within a year." He said that "we really accomplished more than we expected."

"I think it is safe to predict that we will have $1 wheat in about a year, and when we have that we have the makings of prosperity," Mr. Murphy said. "I am convinced that the agreements of the wheat conference will result in gradually rising prices and general improvement."

Mr. Murphy, who is the publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, said the wheat surplus has been about 600,000,000 bushels and recent efforts of wheat-producing nations have resulted in a mere balancing of production and consumption, leaving this "carry-over," he said. The agreements reached at the conference will reduce this surplus in a short time, especially if a few countries have bad crops.

"But you can't get rid of it in a day," he declared. "You have to wait and let it work out. I think the effect will be felt immediately and it will gradually improve to the point which so many in America have expected to appear miraculously on the horizon."

Mr. Murphy said nothing would improve the lot of the farmers until people started buying farm products again at reasonable prices.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—Plans for the reorganization of another group of eastern utilities formerly controlled by the Insulls are being advanced rapidly and will be formulated in the near future, following action taken to foreclose on the first lien and collateral trust indenture of the Northeastern Public Service company.

The Chemical Bank and Trust company, holder of all of the first lien bonds of the company, is preparing these plans, which will be submitted to all interested parties and to the court at an early date.

The City Bank Farmers Trust company, as trustee of the Northeastern Public Service company's $4,670,500 first lien and collateral trust 5½ per cent gold bonds, series A, yesterday filed a bill of complaint in Newcastle, Del., against Northeastern Public Service company and Walter G. Mortland and Clarence A. Southerland, its receivers, for foreclosure.

MARTS RESUME USUAL SATURDAY TRADING TODAY

After six weeks of Saturday holidays, normal trading will be resumed this morning in the principal security markets in New York and Chicago. Most of the eastern commodity markets will also resume Saturday trading this morning, but the New York coffee and sugar exchange and the cocoa exchange will remain closed on Saturdays throughout September.

New York commodity and security markets, including the New York Stock exchange, will suspend trading at noon next Wednesday in observance of the half holiday proclaimed for the NRA industrial parade by Gov. Lehman.

M. A. Aurelius, Ex-Banker, Files Bankruptcy Plea

A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by Attorney H. Meyer Simborg on behalf of Marcus A. Aurelius, former vice president of the Calumet National bank. No schedule of assets and liabilities was submitted. Aurelius, who at one time was president of the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' association, recently was exonerated by a grand jury of charges of fraud made by Mrs. Margaret Jones, 2608 East 76th street, in connection with a bond deal in 1927.

Steel Makers Open Books for Fourth Quarter Orders

Leading steel makers have announced the opening of books for fourth quarter business, according to the Daily Metal Trade of Cleveland. With few exceptions the prices are the same as those which prevailed throughout the third quarter. "Producers anticipate that the fall buying movement will shortly appear now that the price position for the fourth quarter has been made known," says the journal.

Retail Trade Rises Despite Higher Prices

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—The upward trend of retail sales has proceeded "unmindful of the general lifting of price levels" and the fall buying season has stimulated commercial activity into broader advances, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said today.

"While a concerted vigilance is being maintained for any curtailment of buying, no evidence of the condition is apparent as yet," stated the agency's weekly review. "In fact, a doubling of the wages of six months ago has not been an infrequent occurrence.

Deferred Buying Made Up.

"With the two and a half millions who have been returned to the ranks of the wage earners since March, the covering of deferred necessities alone has been so insistent that the price factor has lost some of its former predominance in the selection of merchandise."

The slack that appeared around mid-August in the upward line of business "gradually was tightened toward the close of that month, so that the impetus of the strong seasonal expansion is proving propitious in restoring its continuity.

Stronger Advance Predicted.

"With the days of grace now passed for voluntary submission of codes as provided by the Presidential edict, the more rapid rate of adoption from this point may make the progressive gains of the last few months pale into insignificance under the stronger light of the more spectacular achievements of the period which lies immediately ahead.

"The new attitude toward spending alone will afford a succor of no mean proportions to the indecisions of some merchants who had become restive because generous stocks acquired on a rising wholesale market were not disappearing into consuming channels as rapidly as was desired."

GASOLINE PRICE BOOSTED A CENT BY STANDARD OIL

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced yesterday an increase, effective today, of one cent per gallon in the service station and tank wagon price of motor gasoline. The company had already advanced the price by one-half cent on Thursday.

Yesterday morning a subsidiary of the company, the Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing company, announced an advance of 15 cents a barrel in the prices posted for crude oil in Oklahoma, Kansas and north, north central, and east Texas. The new prices, effective from 7 o'clock this morning, have as their maximum 97 cents a barrel in Kansas and Oklahoma, 92 cents in north and north central Texas and 90 cents in east Texas.

"The prompt compliance by the oil states with Secretary Ickes' order allocating production allowable encourages us to believe that progress will now be made toward balancing crude supply with consumptive demand," said R. S. Ellison, president of the Standolind Crude Oil Purchasing company. "In view of this development we believe a better price to producers warranted."

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announced that on Monday bunker fuel oil in the eastern territory will be posted at prices ranging from 95 cents to $1.10 a barrel, or 15 cents above the prevailing prices.

Paul C. Smith Is Elected Swift & Co. Vice President

Directors of Swift & Co. announced yesterday the election of Paul C. Smith as vice president in charge of the beef, lamb and veal, cattle buying, calf buying, and sheep buying departments. Mr. Smith went to work for Swift & Co. twenty years ago at Kansas City. He was transferred to Chicago in 1922 to take charge of meat grading developments and was placed in charge of the beef, lamb and veal departments in 1931.

Auto Sales Show Public Buying Wave

Sales reports from concerns selling directly to the consuming public in various lines leave little doubt as to the breadth of the public buying wave. Whether or not inspired by fears of currency inflation, there is no uncertainty over the genuineness of the public's demand.

The General Motors corporation reported yesterday that sales of cars and trucks to domestic users last month represented the best August since 1930 and came within 54 units of equaling August that year. The improvement over August last year continued the trend which began after the March banking holiday.

Sales Far Above Year Ago.

Sales of cars and trucks to domestic consumers totaled 86,372 units last month, against 87,298 in the preceding month and only 37,320 in August, 1932. For the first eight months this year 573,434 units were sold in this country as compared with 415,653 in the corresponding period last year.

Sales to domestic dealers were 604,812 for the eight months, against 396,998 in 1932, while world sales to dealers were 703,154, compared with 462,206 in the same period last year.

Reports from other motor companies confirm the trend shown by the General Motors figures.

Hudson Sales Improve.

Retail sales of Hudson and Essex cars for the week ended Sept. 2 were the best since the first week in July, 1931, according to Chester G. Abbott, general sales manager. With the single exception of January, last year, August factory shipments were the highest since May, 1931.

Plymouth had the best August in its history, with sales of 33,632 cars to dealers, or more than five times sales in the same month last year. Sales to De Soto dealers also broke all previous August records.

R. L. Polk & Co. yesterday estimated that total sales of all passenger cars last month probably exceeded a year ago and predicted that the September, 1930 record is likely to be passed, even if a seasonal sales recession shall develop.

Walgreen Sales Higher.

The Walgreen company, drug store chain, yesterday reported that August sales were 15.1 per cent ahead of last year. Sales last month were $4,216,883, against $3,663,055 in August, 1932, an increase of $553,828.

Eight months' sales were slightly behind a year ago, with a total of $29,801,019, against $30,950,529. This was a decrease of $1,149,509, or 3.7 per cent. The figures do not include the operations of the company's stores on the World's Fair grounds. On Aug. 31 the company was operating 468 stores, against 469 on the same date a year ago.

R. F. C. PETITIONS FOR TRUSTEES TO RUN DEBTOR ROAD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A petition asking the United States District court to permit appointment of trustees for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad was prepared today by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, a $5,775,000 creditor of the carrier. Formal motion for the petition will be made next Tuesday before the District court of northern Illinois.

The petition was based primarily on the argument of the R. F. C. that the road was being operated under the same management it had prior to its filing of a bankruptcy petition several months ago.

The R. F. C. said the "debtor has consistently failed for many years past to earn any substantial amount on its capital stock" and that earnings for the road from 1930 through the first five months of the present year were "insufficient to pay interest on its indebtedness and even during the prosperous years of 1928 and 1929 the debtor's earnings covered its interest requirements by only a scant margin."

COAL LOADINGS MAY HELP RAILS TO FREIGHT PEAK

As a result of a sharp increase in the demand for both bituminous and anthracite coal it is reported in railroad circles that freight car loadings for the week ended Sept. 2 may set a record for the year. The record to date was established in the week ended July 22, when loadings totaled 648,914.

The Baltimore and Ohio loaded 204,152 cars during August, compared with 195,497 in July and with 148,404 in August, 1932. Reading company loadings totaled 120,366 cars in August, compared with 122,058 in July, 1933, and with 101,085 in August, 1932.

Cars handled by the Norfolk and Western totaled 113,908 in August, compared with 101,972 in July and with 75,304 in August last year.

NEW GRAIN CODE MUM ON WEEKLY BIDS AND OFFERS

Chicago Board Drops Earlier Ban.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

No mention of trading in weekly "bids" or "offers" on grain being prohibited is to be found in the permanent grain exchange code which was unanimously adopted by the directors of the Chicago Board of Trade at a special meeting yesterday.

With this exception the new code is practically the same as the old one, which was returned for revision by the government several weeks ago.

In the original code it provided that each exchange shall abolish trading in all indemnities except those that are good for one day to the close of trading the next market day. The entire provision was eliminated in the new code.

Regulate Trade Practices.

The exchanges are expected to regulate trade practices and those of their members which have been or shall hereafter be in effect.

Minnimum margins are to be demanded in all future trades to the extent of 10 per cent of the purchase price on the first 250,000 bushels or less; 15 per cent on the next 1,750,000 bushels, and 20 per cent on lines in excess of 2,000,000 bushels.

Exceptions to the minimum margin requirements are made to take care of spreading and hedging or where the trades are offset by future transactions in another grain or in provisions on the same or another exchange.

Open Meetings on Conduct.

The secretary of agriculture or his representative has the right to attend any meeting of the business conduct committees, which will enforce the provisions of the code and of the exchanges. A committee of seven representatives of the exchanges will be appointed to be known as the code administration committee to assist in carrying out the NRA and AAA rules and regulations.

Under the provisions of the code as finally adopted by the exchanges employés of the exchanges and members are not to work in excess of 40 hours per week averaged over a six months' period. This provision is not to apply to accounting, clerical or office staffs or other vitally necessary departments during unpredicted emergencies affecting the industry.

It is hoped that a formal hearing on the provisions of the code can be held Sept. 20.

GRAINS CLOSE HIGHER

Scattered liquidation developed in the grain markets early yesterday. The break was not checked until wheat had dropped around 2 cents from the finish of the previous day to 84⅝ cents for the December delivery, at which figure it equaled the low of the previous week. An oversold condition developed on the decline and later there was a sharp rally on buying induced by strength in stocks and announcement of the free gold price by the government.

Sufficient buying developed to bring about an upturn of 2 to 2½ cents from the low point. The close was within a fraction of the top, with net gains of ¼ cent. September finished at 83⅝ cents and December at 86⅞ to 87 cents.

Other Grains Follow Wheat.

Other grains broke early and rallied later. Corn finished unchanged to ⅛ cent higher, September being 46¾ cents and December, 51⅞ to 51⅞ cents. Oats gained ⅞ to 1¼ cents with September closing at 36 cents and December at 39½ cents. Rye was ½ to 1¼ cents higher with December 71½ cents. Barley was unchanged to ¾ cent lower with December finishing at 53¾ cents.

Winnipeg wheat held at the "pegged" prices throughout the day, October holding at 70½ cents, the figure established on Aug. 15. Fears that Canadian hedges might come into the local pit had some effect in creating uneasiness early. Those who should be in a position to know said the liquidating agent of the pool was taking all the hedging sales at the "pegged" figures, and there was little prospect of any selling in the American markets. As far as known, Winnipeg has not been a seller in the Chicago market lately.

Dominion Guarantees Advances.

Following a precedent of several years standing the Canadian government has guaranteed advances made by the banks to the Canadian Cooperative Wheat Producers, Ltd., in order to facilitate the handling of the 1933 wheat crop. The details of the plan were not announced.

Liquidation was a factor in causing a decline of 2¼ to 2⅝ cents per bushel in wheat in Liverpool, and the forecast for possible showers in the province of Buenos Aires, Argentina, also had some effect. The Buenos Aires market declined around 1½ cents.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—[Special.—] With the success of the United States treasury's new financing as of Sept. 15, assured by the ready response today to the offer to exchange ¾ per cent certificates due June 15, 1934, for the maturing 1¼s, and the absence, as expected, of any reference to refunding the war loans, United States government bonds continued strong today.

On the stock exchange the long term government issues closed up 5-32ds to off 2-32ds point. The heavily traded treasury 3¼s scored a further new high at 101 18-32ds.

Corporations Easier.

Further pressure, however, was exerted against domestic corporation bonds on the stock exchange today and this group finished irregularly lower on the day.

Some sections of the foreign list, including German issues, rallied mildly. Although in general the domestic list did not suffer as severe losses as on the days immediately previous, a considerable number of issues dropped 1 to more than 3 points today.

Led by German government issues, the 5½s up 2¼ and the 7s up 1⅞, bonds of the German group recovered some of the ground lost on the previous day.

Japanese Loans Rise.

Japanese government loans were up fractionally as were the Austrian government 7s, due 1943. Dutch East Indies issues continued lower, losing ⅛ of a point to 3½ points. British government, Italian government and French government 7s were fractionally easier. Net changes in prices of Latin American issues were slight. Cuban government loans closed unchanged to up 1½ points.

Seaboard Air Line Railway.

Investors' Guide: Please give me complete information on Seaboard Air Line Railway.—T. A. J.

Answer: The pricking of the Florida real estate bubble in 1926 and contraction of traffic beginning in 1929, due to national economic conditions, resulted in a receivership for Seaboard Air Line Railway company in December, 1930. All bonds, except receiver's certificates, equipment trust obligations and a small amount of leased line bonds, are in default as to interest. In order to facilitate the sale of receivership certificates the receiver received the consent of bondholders not to foreclose prior to Feb. 1, 1935.

The company operates about 5,000 miles of road along the Atlantic coast, extending from Richmond to the southern tip of Florida and branching laterally into Alabama. Most of the revenue comes from transportation of agricultural products, mainly citrus fruits, watermelons and cotton. Mine products, such as gravel, bituminous coal and stone, rank highest in point of tonnage.

Some improvement has been shown during 1933. Although gross dropped 3.2 per cent in the first half [increase of 9.7 per cent was evidenced in June] net railway operating income soared 125.4 per cent over the first half of 1932. Final net loss was $3,390,000, against loss of $4,220,000 for the first half of 1932. Operating income in July, 1933, was $172,000, against operating loss of $304,000 in July, 1932.

Loss in 1932, before interest on adjustment bonds, was $9,528,000, against loss of $7,111,000 for 1931, loss of $4,599,000 for 1930 and net income of $1,012,000 for 1929. In 1926 net profit was $3,179,000.

On June 30, 1933, current assets, including cash of only $2,843,000, totaled $13,490,000, and current liabilities, including $18,332,000 unpaid dividends and interest and $17,553,000 unpaid matured funded debt, aggregated $45,887,000.

The company is heavily capitalized. The common stock is preceded by about $150,000,000 unmatured funded debt, $13,323,000 receiver's certificates, a substantial amount of matured funded debt and interest, and 238,941 shares of $100 par preferred plus accrued dividends.

Any reorganization, which must await improvement in operations, will undoubtedly call for a drastic scaling down of junior claims. At this time it is impossible to ascertain what if any consideration will be given to owners of the equity.

ROADS OFFERED PUBLIC WORKS' LOANS FOR RAILS

Roosevelt Has Plan to Aid Steel Industry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Wishing to pep up the lagging steel industry, President Roosevelt announced today that he had started a program to loan some of the public works' easy money to the railroads provided they buy steel rails with it.

But the President said he would specify that the steel companies must reduce the prices of rails before the loans will be made. Rail prices, he said, are one of the few that failed to go down during the course of the depression, and he believes that now they are inordinately high.

Part of General Program.

The effort to revive steel production, which has lagged in the last month from a high point of 59 per cent of capacity down to 45 per cent, is part of a presidential program to stimulate production in the major or "capital goods" industries. The Roosevelt plans for nation-wide housing construction were disclosed yesterday.

While nothing approaching a genuine fear in the present situation has been shown by the administration, it is recognized that a tumble in employment in the steel industry at this time would be reflected in other industries and that the psychological feeling of well-being which has pervaded the American atmosphere since the advent of Roosevelt might turn to one of pessimism.

The President said he had discussed the public works loans to railroads for the purchase of rails, with Secretary Ickes, Rail Coördinator Eastman, and various railroad leaders.

Rail Leaedrs Enthusiastic.

They were all enthusiastic for the plan, Mr. Roosevelt related to newspapermen at this afternoon's press conference. He said that the prices which he might deem fair had not yet been determined, nor the rate of interest and terms on the loans to be made to the roads.

Asked whether the public works program would include the elimination of railway grade crossings, as is provided in the public works bill, the President said that the matter was being studied, but that in most states insufficient preparation has been made on such programs.

It would take many months before such work could be put under way, which is contrary to the purposes of the public works plan, Mr. Roosevelt said. If highly desirable projects can be started immediately, the loans from the federal fund will be forthcoming, it was indicated.

MEMBERS RENEW THREAT TO MOVE N. Y. EXCHANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 8.—A threat that the New York Stock exchange would be moved out of New York City if the proposed four cents a share municipal transfer tax is voted was made today by Arthur G. Somers, stock exchange member and one of the governors of the Association of Partners, at the end of a meeting of the board of estimate which he and other Wall street men attended.'

Richard Whitney, president of the stock exchange, was cornered by newspaper men.

"If this transfer tax is passed, is there any possibility that the stock exchange will move out of New York City?" he was asked. Mr. Whitney laughed and shrugged the question away.

"We're going to move if they adopt this tax," Somers said. "I'm head of the committee. We're looking for options on property in New Jersey. We've been working on this thing for months. We can save $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a month. That will give us enough to build any kind of a building we want."

GOODYEAR DROPS TO 4 DAY WEEK WITH TIRE LULL

Akron, O., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The factory of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has gone on a four day basis, company officials announced today. A five day week was worked through most of August and a six day week at the peak of production, in the early summer. Practically all factory employés work a six hour day.

The shorter week was adopted to spread employment among as many workers as possible during the seasonal decline in business, the statement said.

Goodyear has laid off 400 men since Aug. 15, when 15,944 employés were on the pay rolls, as compared with the 1929 average of 16,755 and against 11,091 in August, 1932. Unless business is better than now expected another 800 workers probably will lose their jobs before Sept. 30, officials said.

Fraser Is Made President of Shell Petroleum Corp.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Appointment of Alexander Fraser as president of the Shell Petroleum corporation and its affiliated companies was announced today. He succeeds R. G. A. Van Der Woude, who has been transferred to New York to become affiliated in an executive capacity with the Shell Union Oil corporation. Fraser has been vice president of the Shell corporation for several years.

THREAT TO HALT BONUS CHECKS FLOOD OF PIGS

Packers Can't Fill Orders; Expect New Deluge.

The government's threat to halt the bonus on pigs coming into Chicago without a shipping permit bore fruit yesterday where pleas for orderly marketing had failed. The movement of government pigs dried up at many of the principal points, but stock yards men regard it as a temporary letup and look for the full quota again next week.

Packers yesterday found the supply below their tanking capacity and all holdovers as well as the fresh arrivals were cleaned up before the end of the day. Packing houses had orders for pigs enough to keep their tanks in operation over the week-end, and also wanted enough to carry over for an early start Monday morning. Few obtained enough for this.

Only 10,000 Arrive.

The fresh arrivals totaled only 10,000, while the holdover from Tuesday amounted to 28,000. Packers had orders for more than 40,000 pigs. Yardmen and office clerks in commission houses and in the hog buying departments of the packers rejoiced at the welcome letup in the deluge of pigs which has kept many of them working far into the night in an effort to catch up on the mass of clerical work the pig killing program has created.

While the killing off of pigs is far ahead of schedule, not much more than the normal run [illegible] has been on the market since the government started paying premiums for those that appeared to be ready to farrow.

Calls Program Futile.

"The futility of the pig killing plan as a method of cutting the production of pork is already obvious," said one market expert. "The farmer is holding piggy sows back to farrow, firm in the belief that the government will take care of the next litter of surplus pigs, too, despite the statement of the secretary of agriculture that the bonus offer for pigs will not be repeated. The contention of many of the farmers is that the surplus will be taken off the farms in some other manner at a profit to themselves.

The point is, that such plans have just the opposite intended effect on production. There is a tendency to increase breeding as a result. The killing off of 4,000,000 pigs will reduce the pork supply to a certain extent over a few months this winter and spring, but in less than six months the sows being bred now will have another crop of pigs. The plan has encouraged the farmer to hold back his sows and sell his pigs to the government."

REPORT OF SALE TO RUSSIA KEEPS LARD PRICES STEADY

Rumors that liberal sales of American hog products might be made to Russia in the near future are said to be the basis for some buying of lard futures.

Scattered liquidation developed in the January delivery early, but it recovered part of the loss later. Shorts bought September lard and it closed 2½ cents higher, while the distant futures were unchanged to 7½ cents lower with January leading. Cash lard was unchanged at $4.50 with loose $4.85 and leaf $4.87. Domestic demand was reported as good and there was a fair export business under way.

Bellies were unchanged to 15 cents lower with liquidation by scattered longs in the nearby deliveries. Cash bellies were unchanged at $5.87.

Stocks of lard in the United States were recently estimated at 212,000,000 pounds, the largest on record. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed barely steady at 4 to 13 points net decline. Sales were 37 contracts. The easiness was due to increased liquidation in December and January, which offset the better government cotton report than expected, showing a crop of 12,414,000 bales and the rally in stock and grain markets. Bleachable spot closed 4.50c; September 4.50c; December, 4.80c; January, 4.81c; March, 5.00c.

You, Too, Can Have a Good Job—Let

DeLEE

University of Beauty Culture

Train You in the Easy, Modern Way.

The Fall classes are now forming at DeLEE. Enroll now and you will have completed your training just at the season when the demand for good beauty operators is at its height. You, too, can have a pleasant, good paying position

Why worry about getting work? Learn beauty culture by the DeLEE individual, personalized method and you are sure to qualify for one of the best paying positions. DeLEE prepares you for the best positions in the most modern, smart, beauty shops and actually helps you to obtain such positions.

DeLEE Makes Learning and Earning EASY.

At DeLEE you will receive instruction in the use of only the most modern, up to date equipment. There is not one piece of old fashioned equipment in the DeLEE school. You will also find tuition fees reasonable at DeLEE. Payments and hours can be arranged to suit your convenience. DeLEE maintains both day and evening classes.

There are no "extra charges" for uniforms, instruments, textbooks, etc. You can "earn while you learn." DeLEE provides free employment service to help you earn money while you learn and to help you obtain a good paying job when you are graduated. You need not have had previous experience or a high school education to enroll at DeLEE.

Post-Graduate Courses Now Available.

DeLEE offers an unusually attractive plan to licensed beauty operators who wish to take post-graduate work. Call in person and investigate this plan.

VISIT DeLEE FIRST.

Enroll in no beauty school until you visit DeLEE. Call in person and let Miss Ruby Lorrain Stevens, the DeLEE Dean, show you through our light, airy, colorful classrooms. Talk with her and learn for yourself why DeLEE training prepares you for a BETTER JOB.

What Marinello Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate. Each girl is graduated with the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once. That's good economy, good sense.
